DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS KEEP "PORK BARREL"

Defy Wilson; Refuse to Adopt Needed Budget System.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.
THIRD ARTICLE.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—President Wilson gave a solemn warning to congress in his message, Dec. 4, 1917, that war expenditures would be "very wasteful and extravagant" unless a change was made in the method of handling appropriations. He urged that all bills for the spending of public money be passed through one committee instead of being tossed helter skelter among twenty-nine separate bodies, each acting independently.

The Democrats in their national platform of 1916 had declared for such a reform, as had the Republicans. In fact, because the real financial experts were demanding it. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo was calling for a complete budget as a need of the hour. Every reform had been carried out in a modern financial system, and after the nation at war the necessity for the centralized handling of public funds became imperative.

But the Democratic majority had the power. They could not see it in that way at all.

What Is "Pork Barrel."

The Democratic leadership that is now asking the electorate that unless the Democratic congress is elected Nov. 5 to "uphold" the president, the kaiser and the entire prussian will throw handkerchiefs and yell with joy, flouted President Wilson and ignored their party platform. The same Democratic leadership that opposed the White House in three vital military measures—railroads, man power, and quotas based on eligibles—failed to warn up to the White House proposal of financial reform was as a war need.

And now with Uncle Sam trimmed down to the buff, saving and using every resource for the one object of winning the war, congress is still reviving the old system, best known as the "pork barrel" system, which was a waste of public funds.

Sixty billion dollars is the measure of the appropriations by congress for the next two years of the war. Of course, nothing like this sum will be actually expended in the first two years, as it includes loans to our allies for the taking of credits to cover our enormous balance of trade. What the figures represent and what part of actual war expenditures will be discussed in a later article.

They Refuse Budgets.

But the sixty billions do represent a appropriation for two years by congress, and in the aggregate they are only about $6,000,000,000 less than the total appropriations of Great Britain and France for their first four years of war.

Congress is ready to dig up its last dollar for the war, but every dollar must be a fighting dollar. The financial system retained by a Democratic congress for the running of the war was condemned in times of peace. At that time we were spending only a billion dollars a year, yet was evidenced that unless a radical change was made in methods financial bankruptcy would ensue. But despite the fact that the expenditures financial it is the Democratic leadership at the present time in spite of the appeal of the administration, sticks to the old shiftless ways. Great Britain and France operate under the budget system.

The two civilized nations and Germany, at bay, and the United States the one great nation with a real war machine, but no budget system.

Have Also Good Reasons.

Congress has two good reasons for refusing to adopt the budget system. The greatest application of the system in the control of the purse by Marshal Foch. But it is a fact that congress has ignored the leadership of the fighting forces and has refused to place the financial affairs under a centralized authority responsible to the people for the billions and billions of dollars of our expenditure, congress has practically paralyzed. As the appropriations, there are no less than

WHOEVER CUSSED HIM, MR. BONTOUX ASKS FOR $10,000

Who swore at August Bontoux? Somebody did—$10,000 worth.

Bontoux says it was H. B. Hungerford, living at the Great Northern hotel.

Hungerford says it wasn't he. He admits he was talking to Bontoux, but he says the operator cut them off and if there was any swearing done it was after he was disconnected.

Anyway, Bontoux, president of the International Forwarding company, 421 South Dearborn street, filed suit in the Circuit court yesterday against Hungerford, asking $10,000.

"They had a business disagreement," said Bontoux's lawyer, William M. Klein. "Hungerford represents an eastern firm. Bontoux wants to teach him a lesson."

"Bontoux is ———," said Hungerford last night. "I didn't swear at him. I was talking to him but the operator cut us off."

Men in Army Uniform Figure in Two Holdups

Mrs. Nick Kockler, 5730 South Wells street, saw four men in army uniforms holding up her husband at 2 o'clock this morning as she stood looking out of the window for him. She screamed and frightened them away. Shortly afterward George Murray, 739 West Fifty-seventh street, reported to the Englewood police that he had been robbed by three men, two in soldiers' garb, at West Fifty-eighth street and Normal boulevard.

WILSON WARNING SAVED BRUGES

Huns Had Begun Pillage, but Suddenly Were Called Off.

BY WALTER DURANTY.
Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.
[Copyright, 1918.]

BRUGES, Oct. 20.—"President Wilson saved Bruges," said Town Clerk Victor. The opinion is universal among 50,000 people remaining in the city.

"The president's reply caused a marked change in the German attitude," continued M. Victor. "The commandatur had notified some two score of leading citizens ten days ago they would be removed as hostages. We were conducted to the station for departure when suddenly a counter order for release came from general headquarters. The enemy carefully refrained from injuring the buildings or works of art and confined their destruction to the arsenal and their own depots.

A high Prussian officer admitted there was a decision henceforth to spare invaded territories as far as possible. For the Germans the fear of punishment is the beginning of clemency."

Huns' Gensels Also Factor.

Thus Bruges' famous buildings are intact and its priceless pictures and art treasures saved. The fact is the Germans never for a moment thought Bruges would pass from their possession and consequently did not trouble to consider the question of removing the monuments, until it was too late. In the Palace of Justice they did not touch the carved mantelpiece, a masterpiece of medieval art, merely saving a space on the wall opposite it for the kaiser's picture.

Although the last bches departed during the night Friday and Saturday, the evacuation began fully three weeks ago and for a fortnight there has been a steady flow of documents, stores, etc., by train and barge to Antwerp. The enemy made no secret of his preparations and on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday a series of explosions and fires in the arsenal and port warned the inhabitants that deliverance was near.

The Return.

As the first Belgian soldiers entered the city it was a thrilling progress along the streets between dense rows of people, who cheered to the echo every car, camion, motorcycle, or foot soldier along the route to the central square. The famous great bell of the belfry tower was ringing for the second time during the war. The first had been a day of gloom for the inhabitants when with full pomp and music the boches announced the signature of a peace with Russia—" the beginning of the allied end," as all called it.

An interesting feature was the display in windows of shops and houses of linen and copper utensils walled up in the cellars during four years to escape the German requisitions. Each copper pot, sheet, and tablecloth was proudly decorated with a rosette of the Belgian colors. The portraits of the king and queen were everywhere.

Fortunate as to Food.

As regarding food, Bruges is to be reckoned fortunate. For the poor the American committee functioned admirably, for the rich there was wholesale smuggling from Holland, wherein the Germans readily participated. One could buy sugar at a dollar a pound, coffee at $4, tea at $10. Milk was 50 cents a pint.

One girl I saw had manufactured a coat from a blanket, another from a curtain. Shoes were soled with old bicycle tires.

So Long, Slang! Evanston Cans Cootie's Monicker

Slang was officially declared "picturesque, but not good form," by the Evanston Woman's club yesterday, which announced itself for "better English." So, henceforth, there shall be no such thing as cooties in Evanston; they will be known by their real name for the sake of purity. Wise slang especially was condemned. Mrs. W. P. Hill president and Marieon Hackett and Miss Bertha Ilse unskilled the use of the never nonsensicals.

LILLE DEPUTIES RESUME SEATS; ASK VENGEANCE

PARIS, Oct. 22.—The chamber of deputies today enthusiastically welcomed Deputies Delory and Hagheboom of Lille, returning to their seats after years in the hands of the Germans. Amid an impressive silence M. Delory said:

"It is impossible to denounce all the German crimes, but the most abominable was the carrying off of women and girls of 19 and 14 by enemy soldiers, their enforced submission to medical examination, and their being obliged to work under French machine gun fire for the German army."

The chamber shouted its indignation. One member cried:

"We'll teach our children that. We'll never forget."

Then M. Delory resumed:

"The Lens plains are nothing but an immense area of ruins, with not one house intact. There cannot be a Frenchman who does not wish those culpabld chastised."

M. Ragheboom told how German soldiers had insulted and violated Lille women, and how they forced 15 year old children to work for them.

EDITOR-SHERIFF NABS McERLANE; WIRES THE NEWS

THE TRIBUNE received the following telegram last night:

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 22.—I arrested Frank S. McErlane, wanted in Chicago for murder and robbery. Am city editor of the Bisbee Review and deputy sheriff. Was born in Chicago on Vincennes avenue, between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth streets. How many words.

A. W. Howe.

THE DETAILS.

Later came the details as telegraphed by the editor-sheriff:

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 22.—Frank S. McErlane, alias Walter Scott, wanted in Chicago for murder of two police officers, robbery and jail breaking, was arrested in the Shattuck mine this evening as he was about to go on shaft by Deputy Sheriffs A. W. Howe, Red Cannon and Police Officer Hill Ruff.

He was in his digging clothes and was just ready to go down the shaft when the officers showed up. He was taken into the change room and after a few questions admitted his identity.

He was asked about his city and admitted that it was his. He was asked if he would return to Chicago without extradition and replied:

"No, I will not. I know that they will come for me so let them go to the capital and get their papers."

"A Small World."

In the way down from the mine he said:

"This is a small world after all."

He was taken up to the city jail for night and guard placed over him. He will be taken to Tombstone in the morning and held until the officers from Chicago come for him.

McErlane came to Bisbee about three weeks ago and reported to Special Agent McFarlane that he was having trouble with the local draft board at Joliet, Ill., on account of the fact that he had been in jail and could not get a classification card from them. McFarlane sent him to Dr. Hunt, of the local draft board. He repeated the story and said he wanted to go work. Dr. Hunt gave him a letter stating that he had reported and for anyone to let him go to work and thus his classification would be fixed later.

He Picks Cotton.

The same night he left Bisbee and went to Tucson and information came back that he had gone to work on a farm there picking cotton. Instead he came back to Bisbee and applied for work at the Shattuck mine and went to work on the fourth of this month.

Yesterday afternoon Deputy Sheriff Howe received word that he was here and that he worked Monday night at the Shattuck. He made an investigation and had the picture identified and then took the other officers and made the arrest.

McErlane, when he first came back, roomed at the Miners hotel and then moved to others and was rooming at the George hotel when he was arrested. Officers all over the United States were on the lookout for him. The arrest is one of the most important that has been made by the local officers for some time.

He stated that his wife and child were living in Flagstaff, Ariz., in his application for work.

U. S. Will Bring Home All Dead After the War

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—All the American dead in France will be taken home after the war, according to orders received by the army chaplains.

ALLIED CHIEFS WILL DICTATE PEACE TERMS

BULLETIN.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—"President Wilson's reply to the latest German note may, perhaps, bring definite certainty as to the result of the negotiations," Prince Maximilian, the imperial German chancellor, said today, according to a dispatch received here from Berlin. "Till then we must prepare to resist a peace of violence."

Prince Maximilian continued: "A government which acted otherwise would be left to the mercy of the fighting and working people. It would be swept away by public opinion."

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—President Wilson will not yield an inch to Germany in response to the latest Teutonic peace note, according to officials who discussed the question with him today.

He will make it clear that the evacuation of invaded territories by the Teutonic armies must be on terms laid down by Marshal Foch and the other military advisers of the nations fighting the central powers.

The German army will not be allowed to retire intact from France and Belgium with its arms and stores. This was the positive assertion of a cabinet member following the session of the cabinet with the president this afternoon.

Program of the Allies.

It now is possible to outline the entire program for bringing the war to an end, which has been worked out by the United States and the allies. Here are the consecutive steps:

Evacuation by Germany of all invaded territory on terms fixed by the allied military commanders.

Armistice granted, after evacuation of all occupied territory, on terms fixed by the allied military commanders, including the delivery by Germany of "guarantees for good faith" and subsequent performance of contract.

Peace concluded during the armistice in accordance with the principles enunciated by the president and indorsed by the allies.

This is a program that contemplates the enforced surrender of the central powers to the allied nations at every step. It is a program that will be backed up and carried out by the ever increasing military strength of the allies.

President Works with Army.

Mr. Wilson, it is asserted, has this program in mind at all times, however indirectly his diplomacy may seem now and then to be aimed at accomplishing the general purpose. The president is endeavoring to aid the military forces by outflanking diplomatic attacks for the purpose of exerting moral suasion upon the enemy.

Although the unofficial text of the German note was discussed for two hours at the cabinet meeting today, the president, according to the most reliable information obtainable, had not decided just what he would say in reply. An indication of this indecision was the postponement by the administration itself of the delivery of the official text of the German note until tomorrow.

Note Not Yet Delivered.

Charge d'Affaires Oederlin of the Swiss legation sought to make an appointment to deliver the Berlin communication to Secretary of State Lansing at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The greater part of the day had been consumed in decoding and translating the note. Mr. Oederlin was informed that it would be more convenient to receive the note at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The president will be ready to de-

U. S. NURSES SAVE WOUNDED AS HUN BOMBS HOSPITAL

Woman Hurled from Bed Carries Men to Verdun Dugouts.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 21, 4:30 p. m.—[By the Associated Press.] [illegible] wrought by American bombing planes within the enemy's lines recently. German aviators last night raided the American front and back areas in the largest force since the American offensive began on the Meuse and in the Argonne.

In addition to attacking the infantry, the Germans bombed the region around Clermont, Montfaucon and Parecourt.

Four bombs were dropped near the American hospital in the neighborhood of Narecourt, one of the bombs tearing down an outbuilding. The glass ends of four former French barracks, now used by the Americans as hospital wards, were shattered.

Red Cross Nurses Are Heroines.

A Red Cross nurse, Margery Sawyer of Buffalo, N. Y., was blown from her bed. All the patients were taken to dugouts, none of them being injured. Another Red Cross nurse, Mabel Butler, of New Haven, Conn., was in the same building with Miss Sawyer, and both of them immediately went to the aid of the patients.

When the first bomb fell the hospital attendants gave their first attention to their charges, leading or carrying them to shelter. Ten other bombs were planted in succession in a great semicircle. Throughout most of the night German planes were heard many times, passing over.

Fifteen American night flyers responded to alert signals when the Germans began the raid and searched for the enemy airmen up and down the lines. One American saw the tracer bullets of a German firing his machine gun at a supposed troop movement but he was unable to engage the enemy raider.

WIN IN FLIGHT ON LAND AND SEA FROM THE TURKS

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Eight British officers captured at Kut-El-Amara reached England today after thrilling adventures.

The party escaped from a Turkish prison camp in the interior of Asia Minor. They journeyed seaward across the Taurus mountains. Food supplies were short, but the party decided it wiser to travel mostly by night. The sea was reached after a fortnight.

A Turkish patrol boat was discovered in a creek and the party took possession of it during the crew's absence. Sailing toward Cyprus and steering by the sun and stars, they reached the island when on the verge of starvation, having crossed 170 miles of open sea.

Stops Train; She Forgot— Not Bundles, but Baby

Mrs. Ora Berger of Milwaukee got on an interurban train at Evanston yesterday loaded down with bundles. Her arms were full of them. Then just as the car started, she shrieked:

"O! I forgot my baby!"

The car was hauled up and the baby was found sleeping on a bench in the station.

BRITISH WIN SUBURBS OF VALENCIENNES

Allies Pierce Enemy Defenses Built Along Canal.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Valenciennes, the last city of importance remaining in German hands in French Flanders, is near liberation. Field Marshal Haig tonight reported that British troops have entered the western suburbs of the city, in the course of a powerful advance to the Scheldt river and canal.

The Scheldt, which runs in a northerly direction from Valenciennes through Ghent, appears to have been crossed in at least two places, probably at Valenciennes and at Pecq, north of Tournai.

Pierce Canal Defenses.

This pierces the German defense on the southern end of this waterway, east of which the enemy had hoped to make a stand to reorganize his rearguard. Sharp fighting is reported at other river crossings, particularly at Pont-a-Chin, about five miles south of Pecq.

Further to the north the French have established a strong foothold on the east side of the Lys river, near Deynze, which opens the way for a further advance on Ghent from the southwest.

Still more to the north the Belgians have crossed the canal, which runs north from Deynze to the Dutch frontier at several points, and have halted counter attacks.

French Win Bitter Battle.

Far to the south, north of Laon, the French have advanced from one to two miles over an eight mile front in fierce fighting. In addition to holding Aasla on the Serre and Mesereourt the French have taken Chalandry and Grandlup and Mortieres, a little group of villages for which the Germans have sacrificed many men.

Paris also reports that two vicious attacks in the region of Vouziers, in the Champagne, were completely repulsed, while Czecho-Slovak units have retaken Terron, which the Germans had temporarily reoccupied.

Rate of Advance Slower.

While the enemy is offering much stronger resistance to the French, Belgians, and British in Flanders, the advance of the allies is continuing, although at a slower rate in spots.

In this struggle, the Belgian official report for tonight says, the enemy sought by counter attacks and by strong rear guard forces to maintain his position on the Lys river and the canal which branches off the Lys at Deynze. All the attacks failed, however, and the Belgians got over the waterway at several points, thus preparing the way for the march on Ghent.

In their earlier retreat, the statement says, the Germans were compelled to throw some 200 transport vehicles into a canal near St. Georges, east of Bruges.

The French bridgehead south of Deynze on the Lys is said to have been extended to a depth of more than a mile on a two mile front, which gives ample elbow room for troop maneuvering. Their patrols also have made good progress down the east bank of this stream. More than 1,000 Germans were made prisoners in these operations.

The Second British army, according to the Belgian statement, has advanced on a front of more than a mile between the Lys and the Scheldt and their bridgehead on the east of the Scheldt seems well established at Pecq.

Haig Tells of Gains.

Taking up the operations of the British troops just south of here, Field Marshal Haig reports that northwest of Tournai his forces have nearly reached the Scheldt immediately north of Tournai and a hot engagement is taking place for a river crossing four or five miles to the north.

Southward the British have taken Hollain, on the east bank of the Scheldt, and also occupied Bruyelles, south of Tournai, which makes the position of the Germans in the latter town precarious.

In addition to penetrating Valenciennes, the British have progressed eastward from St. Amand, and have driven deeply into the Raismes forest toward the angle of the Scheldt at Conde, which appears to be strongly held.

In the Solesmes-Le Cateau region the British are consolidating their positions won yesterday and the day before.

REACH POINT OF PAUSE.

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN BELGIUM, Oct. 22.—[By the Associated Press.]—The general situation in Belgium this morning seemed to be that on most of the front the allied armies had reached a period of pause which is inevitable when rapid advances have been made. German resistance stiffened appreciably during the night, especially along the Scheldt river.

On the front of the British Fourth army, with which the Americans are fighting, the night was quiet and the situation is unchanged in the Valenciennes-Le Cateau area.

Drive Toward Scheldt.

Between Tournai and Valenciennes the British continue their progress toward the Scheldt.

On the front of both the Third and Fourth armies high velocity guns and other artillery are active. German machine guns on the eastern bank of the Harpies river which had been causing considerable trouble have been put out of action.

British bombing airplanes at 2 o'clock this morning flew low over the machine gun positions and obliterated them and their occupants with enormous bombs.

The British have made slight advances in the valley of the Ecaillon river.

The Germans appear to be in some strength behind the Scheldt. Enemy machine guns on the east bank are active and are supported by artillery and trench mortars.

On the northern part of the front the Belgians by this morning had reached the Lys canal on the whole of their front. They captured a bridgehead west of Meerendre, taking prisoners.

The French have crossed the Lys river at several points between Gramsmes and Gesselsheim, southwest of Ghent, overpowering opposition. They are now firmly established east of the river while making progress in effecting crossings at other points.

RUSH TO SAVE SUPPLIES.

AMSTERDAM, Monday, Oct. 21.—German forces at Brussels are working incessantly to remove war material from that city, according to the Roosendaal correspondent of the Handelblad. He says that many regiments of German troops are leaving the city and that there is much excitement among the people there. On the other hand, Antwerp is very calm and is not greatly affected by recent events.

The same newspaper's correspondent at Esermond says that hundreds of refugees from northern France are arriving there. These people, who are of all ages, have been on the road for three weeks. They were given only five hours' notice to collect their belongings by German officers at Douai, Cambrai, and other cities in the war zone.

SAILORS RIOT IN PETROGRAD; MANY EXECUTED

STOCKHOLM, Monday, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—Several thousand insurgent sailors stopped the performance at the Marinsky theater in Petrograd on Oct. 14 and compelled the orchestra to lead a march to the Smolny Institute in protest against the order of M. Zinovieff, head of the Petrograd commune, conscripting all sailors, according to neutrals arriving here today.

The Bolsheviki organized a resistance and the sailors were attacked and defeated. Many of them later were executed. Street fighting and riots continued for several days.

Simultaneously with the outbreak in Petrograd there was trouble in Moscow, but its extent is not known.

North Russians Mobilize.

ARCHANGEL, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—The reorganization of the North Russian government is bringing quick results as regards mobilization of men to fight the Bolsheviki. The classes for the five years beginning with the men born in 1893 have been called to the colors.

Send Neutral Commissions to Investigate Devastation

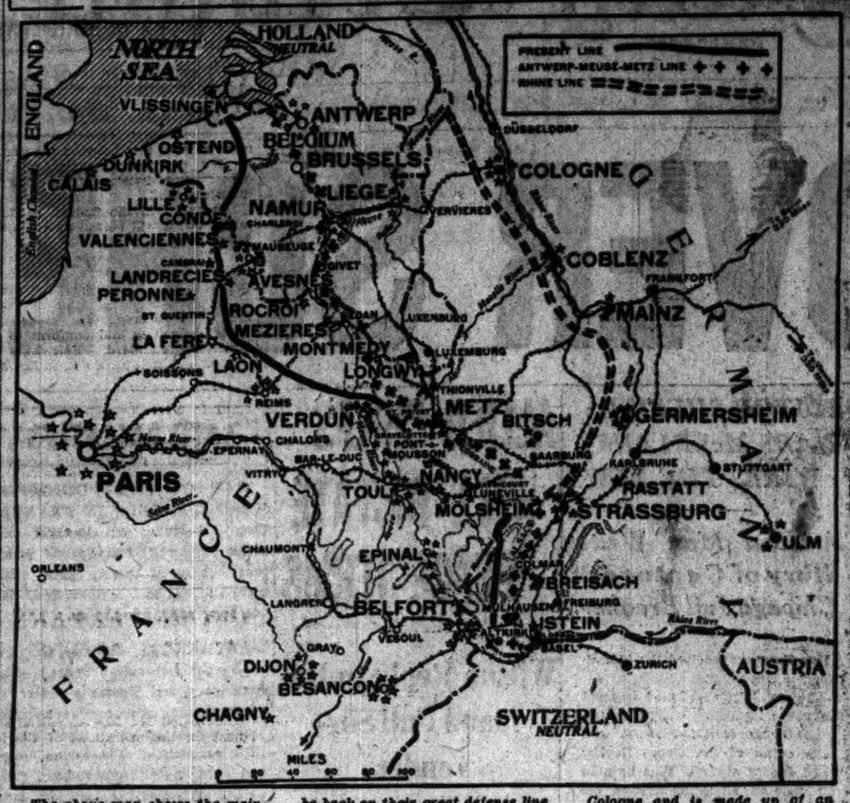
PARIS, Oct. 22.—The German propaganda service announces that a commission of neutral residents of Brussels has gone to the front to investigate charges of devastation and destruction without military objects during the German retreat in Belgium. Baron von der Lancken, the civil governor of Brussels, went with the commission.

Vienna Soon to Reply to President Wilson's Note

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 22.—The Austrian propaganda service sends the following announcement from Vienna:

"The Austro-Hungarian government will reply very soon to President Wilson's note, more so as the president has not replied to the question concerning conditions on which peace negotiations are possible."

GERMANY'S MAIN LINES OF DEFENSE



The above map shows the main German defense lines back of the present front which the allies must break through before the interior of Germany can be successfully invaded.

The Hunding line, which the enemy has reached at various points already and which has been turned in the north by the rapid advance of King Albert's armies towards Ghent, may be considered as embraced in the present battle zone. Roughly, it now follows the line of Valenciennes, Maubeuge, Mezieres and Sedan along the Meuse to the present battle front north of Verdun and thence to Metz.

Outflanked as it is along the Lys river and pierced before Valenciennes, which the British entered yesterday, it is a reasonable presumption that before the present campaign closes owing to winter weather, the Germans will be back on their great defense line along the Meuse through Dinant and Namur, thence north to the east of Brussels, with the right flank anchored on the fortifications of Antwerp and the Scheldt river to the Dutch border.

South and southeast of Metz the Vosges mountains, with the modern forts of Bitsch, Molsheim and Strassburg will be depended upon before the direct line of the Rhine is reached.

South of Strassburg to the Swiss border are Breisach and Istein as the anchor fortifications of the entire German defense systems on the western frontier.

Istein, directly north of the Rhine, where it turns abruptly to the east and forms the German-Swiss boundary, is one of the latest and most modern of the Rhine strongholds. It faces the Belfort gap between the Vosges and the Alps and is practically hewn out of the solid rock.

The Rhine line begins north of Cologne and is made up of an almost continuous line of fortifications to the Swiss border, with nuclei of modern outpost forts on the west bank of the river at the following points: Cologne, Coblenz, Mainz, Germersheim, Rastatt, Molsheim, Strassburg, Breisach, and Istein.

While these great defense groups are placed on the left bank of the Rhine facing France, evidently for the purpose of securing bridgeheads to the west, the mobile forces of the enemy probably will stand on the east bank to oppose the allied advance.

Aside from these two main defense lines, the Germans have developed other secondary lines to be used for delaying actions. On the north the line of the Ourthe and of the Meuse rivers before Aix la Chapelle from Liege to Holland, will be utilized. East and south of Luxemburg the Moselle and the Saar rivers also offer formidable defensive positions.

The question the cabinet members left with the president to decide is whether to terminate the exchanges between Washington and Berlin by referring the German government to Marshal Foch for the terms of evacuation of invaded territory or to address another argument to the German people pointing out that sham transformations of the German government will not do and that the sooner they rid themselves of the Prussian military autocracy the shorter and easier will be the road to peace.

Senses Feeling in This Country.

The president realizes that the overwhelming demand of the country, of the representatives of the people in congress, and of the press is for a short, final reply informing the Germans that they can get their terms from Foch. Some who enjoy the confidence of the president believe that after thinking the matter over tonight he will take exactly this course in a note of unusual vigor.

At the same time it is known that Mr. Wilson is strongly tempted to try once more to reason with the German people and to convince them that no half way reforms are acceptable. If the war could be shortened in this way it would be well worth the effort, in the opinion of the president, despite any temporary unpopularity he might incur.

Attack on Oligarchy Gaining.

The president has been intent from the start upon influencing the German people to overthrow the Prussian oligarchy and he feels that he is making progress, now that the latest German note has admitted the lack hitherto of a representative government. For this reason he is weighing the feasibility of bringing pressure to bear still further upon the German people to induce them to make a clean sweep of the Potsdam crowd and their means of control of the German government.

Some members of the cabinet took the view that the German note accepts all the demands made by the president, is tantamount to a surrender, and requires no reply. Others pronounced it cunningly equivocal and thoroughly unsatisfactory.

No Question of Evacuation.

It was conceded that there is only one proposition in the note calling for a reply by the president. That is the suggestion that steps be taken to fix the arrangements for evacuation of occupied territory, it being plainly indicated that Germany expects these terms to be arrived at in a parley between the allied and Teutonic commanders and on a basis of German as well as allied power in the field.

This is not at all satisfactory to the United States and the allies. The terms of evacuation are to be fixed by the allied commanders without reference to the German contentions and the Germans are to be given the choice of accepting the terms and withdrawing peaceably or rejecting them and compelling the allies to proceed with the present process of ejection.

Will Not Fall Into Trap.

It is not doubted that as terms of evacuation Marshal Foch would require the Germans to lay down their arms and surrender their military equipment and stores. Otherwise the Germany army would be allowed to withdraw intact with all arms and equipment to a shorter line, where it could renew the war with greater powers of resistance.

The German government is evidently maneuvering to be allowed to do this very thing and clearly had the idea that President Wilson would allow himself to be led into this pitfall.

Any apprehension that the president might fall into the German trap was removed by his last note to Berlin stating that the conditions of evacuation must maintain allied military supremacy.

"Unconditional Surrender" on Hamiltonian Letters

Members of the Hamilton club are for war on the Hun to the finish. At yesterday's noon luncheon of the club the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That the members of the Hamilton club imprint, by rubber stamp or otherwise, on their business envelopes and stationery the words, "Unconditional surrender."

ALLIES' TROOPS EXTEND ADVANCE ALONG DANUBE

PARIS, Oct. 21.—The allied troops have extended their gains on the Danube in Bulgaria, extended their advance toward the Hungarian border in Serbia, and advanced further in Montenegro. An official report issued tonight said:

"On Oct. 21 French forces reached on the Danube Lom-Palanka [twenty-two miles southeast of Vidin], which they occupied; they captured a convoy of enemy barges loaded with merchandise and wheat.

"North of Aleksinatz (Serbia) Serbian forces have progressed, notwithstanding very strong resistance by the enemy. Serbian cavalry have reached the region east of Paracin, capturing part of the headquarters of a German division, including the archives and baggage of Gen. von Gallwitz, commander of the division.

"In the region of Ipek (Montenegro) and Novipasar (Serbia) detachments of Serbians and Montenegrins, supported by French troops, captured in the course of engagements with Austro-German forces in retreat more than 1,600 prisoners and important booty."

Methodists Urge Wilson to Insist on Surrender

New York, Oct. 22.—President Wilson was urged to accept only peace based upon unconditional surrender in a resolution adopted at a meeting here today of the national war council of the Methodist Episcopal church.

NAVY ASKS TEN DREADNAUGHTS, SIX CRUISERS

140 Smaller Vessels Also to Be Built During the Next Three Years.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—Congress has been asked by the navy department to authorize a second three year naval building program to provide ten additional superdreadnaughts, six battle cruisers, and 140 smaller vessels at a cost of $600,000,000. This was disclosed tonight by Secretary Daniels after his appearance before the house naval committee to explain the appropriation.

This authorization is asked for the next fiscal year and is in addition to the 156 naval vessels comprising the first three year building program authorized in 1916 and the great number of new destroyers and other special types contracted for since the United States entered the war.

Work on the first three year program was delayed by the war, but congress has required that a start must be made on all the vessels before next July 1.

Navy Work to Cost $872,090,000.

Including the $600,000,000 for the three year program, Secretary Daniels said, the total estimates of the department for ship construction, including armor and armament, amount this year to $872,090,000. Only $200,000,000 of the $600,000,000 will be made available next year for construction work on the three year program, in addition to $272,090,000 which is asked for completing vessels already authorized.

"The new program of 156 vessels," Secretary Daniels said, "prescribes specific numbers of battleships and battle cruisers only, there being ten battleships asked for and six battle cruisers. As regards smaller vessels, although the total number is to be 140, it is simply asked that they be of types already approved and in existence or of new types which may develop during the life of the program.

"The new three year program is a continuation of the policy adopted in 1916 of increasing the navy, and contemplates its steady upbuilding and improvement. It is in line with the policy adopted by this government, and which has met with the entire approval of the American people, of building up a navy strong enough to meet all requirements.

To Be Unexcelled by Any.

"This program, if authorized by congress, as I am confident it will be, will give us sixteen capital ships that will be the equal of any afloat at the time they are built. The battleships and battle cruisers authorized in the first three year program will be unexcelled by those of any other navy.

"The imperative necessity of turning out as rapidly as possible all the destroyers and other types of craft needed in the war against the submarine, for the necessities of warfare for the time required us to concentrate upon this class of construction, has led to the fear in some quarters that in devoting so much necessary attention to the building of smaller craft we might fall some in looking out for the future in building the capital ships on which the strength of a navy ultimately depends. This the naval authorities have always had in mind.

"The three year program adopted in 1916 provided for ten battleships and six battle cruisers. Now we ask for as many more, to be built as those formerly authorized are completed and facilities become available."

BATTLE STATEMENTS

BELGIAN REPORT

HAVRE, Oct. 22.—The official communication issued by Belgian headquarters tonight says:

The enemy sought to maintain his positions on the Lys and the canal from Deynze to the Dutch frontier. He attempted several counter attacks for the purpose of forcing us back west of Peteghem, which he had occupied Sunday. All these attacks failed with heavy losses. The Belgian army crossed at several points the Canal de Derivation de la Lys.

In their retreat the Germans were compelled to throw 200 vehicles into the Bruges-Ghent canal near Miserle, west of St. Georges.

The French troops have established south of Deynze a bridgehead to a depth of three kilometers over an extent of four kilometers. Patrols have traversed the course of the Lys further south to Vive-St. Eloi.

In the course of these operations 1,100 Germans were taken prisoner by the French.

The second British army, despite considerable resistance from machine guns and artillery, have advanced on a front of 1,600 meters (about a mile) between the Lys and the Scheldt and have established a bridgehead on the right bank of the Scheldt east of Pecq.

FRENCH REPORT

PARIS, Oct. 22.—The war office statement tonight says:

On the Serre front we again forced the enemy to retreat notwithstanding an obstinate defense by his machine guns. We took Chalandry and Grandlup. Our line runs along the Serre as far as Mortiers, passes through the outskirts of Froidmont, Cohartille, and follows further south, the line of the Canal De Buse.

This morning the Germans twice renewed their attacks east of Vouziers, but were everywhere repulsed. Czecho-Slovak troops, engaged in liaison with our forces, recaptured the village of Terron (north of Vouziers), which had temporarily fallen into enemy hands.

In Alsace a strong enemy detachment attempted on three different occasions to reach one of our centers of resistance north of Thann, but was driven back.

EARLY REPORT

North of the Oise the night was characterized by great activity on the part of the German artillery.

On the Serre front the French made further progress. They reached the railway northeast of Assis-Sur-Serre and the St. Jacques farm northwest of Chalandry. West of Chateau Porcien there was active artillery fighting.

On the plateaus east of Vouziers the battle diminished in intensity last night. It is confirmed that the attacks made yesterday by the Germans were very violent. We have identified elements belonging to sixteen divisions.

BRITISH REPORT

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The war office statement tonight reads:

We have entered the western suburbs of Valenciennes and, north of that town, have penetrated deeply into the Foret De Raismes towards the angle of the Scheldt at Conde.

Progress was made east of St. Amond and we reached the Scheldt at Hollain and Bruyelles, south of Tournai. Both of the places are in our possession.

Northwest of Tournai we have driven the enemy from the village of Froyenne and progressed beyond it towards the Scheldt. Further north sharp fighting has taken place for the crossing of the Scheldt at Pont-a-Chin.

EARLY REPORT

As a result of local fighting during the night we advanced our line to the left bank of the River Ecaillon, south of Thiant, the western portion of which is in our possession.

Further progress has been made by our troops between Valenciennes and Tournai. The enemy's resistance on this front is increasing.

In the Tournai sector as a result of sharp fighting during the night we drove the enemy out of the village of Orcq and the woods in the neighborhood of Froyenne. Our troops now are within less than a mile from the town.

BRITISH-BELGIAN

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The war office statement on Belgian operations says:

Throughout the day the enemy endeavored to maintain his positions on the Lys and on the canal between Deynze and the Dutch frontier.

Several counter attacks were launched in order to retake the bridgehead we established yesterday. All failed with heavy losses to the enemy.

GERMAN REPORT

BERLIN, via London, Oct. 22.—The official statement from general headquarters tonight, says:

Strong attacks in Flanders southwest of Deynze and east of Courtrai resulted in a limited gain of territory by the enemy.

On the eastern bank of the Aisne, on both sides of Vouziers and east of Aire, violent French attacks failed.

EARLY REPORT

There were infantry engagements on the Lys and on the Scheldt. The enemy several times endeavored to cross the rivers with small strong detachments. Northeast of Courtrai he advanced against our lines with tanks, and southeast of Courtrai with strong forces. He was repulsed everywhere with great loss. In this fighting Sergt. Major destroyed six enemy tanks.

The British have placed machine guns in the tower of the church at St. Amand, which had been spared by us. On both sides of Solesmes and Le Cateau there were renewed enemy attacks. As the result of nocturnal engagements the farm of Amerval remains in his hands.

French attacks in the forenoon north of the Serre and in the afternoon on a wide front between the Oise and the Serre were repulsed. Northwest of Meabrecourt-Richecourt, Silesian troops carried out a successful counter attack.

On the Aisne heights east of Vouziers violent fighting continues. We recaptured by successful counter attacks the heights east of Vandy and between Ballay and Chestres and north of Falaise, and held ther against strong enemy counter attacks. East of Olizy a partial enemy attack broke down.

After violent artillery preparation the Americans attacked north of Sommerance and on a wide front on both sides of Bantheville. The enemy attacks broke down under our fire and as a result of our counter attack. The Americans again suffered heavy losses, especially under the fire of our machine guns and infantry rifles.

The "Smudge" Table

People are mighty particular about books. If a fine volume has a finger mark on it—goodbye value.

Therefore, the Smudge Table.

On it you will find fine books that have been reduced from their high estate because of a harmless smudge—a finger mark, a streak, a torn page—any of the ills that books are heir to at the hands of "lookers."

None of their real value is gone. They are just as good reading as they ever were, and really just as valuable, but

We mark them down and don't argue about it.

The Smudge table is a good thing to watch. No telling when just the book you want will be found there at a greatly reduced price—perhaps for less than half its actual value.

TOWNS BURNING NORTH OF YANKS' VERDUN LINES

German Guns Bombard U. S. Positions with Gas Shells.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct. 22. [By the Associated Press.]—The towns of Brieulles and Clery-le-Petit, [illegible] western bank of the Meuse, and north of the American line were reported to be burning today.

The Germans bombarded the American [illegible] with mustard and other gas shells. The enemy, however, made no attempt to bombard the new positions occupied by the Americans Monday, in spite of the possibility that he has registered his big guns in that area.

Two explosions occurred in dugouts [illegible] from mines left behind by the enemy when they were driven out [illegible] days ago.

Prisoners captured yesterday were [illegible] Divisions known to be opposite the American lines. The Twenty-fifth German or "Flying Shock division" apparently is no longer being [illegible] the Americans on this [illegible].

Berlin Claims Yank Repulse.

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—American attacks Monday north of Sommerance and on a wide front on both sides of Bantheville were driven back, according to the official statement from German general headquarters today.

YANKS DOING BIG TASK

BY EDWIN L. JAMES.

Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.
[Copyright: 1918.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 22.—While the attention of the world has been centered on the glorious victories of the French, British, and Belgian armies in the north, where the Germans have been driven back so many miles, the world must not forget the large degree in which that advance has been facilitated by the fact that to the Champagne and Meuse fronts has been drawn one-fourth of the German military strength to meet the Fourth French army and the First American army, whose pressure threatens the whole German army.

The success of the American operations north of Verdun is not to be measured in kilometers gained, but in its effect on the whole situation.

When Gen. Pershing's men launched their first attack in the mist on the morning of Sept. 26, they have fought and put out some twenty German divisions, among which were some of the best in the German army, such as three of the guard divisions and the Twenty-eighth, known as "the kaiser's own."

Bring Up New Divisions.

In front of us now are some eighteen more divisions and others are being brought up day by day to confront us. On the front of the First American army the last four weeks have seen some of the fiercest fighting of the whole war, where the best soldiers the kaiser has are fighting the youthful Americans under orders to hold at all costs the line which protects the Luxemburg gateway to the important artery of the German army.

Captured German officers explain, "We have just got to hold north of Verdun." A captured order of a German general says the fate of the fatherland may hang on the fight north of Verdun. If the Mezieres-Luxemburg railroad system is reached or put under our gunfire, all the communications for the German front from in front of Laon to the Meuse fails.

The German command has placed a huge concentration of artillery against us and innumerable machine guns. Therefore fighting resolves itself into the gigantic job of reducing machine gun nests and the progress of battle is not a sensational affair, to which the machine gun has reduced so much modern warfare.

Machine Guns Nasty Foes.

One must bear in mind that the machine gun is a prime weapon for defense. This means that a certain number of men on defense with machine guns will placed, as the Germans know how to place them, can hold back a much larger number of men, although they are usually good fighters.

To attack these machine gun nests [illegible] of them frontally is too expensive to be generally done. They must be reduced by maneuvering, flanking and surrounding. When one realizes that on some parts of one front these venomous little weapons are placed one to a yard one realizes [illegible] what a task our soldiers have.

How the defense of their line was expensive to the Germans is proved by the replacement of twenty divisions in less than four weeks, because they had been so cut up. Nearly every day brings the identification of new German divisions brought from other parts of the line. We have met troops rushed from Flanders, from Cambrai, [illegible], and, in fact, from all parts of the German front.

Will Take Yanks at All Costs.

The German lines are held by unprecedented numbers in front of the American army. The German command is taking chances elsewhere in order to try to make sure that the Americans do not break through north of Verdun.

The task being performed by the First American army is part of the whole scheme. It is the hardest, most costly and least sensational task of the whole battle, but some army has to do it, and Gen. Pershing gladly assumed the commission knowing it would be such pickle as the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient.

Probably one-sixth of the rifles [illegible] of the whole German army [illegible] thrown against the First American army in the last week. There [illegible] divisions in front of us just [illegible] the attack. These have been [illegible] by fully thirty more.

This is a strain on our strength; [illegible] a strain on the German [illegible]. We have more strength to [illegible] the Germans have.

GERMAN PAPER BARES FACTS OF U-BOAT WARFARE

Says Germany Made Foe of U. S. While Talking Peace.

BY GEORGE RENWICK.

Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.
[Copyright: 1918.]

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 22.—"Despite the tremendous dangers of the movement of the moment this matter soon should play a very great part in public discussion." Thus says the Lokal Anzeiger in referring to interesting revelations made by the Frankfurter Zeitung regarding America and the introduction of the unrestricted U-boat war.

The information comes from a quarter having close relations with Bethmann-Hollweg. The article outlines the course of events thus:

On the day following President Wilson's message to the senate on Jan. 22 of last year the president caused the German ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, to be informed that he, the president, would renew his efforts to bring about peace. For that purpose it would be of great importance to have more exact knowledge regarding German conditions.

Bernstorff's telegram to Berlin regarding this matter reached its destination Jan. 28. The decision had then been arrived at to begin the unrestricted U-boat war on Feb. 1. To countermand it was "a technical impossibility."

Bernstorff Given Facts.

Bernstorff was immediately informed of this and was told to declare to the American government that the German government warmly greeted the president's intention. For his personal information and to assist him in his endeavors the German government made its peace conditions known to him. The peace program was fully outlined in a telegram to Bernstorff.

He was in addition instructed that the unrestricted U-boat war could not for "technical reasons" be stopped, but that the government was ready to give orders to interrupt that warfare as soon as the president had succeeded in assuring a basis for peace negotiations which promised success.

Despite this message the American government replied to the unrestricted U-boat war by breaking off diplomatic relations.

Seeks to Clear Germany.

Such is the gist of the Frankfurter Zeitung's statement, which is put forward with the aim of disproving the charge of duplicity brought against the German government. It will have little success in this direction, and it has raised a storm of indignation from the democratic press. Several papers are calling for a parliamentary inquiry.

Vorwaerts is exceedingly angry that the unrestricted U-boat war was "introduced right in the middle of a fresh peace move, which President Wilson was undertaking despite his previous failures. It is hardly exactly proved that it was nothing but the unrestricted U-boat war which brought America into the war against us. The responsibility must, in the first place, be carried by the pan-German agitators, but also by the weak government of Bethmann-Hollweg, which allowed itself, against its better judgment, to be driven along by the Rupert."

Collapse or Trick? Allies Seek Answer in Foe's Note

Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.
[Copyright: 1918.]

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The entente leaders are engaged in an endeavor to pierce the veil of the German peace note. Does it denote a state of collapse or merely a new phase of defiance clothed in the cunning of the tracked beast? The exact interpretation of the document occupied the war cabinet in protracted sittings Monday and yesterday.

There is every reliance on the judgment and firmness of President Wilson, at the same time it is reasonable to suppose that the cables have conveyed to Washington the views of both London and Paris.

We may be sure the naval position has been insisted upon by Britain. It would not do to have Germany come to the conference chamber with its army and fleet intact, still a formidable instrument of aggression. The necessity of obtaining possession of the U-boats probably will be insisted upon as a part of the armistice conditions, though the dismantling of the high seas fleet may not seem to be as imperative.

France is certainly insisting upon the recovery of Alsace and Lorraine as one of the essentials of the armistice.

See Germany Still Defiant.

Commenting on the German reply to the note from President Wilson, the London newspapers see no change manifested in the policies of the ruling powers in Germany.

"A monument of insincerity" is the way the Times characterizes the German reply.

"An armistice is to be had on terms laid down by the military and naval authorities of the associated forces," the Times adds. "It is not to be had on the enemy's terms or upon any terms that leave room for subterfuge. . . . In comparison with this main issue the rest of the note is unimportant."

Germany Still Impenitent.

"Germany still impenitent" is the caption on the editorial of the Chronicle, which dismisses the reply as obviously unacceptable. The Graphic is more optimistic and says "verbally, the Germans are getting slightly nearer the point of view upon which the allies mean to insist."

"The nigger in the woodpile" in the German reply, according to the Express, is the desire "for an armistice based on an elaborate estimate of the rival forces as they are today." This the newspaper says is a "disingenuous twist of the Wilson conditions" and continues:

"We dare not consent to a suspension of hostilities unless we can obtain in October the terms we shall dictate before July to an enemy who is broken and beaten to the knees."

The Manchester Guardian says it does not see that this particular controversy can with advantage be carried much further.

With reference to the paragraph in the German note denying that the German navy in sinking ships ever purposely destroyed life boats with their passengers, it is pointed out in government circles that many cases could be quoted in reply to this denial.

Two recent cases are the Llandovery Castle, the Canadian hospital ship sunk in the Atlantic, and the French steamer Lydiana, sunk off the north coast of Spain July 16.

The Llandovery Castle was torpedoed and sunk off the Irish coast on the night of June 27 while returning from Halifax with no wounded aboard. The vessel carried 258 persons, including fourteen female nurses, and only twenty-four were saved. The German submarine made no effeort to aid the survivors and even tried to sink at least one of the life boats.

After the Lydiana had been torpedoed two whale boats and a raft were lowered. The German submarine rammed both boats, cutting them in two. After several fruitless attempts the submarine succeeded in sinking the raft and then disappeared without helping the survivors.

Fight On, Paris Says.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—In discussing the German reply to President Wilson the Temps says:

"Now, more than ever, the decision must be with the military and naval chiefs of our alliance. To make the French public believe that Germany yields and to insinuate that peace is coming along the pathway of least effort is an outrage to truth and an ill service to the country.

"There is only one way to spare French blood, and that is to refuse the enemy until he capitulates. A respite in the fighting would give Ludendorff time in which to recover."

The Temps reviews the German note and points out that it contains no word of apology for crimes committed.

"What is the good," it adds, "of telling us the German regime has been radically transformed when the reichstag has not deliberated on any of the three replies to President Wilson? To say it is dark at midday deceives nobody."

Shows German Dispair.

The Figaro says that the men who combined to write the reply to President Wilson have "translated the anguish, disarray, and powerless anger of the people in whose name they pretend to speak."

"The German note is a typical document," the Matin says. "In it are expressed the sentiments of a barbarous people who failed in a foray."

"The German government is again trying to quibble," says L'Homme Libre. "Still, while humiliating itself, it does not admit its defeat, but one feels it treat the end of its resistance."

Transylvania Roumanians Form Legion to Aid Italy

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—Information was received today by the Roumanian legation that Transylvania Roumanians captured by the Italians while in the Austrian army have organized a Roumanian legion and now are fighting with the Italian army against their ancient enemy. The legion numbers 12,000, and was organized under the supervision of the Roumanian national committee of Paris.

Allow Deported Belgians to Return to Country

ROME, Oct. 22.—Baron von der Lancken, chief of the German political department at Brussels, has informed Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, that when the Germans evacuate that country the deported Belgians and political prisoners will be spontaneously released, according to the Stefani version of Romano, the semi-official vatican organ.

GIRLS FORSAKE TINSEL OF STAGE FOR WAR'S LABOR

"Flu" and Patriotism Put Overalls on "Big Time" Teams.

Preceding the date when the lost legion of stage door Johnnies and the bald headed row began damning the Spanish influenza as well as the late kaiser, life's cup brimmed with joy and prosperity for the Thornton sisters—Babe and Dolly—singing and instrumental team; the Hewitt sisters—Helene and Babe—and Miss Peggy Powers, solo violinist.

Doubtless there are others affected by what Dr. Hammond might term the "bla" quarantine; but no press agents are at hand to enumerate them, and Miss Dolly Thornton is. The Thorntons, Miss Helene Hewitt, and Miss Powers are now employed as munitions workers at the factory of the Winslow Bros. company at 4600 West Harrison street. They are helping make shell shocks for Heines.

Helping Win the War.

"It was like this," explained Miss Dolly, omitting the conventional "Listen" and smoothing out a shapely wrinkle in the left blue denim overall. "We wanted to do something to help win the war. We decided we could do most effective work in a munitions plant, and so here we are."

"You remember our act," said Miss Babe Thornton, "'Bits of Harmony,' it was——"

"We did a dancing act," said Miss Helene Hewitt, "Pantages; the big time back east——"

"How's the factory work?" asked the reporter.

Morning Newspaper Hours.

"Well, we go to work at 3 o'clock in the afternoon," said Miss Dolly Thornton, "and quit at 11 at night—eight hours. It's great sport. We inspect the shells; Helene and Peggy Powers check them. We all wear overalls like these." The reporter made a note of them and Dolly continued:

"I understand lots of the talent is—or is it are?—signing up for different kinds of work at the federal and state employment agencies since the 'flu' quarantine—especially the chorus girls—taking the places of men called away to war, you know."

Then some one announced that Ruth Hansen, formerly with "The Little Lad," was now cashier at the Trojan Laundry, 2834 Broadway; Ann McCashin, munitions work; Marian Calloway, late of "My Soldier Girl," in a glass factory in Ohio.

Much Labor Needed.

A statistician pointed out that the influenza is accentuating the labor famine; that Illinois is called upon to supply 6,250 unskilled laborers by Nov. 20 and does not know where to find them; that 900 toolmakers and machinists are needed in various parts of the state, in addition to 400 at Rock Island.

Miss Hewitt during the interruption was endeavoring to gain the ear of the reporter to conclude her remarks. It was just as he was departing after he had jotted down that 900 members of the bartenders union had gone to work in war plants, that she succeeded.

"You might also add," she said, "that I do commercial posing."

VICTORY MUST BE COMPLETE, KING GEORGE SAYS

Tells French and Belgian Deputies Success Is Within Reach.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—[British Wireless Service.]—King George received a large deputation of interparliamentary delegates at Buckingham palace yesterday. It included thirty British representatives, twenty-two from France, eight from Italy, and one from Belgium.

"More than two years have passed," said the king, "since the first visit of the interparliamentary committee of the French chambers, when you and we were in the throes of a conflict the issue of which then seemed to many foreign observers uncertain, although you and we never doubted that our cause, being the cause of right and humanity, would prevail. Now the armies of France, Italy, Belgium, and the United States, side by side with ours, are driving the enemy before them, his forces shattered, his people clamoring for peace.

Must Be Complete.

"Victory is within our reach. And we are all agreed that it must be a complete victory. I congratulate you, senators and deputies of Italy, on the prospect which opens before you of recovering the regions guarded by those Alpine snows where your valiant soldiers have won such glory—regions inhabited by men of your own race and speech, who have long desired to be united to free Italy.

"And I congratulate you, senators and deputies of France, on the approaching restoration of provinces torn from you forty-seven years ago, which have never wavered in their loving attachment to France."

Old Animosities Wiped Out.

King George recalled that while between Great Britain and Italy there had always been peace, it was once otherwise, as to Great Britain and France, who had waged many a war in former centuries. "But," he continued, "in those days there was always on both sides a spirit of chivalry which forbade bitterness, and when peace came it was made with a sense of mutual respect. We in England have always continued to admire the brilliant gifts of France, gladly owning our intellectual debt to her, as we own also our debt from even earlier days of the versatile genius of Italy.

"That respect and gratitude have furnished a solid foundation for the affection which has now grown up between your nation and ours.

Security for Europe.

"Consecrated by the memory of the heroes who have fallen fighting side by side in this war, animated by the same devotion to their countries and to justice, this affection and this memory are pledges of our future concord. Such concord and cooperation will, we trust, become, under the blessing of Providence, a security for peace not only to our own peoples, but to all free Europe, which is longing to return to the paths of tranquillity and progress.

"And you, sir, representative of the senators and deputies of Belgium, we rejoice to see you also upon our soil. Your country, wantonly and wickedly attacked and devastated, has had terrible suffering to undergo, but the day of your deliverance is at hand. The British people, which has felt for you through those sufferings, has admired the constancy and loyalty of your people and the devotion of your soldiers, and earnestly wishes for you a return of that prosperity which you enjoyed and which you gallantly sacrificed at the call of duty."

U. S. TO FIX STYLE AND COLOR OF MEN'S HATS DURING WAR

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Fashions in men's hats will be made in America from now until the end of the war, under the conservation agreement entered into between the domestic felt hat manufacturers and the conservation division of the War Industries board.

Not only will the fashion be determined but it will perforce be followed, for no foreign models which conflict with the hat standards as to style, shape, color, and weight, are to be imported while the agreement is in force. Men and boys, under the ruling announced today, must forsake imported novelties and conform to the American standard. Felt hats for women and girls have not, so far, been included in the agreement.

Colors of men's hats will be confined to black, two shades of brown, two shades of green, and two shades of steel pearl and Belgian. The use of linings is discouraged for the spring season of 1919 and will be discontinued in the fall. There are to be no elastic cords, buttons, or eyelets, and stickers will not be permitted in the tops of soft hats. No hats are to be made with turned over or turned under edges.

BRITISH FLYERS BOMB METZ; 7 PLANES MISSING

LONDON, Oct. 22.—An official statement on the operations of the independent air forces issued tonight says:

"Two of our squadrons attacked the barracks and railways at Metz Monday. Another squadron set out to attack the factories in Rhine towns, but the formation was split up by the dense fogs. Seven machines have not up to the present been located. Monday night we dropped heavy bombs on the stations at Mezieres."

PARIS, Oct. 22.—An official report issued tonight said:

"Our bombing planes last night dropped 18,500 kilos of projectiles on important railway junctions and in particular on the stations at Longuyon, Stenay, Hirson, Vervins, Marle, Montcornet, Rozoy-Sur-Serre, Previsy-Sur-Serre, and Liart. They noted a great number of hits on their objectives, following which fires started in the stations at Longuyon, Hirson, and Rozoy."

GERMANS READY TO OUST KAISER —IF NECESSARY

Can't Allow Ruler to Delay Peace Single Day, Press Says.

GENEVA, Oct. 22.—Peace must not be delayed a single day on account of the Hohenzollerns if they are an obstacle to it, declares the Volks Freund of Karlsruhe, which also is permitted to speak of the disappearance of the superstitious belief that the emperor was chosen to rule by divine right.

The Schwabische Tagwacht says that everybody is now convinced the allies will not accord Germany a cheap peace "but if the glory and power of imperial Germany is the price, the German people are ready to pay."

In permitting such items to leave Germany the German censorship apparently is preparing public opinion for coming events.

Expect Plea to Fail.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Some of the German papers indicate they expect Germany's peace plea to fail. Theodor Wolff, in the Berlin Tageblatt, says "great difficulties will arise if President Wilson or the allies refuse the armistice proposed by Germany."

"In Paris, New York, and London there is now talk about military necessity," Herr Wolff continued. "We won't deny our own politicians spoke with violence in the same strain when they thought possession of Paris was in sight."

The article concludes:

"Should President Wilson demand the impossible, we must reckon with a continuation of the war."

Germans Seeking Guilty.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 22.—German provincial and socialist newspapers continue their campaign against the "chief culprits" responsible for the war. The Frankische Tagepost of Nuremburg, the first paper in Germany to demand openly the abdication of the emperor, declares that the accession of the crown prince is entirely out of the question.

"The German people is searching for the guilty," says the Volks Zeitung, the organ of the Nuremburg socialists. "The pan-Germans and Junkers are silent today, but we do not forget that they are the great war inciters in Germany, that they remain the support of social and political reaction, and that they are a menace to the future healthy development of the German empire.

"To Gallows with Guilty."

"The pan-German policy has gone bankrupt, but unfortunately it has led the German people to disaster.

"To the gallows with the guilty, whoever they may be!"

The Socialist Arbeiter Zeitung of Vienna urges the German Socialists to punish the "chief culprits" without mercy, adding:

"When the German soldiers return home from the trenches after four years of unparalleled suffering there will be a reckoning for the people who have led them to this catastrophe. The German people will sweep away the junkers and take its own destiny into its own hands."

REILLY'S BUCKS IN ANNIVERSARY CALL ON THE FOE

Save Up Powder for Visit; Their Calling Cards of Three Inch Steel.

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 22.—The first anniversary of the sailing of Reilly's Bucks to France was appropriately celebrated several days ago on the mud hills of Lorraine by sending into the Hun trenches and gun positions some ten thousand three-inch steel compliments in honor of the occasion. Altogether it was a gay day for the Illinois artillerymen, who had sort of saved up the powder for the big celebration.

As a grand opening for the festivities, Capt. Patterson's Battery B from Chicago loosened up a couple of thousand high explosive fireworks outward bound. Then Battery A of Danville did a very gallant bit of spectacular work by dashing up, unlimbering, and going into action under fire. The doughboys were just going over the crest of the hill under an intense Hun fire and it was necessary to bring up the battery. A came up on the gallop and swung about and unlimbered its caissons as if being fired at by a movie camera rather than by German shrapnel.

Loved by the Infantrymen.

No artillery outfit ever was loved by the infantrymen like the men of the Rainbow division love these leather leggings boys of the Hundred and Forty-ninth. In bad moments when the gray green hordes tumbled out of the mist towards the Rainbow trenches the Illinois artillerymen never failed with their deadly barrage. When the boche big guns pounded the front lines these Hundred and Forty-ninth lads never hesitated to answer with a retaliatory fire, and next day for long hours would search out the enemy guns and silence them. When there was a dangerous raid to undertake and a path to be made through the deep wire entanglements the artillery would cut the opening path for the doughboys. This was one part of the anniversary celebration yesterday.

Here Ede for Scheying.

D battery of Chicago was to cut the wire and Lieut. Arthur L. Scheying of Chicago, a son of an official of the health department, was chosen to be the forward observer. Ordinarily it is possible to observe such a fire from a post, doughboy trench, or tree, but owing to the extreme rolling terrain it was impossible to see the wire belt except from away out on No Man's land. It was far from a birthday job.

Early on the morning of Oct. 18, before the mists raised, Scheying, with two privates, crawled out on No Man's land, dragging the telephone wire with them. In a few minutes they found a deep shell hole on a tiny raise, with the enemy wire entanglements in the line of vision below. An hour later the fog curtain rose, and through the telephone Scheying whispered an order for the fire to open. All day H. E. shells sang over their heads, bursting in the wires, which were less than a hundred feet in front of them, while the officer phoned corrections. Now and again some Hun sniper would send over a bullet, ordering them to keep under cover. They could only crouch lower in the shell hole and wait for night. With the darkness they were able to crawl back to the American lines and then tramp two kilometers to their gun positions.

Review Their History.

On anniversary day, when I visited them, they were stretched along the little hillsides, half hidden in the dripping, brown tinted underbrush. A camouflage wire netting was stretched over the French seventy-five—with its dull, gray outside, but the breech and lining shining like a marine engine. Here and there were squatted pup tents that turned the drizzle, but were useless against the cold and dampness. It was such a day as they have back home late in November; only here there was mud everywhere, with no warm homes and porcelain bathtubs to go to. But with the job unfinished, these men would rather be here doing their full bit than in steam heated state.

Like one half joyously, half regretfully turning the page of an old diary, they traced the regiment's history since the October day when they sailed from New York. Nov. 1 they landed at St. Nazaire and went into an artillery training camp until the latter part of February. During these months the officers were sent to special schools, while the training was carried on under French instructors.

On Washington's birthday the regiment saw their first real action at Domjevn, in Lorraine, where they joined the infantry brigades division. This was supposed to be a quiet sector, but soon the Germans started their preparations for their big March drive and the Rainbow sector received its full share. After a month the division was sent overland to the Baccarat sector, where it remained until June 21, seeing considerable service and suffering some casualties. It next moved to Champagne, and on Independence day was put in the front line at Chalons. On July 15 it helped stop the great German drive that was to start the present German defeat.

In Several Desperate Battles.

On July 18 new orders sent the Rainbows into the big allied push, and during the succeeding weeks these Illinois men, with the rest of their division, went through some of the most desperate fighting of the whole war. Ourcq, Vesle, Meurcy farm, Sergy, Seringes, and Nesle will be honor names as long as the history of Illinois men is read. Here some of their bravest and best gave their lives and many others part of their blood and bone.

Early on the morning of Sept. 12 these men helped to lay down the crushing bombardment that won the St. Mihiel salient for the Americans at so little cost. With this job finished they were rushed to their present sector on Oct. 5. For days and nights since, through the rain, mud, and cold and German shells and gas, the Illinois men have stuck with the guns.

Have Lost Their Colonel.

For their present at least they have lost the colonel who brought them over and who had been with them through these trying days, but he's in the same division, commanding an infantry brigade, so he's still half theirs. Some day they may have another name, but today they still like to be called Reilly's Bucks.

CHARMED LIFE

Chicagoan Hit by 6 Inch Shell, but Escapes Death.

Frank P. Stretton.

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 22.—One of the most remarkable escapes from death recorded in the whole war was that of Capt. Frank P. Stretton of Chicago, who was one of the few United States cavalry officers who has led mounted troops into action in France. While on an advanced mounted patrol Capt. Stretton was struck by a six inch shell, which tore off part of his left arm. The shell exploded fifty feet beyond, making a hole ten feet deep and twenty-five feet wide.

Another officer riding close beside Capt. Stretton had his right arm torn.

[Capt. Stretton is a son of the late Matthew Stretton. His mother lives with Mrs. John A. Nolan at 837 Home avenue, Oak Park. He formerly was a member of Col. Milton J. Foreman's First cavalry, now the One Hundred and Twenty-second field artillery, but resigned to enlist with the United States cavalry when the First was converted into an artillery regiment. He has been in France several months.]

SENATORS FAVOR U. S. DEMAND OF FULL SURRENDER

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The chief effect of the latest German note at the senate was to increase the emphasis with which senators have been demanding "unconditional surrender."

Senators were almost a unit today in viewing the note with dissatisfaction and a majority of those interviewed believe it should be met with flat rejection. Not for a moment should the note be considered as a basis for the kind of peace the United States is fighting for, senators declared.

Lodge Calls Note "Trap."

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader of the senate, voiced the general sentiment of the senate when he stamped the German note as "a clumsy trap."

"It seems to me unbelievable that any one should be taken in by the last German note," Senator Lodge said. "It is varnished over with a little false flattery, directed to the president and the people of the United States, which can deceive no one. In other respects it is a clumsy trap, awkwardly set, to involve us in diplomatic discussions—of all things to be avoided at this moment.

"They desire to discuss details. What they call details are the vital issues of the war. No attention need be given to their denial of illegal and inhumane actions.

Women Carried Off.

"Only a day or two ago they took 15,000 women and girls out of Lille when they abandoned that city. Is that a military act, in accordance with international law? They wish to refer the destruction of our women and children on the Lusitania to a neutral commission.

"The American people do not intend to have the decision of any commission on such a question as that. The American people have not forgotten the direction of the German minister at Buenos Aires to 'sink and leave no trace.'

"Of reparation—and it must be very large—there is not a word.

Would Demand Surrender.

"Of course, all they say about changing their government is pure camouflage. There has been no election in Germany. It is the same old reichstag, government by the same forces and interests.

"I do not think there should be a reply to this German note, but if there is, let it be simply that we demand the same terms which the allies forced upon Bulgaria—an unconditional surrender. 'Unconditional surrender' is easily said and will be understood by all the world.

"There is something repulsive in having the invaders of Belgium and the makers of the villainous peace which they forced on Russia and Roumania talking about justice and honor."

'I CAME BACK TO PAY OFF BOCHE,' ESCAPED U. S. FLYER SAYS

BY CAROLYN WILSON.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Oct. 22.—After wandering eight days in the heart of the Black Forest under terrible hardships and swimming the Rhine at one of the most dangerous and difficult points, Lieut. Harold Willis of Boston, one of the original members of the Lafayette escadrille, has arrived safely in Paris after fourteen months of imprisonment in Germany.

He tells a thrilling story of his escape, which was the third he has tried to make, this one being on a larger scale than any of the others and involving also the safety of thirteen other Americans who made the break at the same time. So far only three have reached safety, Willis, Lieut. Edward V. M. Isaacs of Chicago, a member of the United States navy, who was made a prisoner when the transport President Lincoln was sunk, May 30, and Lieut. George Puryear, an aviator, who came out alone the day before Willis arrived.

Elaborate plans had been made for the escape about a month ago, but unfortunately the camp commanders learned of it and the guard was doubled.

On the afternoon of Saturday, Oct. 4, it was decided the break must be made the following night before the full moon began if there was to be any possibility of getting away this winter. There were seventy Americans in the camp, of whom thirty were doctors, who felt that they shouldn't try to break away. These doctors and other Americans who preferred not taking the risk helped lay out the most minute plans.

Use All Nails in Camp.

Those preparing to escape were divided into four groups of four each and throughout Saturday night and Sunday they worked making bridges to throw from the windows of the barracks over the encircling wire or making rope ladders to climb over the wire. One of these bridges was at least fifteen feet long and Willis says laughingly that the entire camp will drop into pieces with the first wind, for there is not a screw or nail left in a single door or window jamb.

"To get the wire to make the short circuiting chains for the electric current we had nothing," Willis said, "until someone thought of taking out the wires that attach the slate tiles to those steep German roofs. We took out every single one of these and with the first high wind that comes that whole roof is going to go scuttling across the country.

"You see we had to have accomplices, who at a given sign would short circuit with wire weighted with heavy balls the electric lighting system as well as the electric currents in the wires surrounding the camp. Others were detailed to do the wire cutting and others to create diversions at distant corners of the camp.

Makes German Uniform.

"In this whole affair from the moment we started until, more dead than alive, we got out of the terrible currents of the Rhine there hasn't been a single thing I would have changed. I was the leader of the squad which, instead of cutting its way out of camp cut its way into the inner partition, where the German guards were kept, my plan being that when the guards were called out to pursue the escaped prisoners we four would tear out with them. I made a German uniform which to be sure would only have passed muster at night out of a raincoat with the German insignia and numerals and a huge belt buckle out of a tin can. I carved a dummy wooden gun and had a German cap.

"Of course for months previously I had been making detailed maps of the region and laying up food, carefully planning every slightest detail.

"We cut our way in as had been arranged. Signals by this time having been given the guards were hastening into their boots, one nervous man shooting frantically straight into the air. Two suspicious Germans came up and asked me what I was doing. I only yawned prodigiously and swore at being waked up. I had counted on the gates being opened right away and my slipping right out, but it was locked and the patrol were all going into the guardhouse to report.

Slips Out with Guards.

"I hung around without going in, therefore exciting even more the suspicion of these men, but suddenly the first patrol of sixty men marched out and the gates were thrown open. I slipped in at once with the first three or four in order to give the other three Americans, who evidently were somewhere around in the dark, a chance to get out with this first bunch if possible.

"We tore off around the corner, every one but me shooting wildly. As soon as we got around the end of the camp toward the forest I lit out across the field as fast as I could and up a terribly steep hill.

Flees Amid Bullets.

"They started firing at me immediately, realizing that I was one of the men they wanted. I ran as fast as I could, but, weighted down with an extra food supply, tarpaulin, maps, and everything we had felt essential to bring, it was impossible to go fast. Finally I just gave it up and walked up the hill, the shots singing all around me. I finally was relieved to find that I didn't mind their shooting at me, for with fourteen long months of imprisonment a fellow is always afraid he may have lost his nerve.

"I doubled right into the forest and Isaacs and I had arranged a series of possible rendesvous, and at one of them I shortly met him. He had been the first over the ladder of his group, with another aviator right behind him. When he jumped he landed on all fours not six feet from two sentries, both of whom fired immediately, but in their excitement never touched him.

"That is one thing we have always counted on—the absolute confusion of the Germans in the face of an unexpected occurrence. We neither of us know the fate of any of the other prisoners, but I am very much afraid several of them were shot, for they were hemmed in between two wire fences with no chance to make their quarters and hide their identity or get away. The Germans would ask nothing better than to kill them.

Former Companions Killed.

"I remember when I made a previous attempt with five French prisoners that we were caught before we could cut through and three who didn't succeed in making the barracks were never seen again, so they surely were shot.

"Isaacs and I then set out through the Black Forest, which was the most terrible experience you can imagine. We could only go at night and the climbing was terrible. There were ravines and impenetrable thickets in many places, and the only way to break through was to work our way in backwards.

"Cold and hunger was the worst of all. Of course we were drenched to the skin every minute of the time, and nothing but the splendid physical condition which I had insisted on maintaining ever since I was taken prisoner got me through. We traveled at night only. Then it soon became impossible to go through this densely wooded district at night and we then traveled only at dusk and at daybreak, in spite of the dangers, for everywhere there were children out picking up bits of wood and acorns.

Are Almost Trapped.

"If ever we needed proof that the German birth rate isn't declining we got it on this trip. We used to lie in the midst of a thicket into which we had cut our way, and the last day, when we were at the Rhine, we were right over a cliff in a thicket beside which ran a path where all the village came walking. In the middle of the afternoon Isaacs was lying stretched out, fortunately with a German cap over his eyes, when a man pushed his way into the thicket and looked right at Isaacs.

"Our hearts sank at the thought to be thus above the promised land and be caught right at the threshold. We made haste to get away, spreading pepper carefully to destroy our trail.

"That night was the hardest of all. We were on the top of a straight precipice above the Rhine, with no access to the river. We crawled on our hands and knees for hours avoiding sentries. Once I had the bad luck to kneel on a crackling bush, and whang! not six feet from me was a sentinel with a pocket lamp as bright as a battleship searchlight, but pointing in the other direction, thank heaven! At that moment we thought we were lost.

Battle Way Over Rhine.

"At last we found a gulley to descend by and, step by step, feeling for rocks which might slip, for twigs which might break, we took hours in making that last descent.

"Once in the Rhine we had to undress in the midst of the terribly swirling current, which washed us continually back to the German shore. Isaacs had said he couldn't swim well, and I felt sure he would drown, for the currents and whirlpools were worse than you can imagine, but he had evidently underestimated his effort, and at last, more dead than alive, we were washed up on Swiss soil just in time, too. I couldn't have stood it another five minutes, for with all that exposure and hunger I was pretty well in.

Comes Back to Fight Again.

"One of the worst troubles was keeping Isaacs cool. He wanted to kill every German he saw. You see, he had gotten awful treatment in the camp.

"I didn't come out to take an instructor's job or to sit in the rear or to go to America to lecture. I risked my skin in order to get right out and get another boche before it is too late. We owe them something and I won't be happy unless I get right out again.

"Of course I'd like best to be with our own army, but the transferring is bound to take time and I want action. So the best thing is probably to go out right away with the French and plug at it until the transfer comes.

"The French have been wonderful to me, and I certainly do like working with them."

Conditions in Germany Bad.

Willis said that food conditions in Germany were very bad and that the guards he talked with all professed to be bitterly opposed to Prussia. There have been enormous strikes of which no record has been printed in the allied papers. This year's crop, particularly of potatoes, has been unbelievably poor.

Willis said the American army should instruct its men in the rules applicable to prisoners, as our men arrive at prisons perfectly ignorant of their rights and are shamefully treated because they don't know their rights. All the other nationalities know what they have a right to demand and are not imposed on, except the Russians, who are treated like dogs.

Foe Admits Being Beaten.

Our officers are getting about 60 marks a month, of which Germany holds out 55 for food, leaving spending money of 5 francs only.

All Germans now frankly admit that they are beaten and wish for nothing but the speediest peace, without the horrors of invasion. Young men in training near Willis' camp were pitiful—so small, so undernourished, and so pale. They look like grammar school children.

Willis will leave for the front tomorrow morning to study the latest improvements which have taken place since his capture and to perfect himself in the knowledge of all tricks in order to be ready to go out again in a fortnight.

213 TOTAL LOST ON TICONDEROGA; ONE CHICAGOAN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—Two officers and ninety-nine enlisted men of the army lost their lives in the sinking of the American steamer Ticonderoga in the war zone Sept. 30. This announcement today by the war department brought the total loss of life to 213, the navy having previously reported ten officers and 102 men of the crew dead and two officers carried off as prisoners by the enemy submarine that sent the vessel down.

More than half of the soldiers lost on the Ticonderoga were from Ohio. The list also gave the names of fourteen privates saved. The officers lost were Lieut. Joseph W. Freeman of Wetumpka, Ala., and Cleveland C. Frost of Berea, Ky., one Chicagoan, Mike Owslanowski, was among those lost.

BRITISH TO OUST ENEMY ALIENS WHEN WAR ENDS

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 21, via Montreal.—Replying to Kennedy Jones in the house of commons, Andrew Bonar Law, chancellor of the exchequer, stated today that a government committee had carefully considered the question of preventing enemy aliens interned in England from remaining here after the war.

Replying to Gen. Croft, Home Secretary Cave said that if the German government sanctioned further brutalities to British prisoners this would amount to a deliberate rejection of our recent demands and the government would be entitled to take immediate action.

SHOW RECORD OF MEN'S ADVOCATE IN STRIKE CASE

The charge that W. E. Trautman, leader of the employés of Eugene Dietzgen company, who appealed to the war labor board for adjustment of grievances, boasted of having been in twenty-two strikes and of having been indicted seven times, once for treason, was contained in a letter introduced by Dudley Taylor, counsel for the company, at the hearing yesterday.

Trautman admitted in testimony to having been chased out of Germany for agitating in behalf of workers, and also that ten years ago he had been an I. W. W. organizer. He said he had turned against that organization. He was shown to have been indicted with "Big Bill" Haywood and Etter in connection with the Lawrence, Mass., strike and to have figured in the McKees Rock and other strikes.

It is charged that Trautman, an employé of the Dietgzen company since January, had caused the employés to make demands after the company voluntarily granted wage increases, had caused workers to return extra pay, and appeal to the labor board. Since April wages have been increased 40 per cent, and in addition the company has agreed to collective bargaining.

Officials of the company denied intimations by Trautman that the company was "German owned." It was declared that it is entirely owned by Americans, the principal owners being employés in important positions, who share in the profits. The company was started in Chicago and is an Illinois corporation.

In rebuttal of charges that there has been conflict with the government over war orders, it was said that the company is operating 80 per cent of capacity for the government.

BUTZ ADDRESS, EXPOSING KAISER, SENT TO HUNLAND

The government is taking active steps to enlighten the people of Germany as to this nation's real war aims. Recently an address to the German people issued by the New York branch to the Friends of the German Democracy was distributed by American airplanes over the German military lines and in German cities, and clandestinely introduced into Germany through Switzerland. Another address, prepared by Otto C. Butz, president of the Chicago branch of the society, has recently been issued and sent abroad.

Mr. Butz's address sets forth clearly the war aims of America tears the veil of autocratic German pretensions away and reveals the Hohenzollern dynasty and its junker supporters in their real light of exploiters of the German people. It is written in German and has been sent abroad by the hundreds of thousands by the federal government, and is being distributed in the same manner as the address by the New York branch.

MEANS CARRIES AMBROSE CHARGE TO WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Gaston B. Means, who was acquitted of the charge of murdering Mrs. Maude A. King at Concord, N. C., a year ago, came to Washington tonight with his attorney and, inviting newspaper reporters to his hotel, announced that he was seeking a congressional investigation of the activities of C. B. Ambrose, a department of justice operative, in connection with the murder trial.

In a formal statement Fred J. Coxe of Wadesboro, N. C., attorney for Means, said:

"It is charged by friends of Means, who was acquitted after a sensational trial conducted for the prosecution by John T. Dooling of New York and Hayden Clement, solicitor for North Carolina, that his indictment and trial came as a result of the action of Ambrose, who claimed at the time to represent the United States department of justice, for which he worked. Means and his associates claim that they will be able to prove that Ambrose acted for the Northern Trust company of Chicago, which as trustee of the estate of the late James C. King has in its possession approximately $9,000,000."

A. Bruce Bielaski, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, said that Ambrose was on leave when he acted in the Means case.

"Mr. Clabaugh, in charge at Chicago, allowed Ambrose to leave because Means had been a German agent, and we wanted to find out if there was anything of value to us in the case that touched on Means' connection with the German government," said Mr. Bielaski.

RED CROSS MEN QUIT RUSSIA; U. S. CONSULS IN JAIL

STOCKHOLM, Monday, Oct. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—The last of the American Red Cross workers in Russia reached Stockholm today after a four day trip by train from Petrograd. The party consists of Maj. Allen Wardwell, Capt. J. W. Andrews, and Dr. M. Davidson.

United States Vice Consul Leonard, who held the post at Astrakhan, and Vice Consul Burri were both in jail at Moscow when the Red Cross party left, but the Norwegian legation had been assured that they would soon be released. These two officials were first imprisoned at Tsaritsin, and have been prisoners for nearly two months. They have undergone great privation.

Food conditions are rapidly growing worse in Petrograd and Moscow.

Roumanian Mob Wrecks Jassy Government Office

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Violent demonstrations have occurred in Jassy, the temporary capital of Roumania, according to advices received here. A mob broke into the offices of the Isailor Gazetta, the government organ, and the printing plant was demolished.

HURLEY DROPS SHIPYARDS FOR DELAYING WORK

Fifteen to Twenty Plants to Get No More U. S. Contracts.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—Because of their inefficiency, from fifteen to twenty shipyards now building wooden ships for the Emergency Fleet corporation will not receive any additional contracts.

In making this announcement tonight Chairman Hurley of the shipping board said there would be no curtailment of the shipbuilding program, the step being taken to save material, labor and money.

Workers to Other Plants.

As fast as the yards complete the ships now under construction the workmen will be sent to other plants, which constantly are in need of additional labor. Mr. Hurley would not make public the names of the yards, nor did he indicate when the closing of them would begin.

The yards held to be inefficient have failed to deliver contract ships within the time or at the price specified in the contracts, Mr. Hurley said.

Result of Investigation.

The shipyards are of two ways each on the Atlantic and gulf coasts. Contracts were let to these yards for the production of a large number of woodan ships, but work lagged from the start so that no promises of delivery can be definitely made.

Director General Schwab and Vice President Piez of the fleet corporation will confer with Mr. Hurley on Thursday. Mr. Schwab has been dissatisfied for some time with the status of the wooden ship program and it now appears that the failure of these fifteen yards to produce formed the basis of his complaint.

WILSON AWARDS U. S. MEDALS TO ALLIED CHIEFS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—Marshals Foch, Joffre, and Haig and Gens. Petain, Diaz, Pershing, and Gillian, chief of staff of the Belgian army, were awarded the distinguished service medal today by President Wilson, acting as commander-in-chief of the United States army.

Gen. Pershing was directed by Secretary Baker to act as President Wilson's representative in presenting the medals to the military leaders of the allies.

Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, former chief of staff and now assigned to the inter-allied war council, will represent the president in presenting the medal to Gen. Pershing.

"Nonessentials," Maybe, but They Dig for U. S. War

New York, Oct. 22.—Members of the "Hoboes" union who assembled on the Bowery today for a flag raising in honor of 30,000 of their fellows now in the service, dug deep into their tattered pockets and, at the exhortation of Jeff Davis, their "king," bought $700 worth of war savings stamps to back America's fighting forces. One "itinerant worker" purchased $20 worth.

CHICAGO YANKS RARIN' TO FIGHT ON GERMAN SOIL

Old 1st Cavalry Officer Writes of Verdun Engagement.

Chicago boys of the Prairie division who won the praise of French generals by their brilliant exploits at Verdun want no peace by negotiation.

"We want to get into Germany and give her some of the stuff she gave France and Belgium," is the way they put it.

Their views are expressed in a letter written by First Lieutenant J. W. McCarthy of the One Hundred and Twenty-second artillery, the old First Illinois cavalry, to Boetius H. Sullivan, attorney for the custodian of alien property, immediately after the successful advance of the division on Sept. 26, described in an article printed in THE TRIBUNE last Monday.

Story of Eyewitness.

The letter contains a spirited account of the battle and is the first story of an eyewitness to be made public in Chicago. Part of the letter follows:

"Our work on the line has been rather unexciting; however, recently we took part in a very important drive which was a howling success. The French claim it was the most brilliant work of the whole war. If this battle is a criterion by which to judge the merits of both sides you can safely say that it is only a matter of months until we have the Hun licked to his knees. It was the first time we came into actual contact with them and the result did surprise me. Those poor wornout gawks can no more stand up against our peppery kids than I could against all of them. The drive netted some very important ground and was well studded with very nasty hills that could have easily been defended against great odds, yet there was practically no resistance.

"The Germans laid down and were very anxious to be taken prisoners. They even dress for the occasion and surrendered by whole companies. At the beginning of the war the French captured one of these hills and held it for eight minutes. It cost them 32,000 men. Our losses in this drive were, practically, nothing, which goes to prove that things have changed considerably.

Hard to Catch Up.

"The battle started at 5 o'clock in the morning and within five hours the infantry had advanced beyond the range of our guns. We limbered up to follow them. When on the road we met a doughboy bringing back some prisoners and he said to me: 'If you want to catch our fellows you will have to gallop,' and he was right. We marched as fast as we could for two days, but each time we went into position we found that the infantry had advanced beyond our range. We are here to lick the boche and want to do it in a hurry and get home. There is no question in our minds as to the outcome of the war. It makes me mad when I look on the work they did here. It seems that the prettier a place was the more dastardly was their work of destruction. Our army is in wonderful shape. Each man takes it as a fight personal to himself and the only order necessary is 'hold back.'

"That old stuff of German efficiency is foul ball and merely propaganda. We can give her aces and spades and make her look like a piker.

"An incident that struck me funny was when a batch of prisoners were being sent back and past our column. Among the prisoners was a high ranking German officer. One of our men hollered, 'Hello, Ludendorff!' The German straightened up to give us a withering glance and hesitated a bit. The guard gave him a crack with his bayonet and said: 'Move on there, Jack.' American eh?"

CZECHS' VALOR TO BE BLAZONED THROUGH CITY

Billboard Campaign Will Be Used to Impart Nation's Facts.

The Czech question will soon be made vividly plain to Chicago. In a few days from ten large billboards located in largely traveled streets maps of the historic boundaries of the Bohemian nation, together with pictures of what the Czecho-Slovak forces are doing in Europe, will greet the eyes of Chicagoans.

This was decided yesterday by a committee from the Bohemian National alliance, consisting of Executive Secretary Vojta Benes, Secretary Jaroslav Zmrhal, and August Petrtyl, a well known Bohemian artist, and a subcommittee of the war committee of the Union League club.

The war savings committee has given leave to use the boards. The Union League club committee approved the project and assured the representatives of the alliance its cordial support.

Show Ethnic Boundaries.

The maps will show the ethnic boundaries of the peoples held in subjection by Austria-Hungary, and will be prepared by artists under direction of Mr. Petrtyl.

The alliance also made public yesterday the text of its telegram to President Wilson. It told of the landing of the Pilgrims in America, among whom were some Bohemians, fleeing from Austrian subjection, which was completed that year, to find religious sanctuary and liberty of conscience. It recited the gratitude of both the Czecho-Slovaks and the Jugo-Slavs for the president's pronouncement favorable to their freedom made in his reply to the Austrian peace plea.

Resolution in Congress.

The text of the resolution which Representative A. J. Sabath will introduce in congress, following the editorial suggestion that there be a national day of greeting to the new Bohemian nation, was also made public yesterday. It touches on the history of the Czechs under Austrian domination for the last three centuries; the recognition of the Czecho-Slovak state by the allied nations; the sacrifices of the Czechos in this war, and the recent Bohemian declaration of independence.

It asks that Nov. 8, the anniversary of the battle of White mountain, where the Bohemians made their last stand for freedom from the Austrian yoke, be observed nationally "as a day of welcome and greeting to the new sister republic, Czecho-Slovakia."

UNANIMOUS AMERICA.

Mr. Wilson may confront the duty of answering the German note with a heartening confidence in the unity of opinion among his own people. There are very few occasions when the American press has given out a more unanimous verdict than it did yesterday. It spoke as one voice and its word was "no."

Herr Solf's suggestions, whatever their significance as evidence of conditions in central Europe, fall far short of being satisfactory from the American standpoint, and the British and French press are equally unsatisfied.

In this situation American opinion, we believe, is not so much concerned with what the present German government offers as with the nature of the president's reply. There is fear in some quarters that the president will be tempted by his humanitarian abhorrence of war and his anxiety to find some way to end it, into entering into a protracted diplomatic exchange with Berlin. The prolonged submarine controversy and the Mexican imbroglio are recalled.

THE TRIBUNE does not share this fear and does not think the course of the exchanges thus far gives ground for it. The president would have pleased American emotions by treating the German approach with brusque conclusiveness. But his task is not to please our emotions. It is to bring the maximum of pressure to bear on the enemy to the end of the earliest possible victory. His is the task of the responsible statesman, not that of the orator.

We have no doubt that the president is fully awake to the dangers of entering upon diplomatic conversations with Berlin before the essentials of peace, the peace we are determined upon, are secured to us. He knows the opportunities of which the resourceful and unscrupulous diplomacy of Berlin will be quick to avail itself to produce friction and division over details of settlement. We can rely upon his Scotch acumen not to be lured from the threshold of real victory into the entanglements of discussion with statesmen he has no reason to trust.

In short, the German note calls for no elaborate response and we are sure will get none. The American people, like the American president, are committed to the high purpose of this war and are not to be duped into failure or compromise. Until Germany gives us full guaranty of our objects, the unified and victorious armies of the allied cause will fight on. The American people and their allies will not talk with Germany while her army is able to impose terms or exact concessions.

The German note asks that America approve "no demand which would be irreconcilable with the honor of the German people and with opening a way to a peace of justice." The president we know will approve no such demand, but the road the German people must travel to a peace of justice is the road of restitution, reparation, and renunciation.

The president has warned Germany in unmistakable terms and repeatedly that we shall not treat with the forces that made this war.

The American people are absolutely at one with him on this. Either the German people themselves must make way with these forces or we will destroy them. That is the only choice remaining to the German nation.

The president has solemnly declared for a peace of justice. The American people are absolutely at one with him on this also. But the peace of justice is a stern justice and the German people must abide its decisions. What they have sown under the false leadership to which they consigned themselves and their fortunes, they must now reap.

This is the resolution to which our army and our people are pledged and we do not doubt the president, who has so eloquently expressed our purpose, will as vigorously carry it out.

SOUTHERN CONTROL OF CONGRESS.

A Democratic congress means a congress controlled by the south. Control by the south means the placing of national questions in the hands of the most intensely partisan section of the country.

This control has meant a disposition of public questions by the narrowest of sectional considerations. It has meant ineffectuality in national enterprises. It has tended towards extravagance in the appropriating of money, waste in the use of it.

The south does not pay the bills of the nation, but through Democratic control it controls the disposition of the nation's funds. Its appetite for revenue is extraordinary. Its ability to obtain the use of money is even more extraordinary.

When issues of national importance arise the south interposes its veto. It does not matter that President Wilson should stand behind the issue and urge its importance. The southern Democrats oppose him, sometimes obstinately without success, sometimes with success.

With a great deal of earnestness Mr. Wilson asked congress to submit the suffrage amendment, and he put his urgence upon the broadest ground of domestic and international equity and expediency. The south defeated him.

That was a recent and conspicuous instance of the opposition which the south has for national policies urged by the president. The south denied the constitutional army measure, which, if it had been adopted, might have put the United States on the way towards preparation for the war. President Wilson had to submit. He had to lose Secretary of War Garrison because he did submit.

Southerners important in congress because they are Democrats and because the Democratic party controls congress have opposed and modified many administration measures. This volume of opposition is much greater than the opposition which has come from the Republican party in congress.

Now, the Democratic politicians say that the Republican party is one of opposition to the war. The opposition to war measures has had its origin in the Democratic party. Dent, for instance, as chairman of the house committee on military affairs, opposed the operation of the draft when Republicans rescued this government measure and brought the powerful but recalcitrant Democrats to time and made them cease an opposition which might have been fatal to the nation's military plans.

The north, whether Democratic or Republican, cannot be imposed upon by the outrageous cry that a Republican congress would be opposed to the war purposes of the nation. The war purposes of the nation will be served by a Republican congress.

TRACTION FARES, PRESENT AND FUTURE.

It cannot be repeated too often that the traction ordinance is not a proposal to raise the rates of fare. If that were its purpose, whether directly or indirectly, the public might well be on its guard. But one of the fundamental principles of the new ordinance is to keep fares at the lowest possible point; the ordinance was, as a matter of fact, evolved with the idea of furnishing service at cost.

There is no one in Chicago who believes that the present management of the surface and elevated lines ever pretended to furnish service at cost. These properties have been operated by private corporations for private profit; and while, like many other corporations, they have not been oblivious of their obligations to the public, nevertheless we know they were and are in business primarily to make dividends for the stockholders.

To assume, therefore, that the continuance of the present management is any assurance that the 5 cent fare will be retained is to disregard entirely our experience with the traction companies. In a great many other cities the traction companies have already obtained permission from state or federal authorities to advance their rates, and under present conditions there is no reason to believe that the local companies could not likewise obtain authority to charge more than 5 cents. Some of the opponents of the new ordinance, however, are asking us to believe that the Chicago companies will be kind enough to let us ride indefinitely for 5 cents, even if by ordinary corporate standards they are losing money.

One of the fundamental provisions of the new ordinance is that both surface and elevated lines shall be operated by a board of public trustees which has no financial interest in the properties. The personnel of the first board has been chosen by agreement, but after ten years every member will be appointed by the city council. The board will be entirely independent of the present owners, and will owe them no responsibility except to see that certain fixed charges are paid.

These charges amount to approximately 6 per cent. The surface lines have in recent years been earning nearly 7 per cent. The elevated lines have been earning less, but their profits have been gradually increasing and they hold a strategic position because of their long term franchises. Consider, too, that government officials have expressed the opinion that in these times public utility corporations are entitled to 8 per cent return on their investment.

Now, the new ordinance provides that every cent of revenue in excess of the fixed charges noted above must go into service. No part of the revenue may be used to increase stockholders' dividends or to increase the salaries of executive officials. The board of trustees is authorized to advance fares only when it can be definitely shown that the revenue is not sufficient to meet fixed charges and operating expenses. But the theory of the ordinance is that the 5 cent fare shall be continued and that the public shall be given the additional privilege of a free transfer between the surface and elevated lines.

We have so far considered only the question of rates of fare, but the new ordinance was planned primarily to provide for the building of subways, the extension of elevated lines, and a general rehabilitation of our entire traction service. The opposition to the ordinance has nothing to offer but the prospect of constantly deteriorating service at constantly increasing cost to the public.

PUSH THE BOULEVARD LINK.

There is on the ballot for the election on Nov. 5 a proposition providing $3,000,000 in bonds to be used in the completion of the Michigan boulevard link. It should receive the heartiest support.

Thus far the city has, after engaging numerous obstacles, completed the widening of North Michigan avenue to Chicago avenue. The pavement is now in use, a broad, utilitarian highway. The abutments for the double deck bridge have been completed, and, with the exception of one or two buildings, all the wrecking in Michigan avenue between Randolph street and the river has been accomplished.

Property owners have spent great sums in the employment of architects to provide a general plan of façades along the link and they also have been assessed to the extent of $3,413,957.71, which is being used to pay for the improvement.

Owing to the war the prices of materials have passed beyond those considered maximum when the project was mapped, and thus it becomes necessary to provide against this rise. In all probability the link will be ready for use in another year.

There should be no delay in the great work already greatly advanced. Voters should not fail to mark "Yes" on their ballots and thus urge the boulevard link on to completion.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT MR. LODGE DID.

[From the Boston Herald.]

Have you ever stopped to consider how different the history of the United States might have been had the voters of Massachusetts decided two years ago to retire Henry Cabot Lodge in favor of his Democratic opponent? It is not too much to say that in the last week Senator Lodge, by the promptness and vigor of his utterances, and their highly convincing appeal, has focused the attention of the country on an issue which—once understood—could not fail to sweep the nation. To that stroke the president himself has now yielded. Verily, there are times when it is vital in its historic consequences to elect a man of brains to public office, and to keep such a man there when once in place and in command of his faculties. In fact, we know of no times when it is wise to elect small men when we can obtain big ones.

THIS world cannot be operated on a sentimental basis. The experiment has been made on a small scale, and it has always failed; on a large scale it would only fail more magnificently. People who are naturally kind of heart, and of less than average selfishness, wish that the impossible might be compassed, but, unless they are half-witted, or are paid agitators, they recognize that the impossible is well named. Self-interest is the core of human nature, and before that core could be appreciably modified, if ever, the supply of heat from the sun would be so reduced that the noblest enthusiasm would be chilled. The utmost achievable in this sad world is an enlightened self-interest. This we expect of the United States when the peace makers gather. Anything more selfish would be a reproach to our professed principles. Anything less selfish would be a reproach to our intelligence.

COMEDY AND CIVILIZATION.

(From Meredith's essay on Comedy.)

The German literary laugh is never a laugh of men and women in concert. It comes of unrefined abstract fancy, grotesque or grim, or gross, like the peculiar humors of their little earthmen. Spiritual laughter they have not yet attained to; sentimentalism waylays them in flight. This treble Dutch lumbersome of the Comic spirit is of itself exclusive of the idea of comedy, and the poor voice allowed women in German domestic life will account for the absence of comic in dialogues reflecting upon life in that land.

Eastward you have total silence of Comedy among a people intensely susceptible to laughter, as the Arabian Nights will testify. Where the veil is over women's faces, you cannot have society, without which the senses are barbarous and the Comic spirit is driven to the gutter to slake its thirst. Arabs in this respect are worse than Italians—much worse than Germans; just in the degree that their system of treating women is worse.

There has been fun in Bagdad. But there will never be civilization where Comedy is not possible; and that comes of some degree of social equality of the sexes. I am not quoting the Arab to exhort and disturb the somnolent East; rather for cultivated women to recognize that the Comic Muse is one of their best friends. They are blind to their interest in swelling the ranks of the sentimentalists. Let them look with their clearest vision abroad and at home. They will see that where they have no social freedom, Comedy is absent.

But where women are on the road to an equal footing with men, in attainments and in liberty—in what they have won for themselves, and what has been granted them by a fair civilization—there, and only wanting to be transplanted from life to the stage, or the novel, or the poem, pure Comedy flourishes, and is, as it would help them to be, the sweetest diversion, the wisest of delightful companions.

Tribulations of the Fourth Estate.

The editor seemed to be up against it last week, when he had his forms ready to print, as his pressman sent word by his sister that he was sick and could not help us. But we have never been beaten yet in doing that which was right and had to be done. So we began to seek help. The doctor came over and tried it awhile, but the trick of the trade was too much for his profession, and about that time in walked Professor Curtis of our school along with Judge E. Bassett. The Prof. had experience in days gone by and had not lost his cunning, so he doffed his coat, vest and collar and placed the papers in position, E. Bassett did the circular work, and the Prof. worked the lever, while ye editor folded the papers, and thus, in right good time, the dilemma had been solved, and the editor had passed another weekly stone in his journalistic journey in life. Pete Smith inked the type forms, real good too.

NOW'S THE TIME TO SWAT.

THIS is the season for fly killing. In hot weather flies are willing to stay out of doors. The air is warm enough for them, there is plenty of food, and their birthplaces are there. Maybe flies have some fondness for the old homestead, the place of birth. However, it is more probable that the birthplace presents the attraction of a plentiful food supply—just the flavors, odors, and associations most desired.

When the weather begins to get cold they either die or they get inside the house. They cannot put on winter flannels, therefore they spend hours looking for open doors and cracks in screens. Unless they are warm they cannot search for food and the hunger impulse drives them in, for flies are not provident insects. They instinctively know that some females must get inside else the species will end. One fly killed at this season results in more good than a million killed in June.

No fly swatting campaign ever reduces the fly level as low as it is reduced by cold weather. It would not require an impossible amount of effort exerted this fall to wipe out entirely the seed stock.

It is well to bear this in mind. While a few flies are transported long distances, the statement that a fly dies within 100 feet of his birthplace is true. Therefore the woman who thoroughly cleans out the seed stock this fall can expect to have her home about free from flies next summer.

Another reason for fighting flies now is that this is the typhoid season. The flies that have been bred out of doors and have never been near a house in all probability are free from typhoid and other disease producing germs. He is unspeakably filthy, it is true, but he cannot make a well baby sick or lay a strong man low.

The dangerous flies are those which get into the houses. The fly in the house, always dangerous, is doubly so when folks are suffering from typhoids and diarrhoeas and the season for these diseases will not be over until about Christmas. In fact, in most places October is the month of maximum typhoid and there is the possibility that still other diseases may be fly borne.

For killing flies at this season fly swatters are excellent. Sticky fly paper placed in sunshiny places and warm spots is effective. Strips or strings of sticky paper hung from the ceiling will catch large numbers. Fly traps and fly poisons are less effective than in the warmer weather. Fly repellants, fairly effective in warm weather, are not worth much when cold weather is the urge. A little later it will pay to go fly hunting with a swatter in the warm recesses around the house.

RUBBING WILL HELP.

H. P. B. writes: "I had a stroke of paralysis, disabling my left side, and can walk a little with the aid of a crutch, but my left leg is very stiff and the ankle and foot swell in the daytime. Also, the leg cramps at night. Kindly tell me if rubbing or taking anything will help."

REPLY.

Rubbing, massage, passive exercise, and use of the affected limbs will prove very helpful. Keep at it.

ANOTHER PASS.

Mrs. W. T. G. writes: "I wrote you some time ago inclosing a remedy for cramped limbs. It did not appear. I am an old lady 84 years young and am writing without glasses. This remedy did not originate with me and is not a permanent cure, but will relieve instantly every time. Take a bandage or handkerchief, place around the limb, draw tightly, giving two or three sharp jerks, and the cramp is gone. I am not in the habit of giving advice to M. D.'s, and you no doubt know of something better, but I have noticed in your column requests for relief from cramp. People about here who have suffered tortures think the remedy is invaluable. Please don't set me down as an advocate of catnip tea. When I know of a good thing I like to pass it along."

REPLY.

I have passed this remedy along several times, but I am willing to do it again.

TOO HEFTY.

L. G. writes: "Will you please give me a day's menu? I weigh at least thirty pounds too much. How much do you think I will reduce in one month?"

REPLY.

Breakfast:
One orange.
Two eggs.
Two thin slices toast.
One cup coffee without sugar or cream.
Luncheon:
One cup thin soup.
One cracker.
One large helping fish.
Ten stalks asparagus.
One medium boiled potato.
One tablespoonful butter.
One raw apple.
Dinner:
Twelve raw oysters.
One helping roast beef.
One-half cup boiled string beans.
One medium potato.
One tomato with vinegar and salt.
Some cheese—one cracker.
One cup coffee without sugar or cream.

As you will note you eat meat and watery vegetables in such quantities as you wish. You will eat very little bread, no cereal, no pastries, and no sugar.

If you do hard physical labor the quantities specified are not large enough. You should reduce about two pounds a week.

NOSEBLEED AND COLD.

Mrs. F. T. writes: "1. Can any harm result from a severe nosebleed which has been caused by an attack of sneezing due to a cold in the head? Was it due to the cold?

"2. Also would like to know if heartburn is caused by eating sweets."

REPLY.

1. An ordinary attack of nosebleed does no harm. Nosebleed during the course of a cold is not unusual.

2. Heartburn may result from eating sweets. If you have heartburn correct constipation, get more exercise, and regulate your diet.

LEST WE FORGET

American prisoners in Germany are profiting by the fact that the German government feels at this time less certainty than it did four years ago as to the outcome of the war. The incredible brutalities to which prisoners of war were subjected in the days when the Germans, drunk with success and with their bloody march across Belgium, entertained no apprehensions of any reprisals, have been tempered by a diminishing belief in complete German triumph and by the knowledge of the increasing number of Germans who have themselves been taken prisoner.

But even threats of reprisal made by France and England had little effect in 1914 and 1915.

Fully 100,000 have died in German prison camps and thousands were killed as they lay wounded on the field in obedience to an order issued, among others, by Brig. Gen. Stenger, on Aug. 26, 1914, that "To date from this day, no prisoners will be made any longer. The wounded, whether armed or defenseless, will be executed. Not a man will be left alive behind us."

Even after the orders were changed and prisoners were taken, they were murdered, more slowly but none the less surely, by their captors.

Robbed of their clothing, loaded in cattle cars, and starved and abused en route, many of the French, British, Belgian, and Russian prisoners never lived to reach the prison camps. The malignant cruelty of the guards and of the men and women who flocked to the stations to insult and mock the wounded men warned them of what was in store for them at their destination.

"During the long and painful journey to Wurzburg," states a British officer, "a mob collected at Aeschaffenburg on the Bavarian frontier, about 5 in the morning, and behaved with great rudeness and brutality. The sentry was telling our visitors that one of the Englanders had been shot in the face and badly disfigured, whereupon a German soldier pulled the poor fellow out of the sleeping mass on the floor and sat him upon a seat, the others standing around pointing at the poor mutilated face with coarse, jeering laughter. The young Irish soldier sat patiently through it all. His blind eye was a running sore, the torn cheek in healing had left a hideously scarred hollow, and the nose and mouth were twisted to one side. His condition would have stirred pity in the heart of a savage, yet these Germans laughed and jeered."

"German Red Cross women refused us any food," states Maj. R. F. Meiklejohn of the Royal Warwickshire regiment, "calling us insulting names, and spat toward us, telling us they would give nothing to English schweinhunde."

At Wittenberg, when the typhus epidemic broke out in 1914, the German staff, military and medical, fled precipitately, and not until Feb. 10 were any doctors brought to the stricken camp. When six English physicians finally were admitted they found the rooms unlighted, the patients alive with vermin, men able to stand walking aimlessly about, and others lying on the floor in all stages of the disease.

The German policy in regard to prisoners is set forth with complacency in the circular distributed last May in Spain, in which the claim was made that more than 50,000 British had been made prisoner, and the following statement added:

"Although to these figures the English oppose 134,806 German prisoners taken by them on the western front, it must be remembered the English treat their prisoners with notable kindness (blandura notoria), while the regime imposed on the English prisoners by the Germans is one of extreme rigor; so that the Germans, with a small number of prisoners, have secured a much superior moral effect. Besides, to the 2,264 officers and 51,325 soldiers must be added the several thousand English prisoners that have died in consequence of disease, scanty food, and other accidents in German concentration camps."

A CHICAGO REUNION AT THE FRONT

BY CHARLES N. WHEELER.

[Special Correspondent of The Tribune.]

AN AMERICAN CAMP IN FRANCE, Sept. 17.—Julius Rosenwald, who has been touring the American camps over here, delivering messages to the boys from the governors and high Washington authorities, is one who says quite frequently now, "How small this old world is after all."

He had just finished speaking to a large crowd of doughboys at one of the larger camps and had read Gov. Frank O. Lowden's message—and it is a message with a good ring in it and a healthy kick.

"Now, boys," said Mr. Rosenwald, with a big smile, "I'd like to shake hands with every one of you, for I just love every man with all my soul and heart. But I can't speak to each boy personally, although I would like to see some of the Illinois boys, and Chicago boys in particular."

He climbed down from the box and was surrounded by quite a mob at once. They came from all corners of Illinois and had a regular reunion for a while.

Mr. Rosenwald saw a fine looking six footer standing near him, smiling, and apparently enjoying it all.

"Hello, son," said Rosenwald, grasping his hand, "are you from Illinois, too?"

"Better still," the soldier replied, "I'm from Chicago."

"The deuce you are," exclaimed Rosenwald. "Then you probably know me."

"I ought to," the doughboy smiled, "I am a witness to your will."

"The——" Rosenwald just got the aspirate out, but did not pronounce the full word. "Well, what do you know about that?" he ejaculated. Then he shook his hand again and observed, "Guess it was a pretty good will, wasn't it?"

The doughboy happened to be Mr. Marks, a law student in Lessing Rosenthal's office in Chicago. Mr. Rosenthal drew the will and Marks is one of the official witnesses.

"GOT YOURS, TOO?"

No attention will be paid to anonymous letters.

CANNOT GIVE CLASSIFICATION.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—My home is in the state of Washington, where I owned a large ranch. Three months ago I was called in the draft. After being in camp only one week I was honorably discharged for physical disability. My brother is taking care of the ranch, but, having a place of his own, writes that he cannot give the proper attention to both. Do you think I will be called again? H. S.

You may be called for special or limited military service. The best course to take is to call on your local board, and they will advise you your status.

TWO ALLOTMENTS.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I have two sons in the army upon whom I depended entirely for support. Can they both make me an allotment and will the government add an allowance? We need the support. I. H.

Both sons may make an allotment and apply for the government allowance.

SUBJECTS OF POLAND.

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—How is a subject of Poland classed—that is, a Pole who has not taken out any United States citizenship papers? G. W.

Class 5E, alien enemy.

SOLDIER'S INSURANCE.

Red Oak, Ia., Oct. 18.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—In case a soldier is killed what steps should the parents take to receive the insurance payments? M. B. R.

The beneficiaries should write to the bureau of war risk insurance, Washington, D. C., and give full name, rank and organization of the soldier, and state what notice has been received as to his death, and ask when and to whom the insurance will be paid.

MOTHER'S ALLOWANCE!

Chicago, Oct. 18.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—An enlisted soldier has made an allotment of $15 per month to his mother. How much government allowance can a mother get? S. Q.

Ten dollars per month.

RED CROSS AMBULANCE DRIVER.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Will you please tell me where I may apply for a position as ambulance driver for the Red Cross? Also, I should like to know if I am eligible. I am 18. What pay is received by a driver? L. W. B.

Boys who have become 18 since Sept. 12, 1918, and are experienced drivers are eligible for service in this section of the Red Cross. Application should be made to room 516 Peoples Gas building, city.

The pay is $40 per month and expenses.

120 DAY LIMIT.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 18.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I have been in the army since Dec. 17, 1917, but through neglect I failed to take out any insurance. When I applied for it a few days ago they informed me that it would be impossible to issue a policy to me because it is the rule that no man can be insured after 120 days have elapsed after his enlistment. I should like to know if this is correct. SOLDIER.

You have been correctly informed. A man is given 120 days in which to apply for insurance, and it cannot be taken out later after.

INSURANCE AFTER THE WAR.

Camp Vail, N. Y., Oct. 17.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—If a soldier is discharged at the end of the war in good health will he be given an opportunity to continue his insurance at the same rate?

Insurance may be continued, but must be converted to other form of insurance within five years after the close of the war, in accordance with the regulations which will be issued.

MAN OVERSEAS.

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 18.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Kindly inform me to whom I should write for a mailing address of a soldier overseas. Last May I received a card stating that my brother had safely arrived overseas, and since then I have received no word from him.

Mrs. E. M. H.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

As but limited space can be given letters in this department, writers must confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Unless they give us their full names and addresses their letters will not be considered. No manuscript will be returned unless the writer sends postage for that purpose.

"GERMANY AND RUSSIA."

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I want to commend you on your timely editorial entitled "Germany and Russia," which appeared in Sunday's issue, and I sincerely hope that there will be more editorials like that written not alone in THE TRIBUNE but in other papers. Unless at the peace conference the opportunity for the German military power to grow in strength is to be destroyed, there will be no permanent peace for the world. If anybody believes that all the Von Bernhardis, the Treitschkes, the Hindenburgs, the Ludendorffs in Germany will have died or will become pacifists at the close of the war, he is mistaken.

Germany, if given a chance in the east, will recuperate within a comparatively short time, and the "Schrecklichkeit" of the last four years will be repeated in a much more intensified form. At Brest-Litovsk Germany prepared herself for such eventuality; she participated Russia to make her weak and to make her and the separated states, Ukrainia, Lithuania, Finland, her vassals.

It is almost impossible for one to comprehend the far reaching results of this arrangement. Therefore as a condition precedent to a peace conference the Brest-Litovsk agreement should be declared null and void and of no effect. Russia should be established as a state on liberal democratic principles—a government responsible to the representatives of the people. It should be borne in mind that the anarchy in Russia was brought about by the traitors, Lenine and Trotzky, and German money for Germany's benefit; that baneful influence should and must be destroyed.

N. L. PIOROWSKI.

THE QUESTION IN NOVEMBER.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It is not a question of supporting President Wilson on Nov. 5. He is in office to stay. The question is about supporting the Democratic party. That party is taxing the north in the interest of the south because it is its policy to spend the billions through Democrats and in making improvements, building up factories, shipbuilding plants, and cantonments in the south. Chicago is getting nothing. The policy of the Democratic party is to confine cheap labor to the south, where labor unions are weak or nonexistent, and to foster high price labor in the north, not in the interest of labor, but to drive industrial and manufacturing plants into the south. The Democratic party desires to perpetuate the policies of labor and taxation which have built up this country and to carry us back to that period before the civil war when the south dictated national policies because it was united on the negro question. It is united again on that question. Our November choice is if Republican policies prevail, will carry the country to political and economic leadership of the world. J. M. LOCK.

THE SCHOOLS AND THE EPIDEMIC.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The board of health of Chicago in dealing with influenza could well profit by the experience of other cities, particularly in reference to the closing of schools. The closing of the schools in Highland Park materially aided in stopping the spread of the disease until it has practically passed over the city. It is a common occurrence for a child to bring the disease home from school. In caring for the sick child the remainder of the family come down with the disease, and the parents often die with it.

The closing of the public schools for one week would undoubtedly save many lives in the city of Chicago and avert a great financial loss. F. S. MEAD.

CROWDED STREET CARS.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Why don't the authorities limit the number of passengers for each street car during this epidemic? They are permitted to hard the public on the cars the same as usual. L. ECKSTEIN.

SHAKING RUGS.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In this town of apartment buildings where families are compelled to live in layers, like figs packed in a box, it would seem that a common regard for consideration for the comfort, cleanliness, and health of one's neighbors would impel the upper layers to refrain from shaking dusty rugs and bedding over the railings of their porches. But such is evidently not the case, for in a walk of perhaps a dozen blocks this morning I saw no less than four housewives thus engaged in whacking the dust out of their own belongings and allowing it to enter the open doors and windows of the unfortunate below.

I wish the board of health would consider this matter of enough importance to take up. A SUFFERER.

Increase Rates on High Earnings; War Profits Clause Revised.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—Surtaxes adopted by the house on individual net incomes below $100,000 would be lowered and those on incomes in excess of that amount increased under amendments to the war revenue bill adopted today by the senate finance committee.

A tax of 1 per cent would be levied on incomes between $5,000 and $6,000, with an additional 1 per cent surtax for each $3,000 in excess of that amount up to $100,000, when the rate would be 33 per cent.

A graduated scale is then fixed under which a surtax of 65 per cent would be levied on net incomes exceeding $1,000,000.

30 Per Cent on War Profits.

The change in income surtaxes was the second decided revision made in the house draft of the bill at today's session, the committee previously having voted to eliminate the alternative system of taxing war and excess profits in favor of a general rate of 30 per cent on war profits and a reduced tax on excess profits.

The revision of income surtaxes, members of the committee said, will provide a more uniform rate, while the reduction in revenue will amount to less than $25,000,000.

As revised by the senate committee, incomes of from $100,000 to $150,000 would pay a surtax of 52 per cent, and those between $150,000 and $200,000 would be taxed 56 per cent. From $200,000 to $300,000 the rate would be 60 per cent; $300,000 to $500,000, 63 per cent; $500,000 to $1,000,000, 64 per cent, and above $1,000,000, 65 per cent.

Adopt McCormick Plan.

The committee inserted a provision in the new revenue bill providing that income and excess profits taxes hereafter may be paid in three installments. The first one-third is to be paid with the filing of the return, the second one-third on the 15th day of the second month thereafter, and the last third on the 15th day of the fourth month after filing day. This is expected to carry all of the money into the national treasury by July 15.

Last spring at the request of business men of Chicago and the directors of the Liberty loan campaign in the middle west, Representative McCormick of Illinois introduced a bill to provide for deferred payments. At that time Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo opposed the plan.

In order to protect small corporations under the war profits schedule the committee late today inserted an amendment providing that in no case shall the tax "be more than 35 per cent of the amount of the net income in excess of $3,000, and not in excess of $20,000, plus 80 per cent of the amount of the net income in excess of $20,000."

REAL HUNTSMEN AT GAME RESORT BAG 11 BIRDS

"Mamma" Schroeder is the swellest hand hen cook on the north side, and, as for her wild goose with oyster stuffing—well, huntsmen and persons handy with guns make Tony Schroeder's saloon, 3401 North Halsted street, their objective every fall.

Last night a new kind of gunman—a two-gun man—took charge. When Tony stuck his head through the door at the rear he saw "Mamma" Schroeder, Louis Ruts, the bartender, and nine customers lined up, hands in air. Tony slipped back and called the Town Hall police station two blocks away. When the police arrived the eleven victims were still facing the wall, but the bandits were gone.

Lieut. Charles Jean Drossner

LIEUT. DROSSNER OUT, IN, AND THEN OUT AGAIN

Lieut. Charles Jean Drossner, also known as Carl Drossner, got out of jail yesterday after bewildering hours. Lieut. Drossner has been identified as the nephew of Adolph Drossner of Drossner & Mayer, cigar manufacturers of San Francisco.

The lieutenant, who wears a monocle, has a glass eye, and whose "trigger finger" is missing, was released after a young woman, a Miss Violet O'Connor, had put up the $50 that he didn't have to still the voices of his creditors.

Lieut. Drossner was released by Judge Windes on a writ of habeas corpus. Then Robert Cantwell Jr., his attorney, spied Detective Sergeant Johnson outside the courtroom door with a paper in his hand.

He asked the court for protection, but Judge Windes replied that he lost jurisdiction upon releasing him. As Lieut. Drossner stepped outside he was rearrested on complaint of the Blackstone hotel.

Finally, after Miss O'Connor's check had been cashed, wiping out his debt, he was released again. The girl said she barely knew him, having merely met him when both were working for the Liberty loan.

Lieut. Drossner told reporters Monday night that he had been entertained by many of the finest people in Chicago, citing as an example, Judge Pam. Judge Pam last night called up THE TRIBUNE and said that Lieut. Drossner had never been in his home.

Next Liberty Loan Likely to Come March or April

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—Long before the fourth Liberty loan figures have been counted up, or the honor flags have been entirely distributed, or the money paid in preparations have been started for the fifth Liberty loan, which will probably come in March or April.

CHINATOWN GETS RUDE AWAKENING FROM ITS DREAM

Revenue Men Seize $20,000 Worth of Contraband Opium.

Old Chinatown buzzed with the clack of oriental tongues last night and felt-soled feet scuttled through the darkness of South Clark street alleys in excitement, for revenue agents came. Moreover, they ripped up floors and snapped back secret panels and carried off $20,000 worth of contraband opium.

Of late Chinatown has been visited by an epidemic of dreams. The scent of hasheesh and yen has been wafted on the winds. The sleep of the poppy fields seemed to settle down subtly upon the men from the Far East.

Big Smuggling Reported.

Rumors got out that there had been a great smuggling, that a shipment of opium worth many thousands of dollars had somehow got past the watchful eye of government agents. Rumor said that it came in via the Canadian northwest and was passed in by drug runners by way of Detroit.

Government detectives got busy. One of these, on a tip, visited Wing Alloy, 503 South Clark street, believed to be the brains of the smuggling gang. The agent, posing as a dope seller, asked if he could buy $3,000 worth of opium.

Cache Is Located.

He reported that Wing Alloy referred him to Ching How Tung, 510 South Clark street, and to Nig Tom, a sort of confidential man for Wing. The supposed buyer located the cache in the building at 519 South Clark street and the raiders quickly surrounded the structure.

Arrested in the building in the raid were, besides the above named, Wing Long, Fong, Pong, Sit g Hop, Chin Hin, and Chin Yen. All lived within a few doors of the raided building. The Chinese will be arraigned probably today before United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason.

Thief and Policeman Leap from a Speeding Auto

Policeman G. H Dibbie of the South Park police, stopped an automobile at Thirty-first street and Michigan avenue last night because it carried no lights. The driver's answers aroused Dibbie's suspicions and he ordered him to drive to the Cottage Grove avenue station. At Twenty-sixth street near Cottage Grove avenue, the driver jumped out with the car going at full speed. He escaped. Dibbie also jumped and escaped injury. The car was wrecked. It had been stolen from E. F. Hammon of 1543 Sherwin avenue.

They are J. Horace McFarland of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the American Civic association; John L. Richards of Chicago, director of recreation and playgrounds of the south park system and former Wisconsin football coach; John Voll of Zanesville, O., president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, and Mrs. Evan White of Boston, former head of the Peabody house. A representative employer to be chosen in a few days will complete the personnel.

"COFFIN GHOUL" INQUIRY BRINGS ARREST OF TWO

New York, Oct. 22.—In an investigation here of the activities of alleged "coffin ghouls" the federal authorities today caused the arrest of two undertakers on charges of attempting to defraud the government.

The undertakers, it is alleged, by representing to relatives of dead soldiers that the government coffins in which the bodies were shipped home were "cheap pine boxes," secured orders for expensive caskets and then appropriated the government coffins, in some cases reselling them to the government. The "cheap pine boxes" cost the government $36 each.

Several more undertakers are said to be under investigation here.

ARREST MAN FOR POSING AS U. S. LAND OFFICIAL

Charges of swindling foreign born residents of Chicago on a large scale made against S. H. Dobson, a promoter, became known yesterday with the announcement of his arrest at Tulsa, Okla., on a warrant sworn out by Philip J. Barry of the local federal bureau of investigation.

Dobson, who formerly had offices at 30 North Dearborn street, is alleged to have posed as a United States land office official, and under that guise to have swindled numerous Chicagoans in land deals.

Those specifically named as victims are Charles Pognackmk, 1500 West Seventeenth street; Valentine Stebe, 1657 West Twenty-second street, and Frank Michalick, 659 North Carpenter street.

Dobson has been under federal investigation since in 1915.

EIGHT WOMEN, FOUR JACKIES, SEIZED IN RAID

Eight well dressed women, four bluejackets from the Great Lakes Naval Training station, and a civilian were seized last night when detectives from the office of the second deputy raided the apartment of Mrs. Thomas Jensen at 4713 Kenmore avenue.

The men and the women are said to have been drinking in the flat, which was the scene of a raid some time ago.

EAT GRAPEFRUIT, FOOL THE ORANGE GROWER, ADVICE

Retail market: Oranges, two for 25 cents.

Influenza victims who find that they are compelled to pay exorbitant prices for oranges, which they use as a remedy, are urged by Sol Westerfeld of the conservation division of the State Council of Defense to buy grapefruit.

"Grocers are forced to pay $18.50 a case for oranges," said Mr. Westerfeld yesterday. "The average case contains 150 to 170 oranges. I have been present when grocers refused to pay the price on the ground that they would not be a party to robbing the public.

"The public does not need to pay tribute to the California orange growers, or whoever it is who is responsible for the excessive charge. Grapefruit from Florida is just as beneficial for influenza, and good grapefruit can be bought at 10 cents each. The trouble is that we are now using the late oranges. The new crop will not arrive for several weeks. The visible supply of California was only 200 cars a week ago and the normal consumption is about 200 cars a day."

Horace C. Gardner of the United States food administration said last night that he and his associates are without jurisdiction in the case of small dealers. Small dealers are charging $1.50 a dozen at present for small oranges.

AMMONIA BLAST KILLS THREE.

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 22.—Three lives were lost, a score of persons were hurt, and property damage of $500,000 was caused today by the explosion of a tank of ammonia in the basement of the four story building of the Fort Smith Coffee company.

"They are twenty-nine reasons why a new congress should be elected that will not follow the present Democratic leadership.

Calls It "Horrible Mess."

The real financial experts among the Democrats have not hesitated to express their alarm over the incompetency displayed by congress in wrestling with the money affairs of the nation. John J. Fitzgerald of New York, who resigned from congress a year ago, was chairman of the house appropriations committee from the time his party came into power in 1911. All told he was on the committee as member and chairman for sixteen years, and he had the reputation of knowing more about the financial condition of the United States than any other member of the house.

Last year he arose in congress and, in speaking of the muddling under the "pork barrel" system, said:

"Whenever I think of the horrible mess that I shall be called upon to present to the country on behalf of the Democratic party I am tempted to quit my place.

"Band of Treasury Looters."

"I am looking now at Democrats who seem to take amusement in soliciting votes on the floor of this house to overturn the committee on appropriations in its efforts to carry out the pledges of the Democratic platform. They seem to take it to be a huge joke not to obey their platform and to make ridiculous the efforts of the members of our party who do try to live up to the promises they have made to the people.

"Nothing will be more pressing in the future than the financial problem of the United States. . . . If I placed my political fortunes above my sworn duty under the law I would not attempt to carry out the promises of the Democratic platform, but I would place myself at the head of this band of treasury looters upon every occasion."

Warning to Senate.

In the senate, too, Senator Martin of Virginia, head of the appropriations committee, in a speech six months after we entered the war, sounded the alarm.

"I am determined," he said, "to appropriate every dollar that is necessary, but the time has come for us to scrutinize most closely the extravagant—I am almost tempted to say the reckless—estimates that are pouring in on us from the administrative departments of the government."

The President's Plea.

Shortly after that the president, in his message of a year ago, repeated the warning. He said:

"It will be impossible to deal in any but a very wasteful and extravagant fashion with the enormous appropriations of the public moneys which must continue to be made, if the war is to be properly sustained, unless the house will consent to return to its former practice of initiating and preparing all appropriation bills through a single committee, in order that responsibility may be centered, expenditures standardized and made uniform, and waste and duplication as much as possible avoided."

Secretary McAdoo, in urging a budget, had declared that congress had wasted $100,000,000 in twenty years on public buildings erected where they were not needed—this in the pre-war period. Swagar Sherley, who succeeded Mr. Fitzgerald as chairman of the appropriations committee, is a strong advocate of the budget system, but in the face of all these warnings the Democratic majority, which now asks to go back as "upholders," has still stuck to the old method.

McCormick Plan Finds Favor.

From time to time resolutions have been introduced for a reversion to the one committee plan, but they have failed, and last winter Medill McCormick put in a comprehensive plan for a national budget system, which the Republicans expect to make the basis for a readjustment of the financial system in case they get a majority of congress Nov. 5.

The present system, under which many committees handle appropriations, came into vogue only in 1885. At the beginning of the government a committee on ways and means handled the finances. This committee exercised jurisdiction over all bills relating to revenue and expenditure until 1865, a period of seventy-six years. During the civil war a new committee of appropriations was created, and up to 1885 it had exclusive jurisdiction over the bills to expend money.

In 1885 Samuel J. Randall, the most brilliant Democrat in congress, was chairman of appropriations. He was a great enemy of the pork barrel, and in one year he carved $30,000,000 of fat out of the bills. The pork artists came back by putting through a measure scattering the appropriation bills among several committees.

Fought by Republicans.

At the time the plan was denounced by such men as James A. Garfield, Joseph G. Cannon, Speaker Thomas B. Reed, and Senator Sherman, who was perhaps the greatest financier who ever sat in congress since the days of Alexander Hamilton. But it went through, and ever since the "pork barrel" has been the unsavory spot in congressional sessions, while continuous agitation has been made to apply a remedy.

Under the system finances, especially in war times, are chaotic. Instead of a centralized system with responsibility attached a mass of estimates of governmental expenditures is prepared in the executive departments by hundreds of chief clerks, bureau chiefs, and secretaries. There is no supervision.

Each is based on what the bureau thinks it can get rather than by what it needs. This mass of figures is dumped on the desk of the secretary of the treasury. It travels on in a mass into the house, where it is split again between eight committees, each in turn divided into subcommittees. These consider fragments of the estimates, add details of their own devising, and tack on suggestions obtained from any old sort of source.

Many Outside Bills, Too.

Then in addition to the departmental estimates and appropriations bills entailing the spending of money for buildings, claims, and other things come pouring in until all told twenty-nine committees have had a finger in the pie. This jumble is then generally rushed helter skelter, posthaste through congress in its expiring moments.

That is how it was in times of peace, and in time of war with an annual expenditure already twenty times larger than in peace times the procedure is increased in its possibilities of waste and extravagance.

Says Democratic Circular Insults G. O. P. Soldiers

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—"With the conclusion of the Liberty loan drive political activity again occupies us, and then as now every single act of the Republican party in state and nation shall be determined solely by how we can contribute most to the sum total of war good," declared Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, in a statement today.

"New Hampshire, Wisconsin, and Maine have sent their answer to the Democratic attempt to use the war for partisan political purpose; have replied that it is the people's war, and that the war must be kept out of partisan politics.

Degrading the War Spirit.

"Notwithstanding these defeats, the Democratic high command further pursues this policy. They are circularizing the country with a pamphlet entitled 'Why You Should Give Earnest Attention Right Now to Electing a Democratic Congress.' It is signed by an officer of that committee.

"In this pamphlet they say the election of a Republican congress would be 'a source of comfort and elation to the kaiser and his cohorts.' Against this reprehensible conduct by a responsible political organization I protest, not as a Republican but as an American. Such statements do no harm politically to the party against which they are directed. Shame on any political management that would seek to make a political asset out of the patriotic war spirit which now inspires this nation.

Insults Every Republican Home.

"I know that the great majority of the membership of the Democratic party does not approve of such conduct. It is an insult to every Republican home, from which so many of the boys now in France came; it is an insult to every soldier who fought for Abraham Lincoln.

"Against this kind of politics the Republican party shall not reply in kind. We appeal to all patriots, whatever their politics, to aid us in every possible way in our efforts to require that partisanship be kept out of the war and that the war be kept out of partisan politics."

President of Texas Oil Concern Dies in Hotel

T. J. Noble, president of the Noble Oil and Refining company of Houston Tex., died suddenly at the Great Northern hotel yesterday. The verdict of the coroner was that he had come to his death from organic heart disease. He had been ill for a few days with a touch of bronchitis. It was said at the hotel that he had come to Chicago "on a deal involving several millions."

Ed Fleming Is In Again; Hoyne's Pup, Not His Aid

State's Attorney Hoyne's Scotch Airedale pup, Edward Fleming, achieved a bit more of notoriety yesterday when he playfully bit Mrs. G. C. Hagan of 1426 Hyde Park boulevard on the arm. Mrs. Hagan said last night she would sue for damages. The last time Edward was in trouble was when some youth camouflaged him with green paint until he resembled a shamrock dachshund. It was alleged at that time that Edward had been gadding about the neighborhood too much.

LLOYD CHARGES U. S. HOLDS UP CAMPAIGN MAIL

Socialist Candidate for Senate Makes Public Complaint.

William Bross Lloyd, Socialist candidate for the United States senate seat from Illinois, made public last night a letter he sent to Solicitor General Lamar of the postoffice department, complaining that his campaign mail is being held up arbitrarily in the postoffice. In the course of the letter Mr. Lloyd says:

"Mailing tests conducted by my offices disclosed last week that my campaign literature is being held up and not delivered by the Chicago postoffice. I might be charitable and ascribe this nondelivery to the negligence and incompetence of the present management of the postoffice, a negligence and incompetence so great that every little while I have delivered to me by the postoffice issues of publications that same office has excluded from the mails, a negligence and incompetence so great that a man was recently executed in Ohio because the postoffice failed to deliver a reprieve that was mailed in about triply sufficient time.

Was Refused Information.

"Friday afternoon last I sent my representative to the Chicago postoffice. He called on the assistant postmaster and post office inspector, the superintendent of mails, the superintendent of city mails, all of whom refused to give any information and referred my representative to you as the sole source of information and determination of the case. And you, I have not heard from.

"I want to point out to you that time is the essence of this matter. Each day detracts from the value of this literature; in ten days or so it will be absolutely valueless.

"This refusal to give my representative information—this secrecy—has a most sinister look. This is a republic. The business of the postoffice is the citizens' business, and in the case of my mail it is my business individually and as a citizen. As both, I should have been furnished prompt information as to whether my mail was being held up, and, if so, why.

"And I am also entitled to a prompt determination of my rights and full and immediate information as to what is the decision by the postoffice as to them.

"People that work in secret are doing work that will not stand the light of day. This business of accepting mail for transmission while not transmitting earlier mailings of the same literature, while having no intention to transmit the mail accepted, and while refusing all information, looks to me on moral, if not on legal principle, remarkably like the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Points to Penalties.

"There are statutory penalties for misuse of the mails in the espionage law and other United States statutes. Why resort to the sneaking subterfuge of destruction by delayed examination? Why destroy the rights of citizens by the arbitrary acts of the officials of an autocratic bureaucracy subject to no law but their own will?"

Mr. Lloyd, continuing, says that he writes to make the record clear and not with any hope of having any effect on Solicitor Lamar or the postoffice authorities. He adds that he has received no reply to a vitigraphic complaint made last Saturday. He says his literature has been examined by competent counsel; that it is not seditious, and that it is perfectly mailable under the United States statutes.

VOTING MACHINE COMPANY, ELGIN, IN BANKRUPTCY

The International Voting Machine company of Elgin, into the organization and promotion of which went $100,000 of Elgin's money and some $400,000 to $600,000 of Chicago's cash, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the federal courts. Its assets are listed at $10,000 and its liabilities at $37,000.

Organized as a corporation capitalized at $1,000,000, its entire holdings have been sold to the Citizens' Voting Machine company of New York for the $10,000 that is now listed as its assets. The petition in bankruptcy was filed because there are suits amounting to $48,000 pending against the company.

The company was organized in 1910. In all only nineteen machines were ever manufactured. Twelve of these were sold to the city of Elgin. The patent rights for the machine are held by Robert E. Petrie of Chicago.

The first big contract on which the company bid was to Chicago several years ago.

NO PARTY LINES IN SENATE FIGHT, LEWIS DECLARES

Says Only Friends of Wilson Should Be Elected.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis inaugurated his active campaign for reelection yesterday by issuing, as a statement, the speech which he had expected to make in Rockford last night had not the influenza prevented political meetings.

In the preliminary portions of the statement Senator Lewis argued that political and factional lines as well as sectional divisions of the country, have been eliminated by war conditions and only involved matters of domestic affairs, reaching the argument that support of President Wilson and the present Democratic national administration is an immediate essential to win the war, prepare for the rehabilitation of the nations that are at war, and for the solution of economic questions that confront the United States.

Makes Claim for Himself.

Senator Lewis, in dealing with the direct political situation in Illinois, presented this claim for his own reelection and the defeat of Congressman Medill McCormick, the Republican nominee.

"I ask my fellow citizen should not the administration have the cabinet aids during those two years to which it has confided its policies in the war and to whom it has committed in evidence the execution of those policies in the legislative councils?

"Will we not aid the president to keep faith and to execute with the American people utterly the promises he has made them and to carry out the policies for which they have been fighting if we will enable the president to consult as his aids for the future course in the pursuit of these policies those particular men whom he has tried and proved, and who, by their acquaintance with every subject that has been taken up are equipped with all knowledge necessary to the complete service of the president and of their country along the lines of those policies which those particular trusted aids helped shape in form and helped express in legislative declaration?

Calls McCormick Critic.

"I ask my countrymen of my state what possible aid could it be to the president for them to select a gentleman with whom he had never counseled who, for reasons which the president had, never had the confidence of the president or the confidence of the administration—a gentleman who confessedly has remained the critic of all its political policies and never at any one time could anything to praise in any achievement of any of the departments of the administration in the execution of its war policies?

"I concede that my opponent has the right to be opposed to the president. He has the right to be his critic. It is his right to oppose the administration; it is his privilege to do all he can to obstruct it and to inaugurate and carry out any design with any help he can summon that can prevent success in the things that it undertakes. These are matters for each man's personal standard.

Asks Voters Question.

"But I ask my fellow citizens if such a man, having neither influence with the administration nor confidence of the cabinet or any member nor the trust of the president in any purpose or object, and who in addition to this is wholly ignorant of the policies and purposes which the president and the administration may have, and who in the nature of things must ever remain so—one to whom none of these personal confidences can ever be communicated—should a gentleman in such situation as now chosen by Illinois, where there is no political issue nor political party, and where the only question is, What servant can best serve the government at Washington and the state of Illinois in the United States senate at this perilous crisis and for the particular things which our countrymen have desired Wilson and his administration shall execute?

"I answer: Only those men—whether called Republican or Democrat—who in the senate, or in the house have by their course and conduct as the president's aids proven themselves forthright and worthy."

REPLY BY LEWIS APPEARS BEFORE CHARGE IS MADE

Republicans Accept Issue on Watson Speech Forced by Senator.

The campaign headquarters of Senator Lewis issued a statement last night that had to do with the speech made in the senate last July by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana. The Lewis headquarters reply was made, according to Republican understanding, on the assumption that the Watson speech had been circulated as an Illinois Republican campaign document.

"We have received only the copy of the Congressional Record that contained Senator Watson's speech," Republican State Chairman Smith said. "We have not issued it as a campaign document. Senator Lewis' spokesmen seem to have taken an early start. They protest too much. However, if Senator Lewis cares to make it an issue we are quite content."

Statement by Lewis.

The statement that was issued from Lewis headquarters said:

"Mr. McCormick's legislative manager, Senator Jim Watson of Indiana, who, Mulhall swore, was the lobbyist for the trusts in congress, has sent out part of a dialogue between himself and Senator Lewis to help McCormick. This card includes Watson's statement made during the debate when he was representing the railroad and telegraph interests opposing the government control during the war. This alleges that Lewis had opposed a bond bill in the Spanish-American congress. Lewis answered, showing that he was fighting the scheme proposed by the eastern Democrats with eastern Republicans wholly to bond the country. Lewis showed that he joined the western Republicans in their effort to tax the incomes of the wealthy and tax excess profits, as is now done, instead of putting all debt in interest bearing bonds. This reply is all left out by McCormick's manager. Yet it is stated that 'Lewis did not support the Spanish-American war.'

Cites "War Record."

"This unhappy misrepresentation forces the reply that Lewis not only voted for the appropriations but Lewis went to war as a soldier, and the records of the fights in Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines speak of him. McCormick, then an unmarried man and a rich man, went to neither nor offered anything but political talk.

Part of Record.

The document to which objection was made from Lewis' headquarters was a reprint of the congressional record containing the Watson speech made in the senate July 11, 1918.

The Watson speech quoted from the Congressional Record of May 3, 1898, when Mr. Lewis was a Democratic member of the house of representatives from the state of Washington, this statement from Mr. Lewis:

"I have listened too often, Mr. Speaker, to the constant cry of 'patriotism' as the reason for legislating measure after measure here, and only the other day we heard from our honorable friends on the other side that patriotism should always drive us into the line of action which shall execute the desire of the other side, irrespective of any virtue or vice of the measure."

Query by Watson.

"Does not that have a homelike sound?" questioned Senator Watson. Then Mr. Watson continued, quoting Mr. Lewis' speech of 1898:

"On this side of the house there arises now and then, as did my friend from New York, Amos Cummings, a Democrat, who advised this assembly that he 'put his country above party,' and under that cry certain gentlemen on the floor, under his leadership, calling themselves Democrats, found it agreeable to support the measure mortgaging the generation and their children yet unborn, irrespective of the fundamental justice of it."

"That," continued Senator Watson, "was at the beginning of the Spanish-American war, and the remarks quoted had reference to a revenue bill incorporating a provision for a $600,000,000 bond issue, and against which my friend, J. Hamilton Lewis, voted 'no.'"

Debs Appeals Sedition Case to Supreme Court

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—Eugene V. Debs, Socialist party leader, who recently was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for making disloyal utterances in a speech at Canton, O., has appealed his case to the Supreme court.

BRUDERBUND SITS IN ON POLITICS; SOCIETIES SPLIT

Cermak Called Anti-Hun; Germans Threaten to Disrupt 'Wets.'

The Germans have started their fall offensive campaign in the Cook county political field of action.

Details of the spectacle of American citizens who are candidates for county offices being tried before society tribunals because of alleged public utterances against German war methods and German atrocities, became public last night after the adjournment of the political action committee of the United Societies. The committee has been holding sessions to determine what candidates shall be indorsed at the November election.

Chief of the "defendants" charged with "unwarranted attacks" against the enemy is A. J. Cermak, bailiff of the Chicago Municipal court, and now Democratic candidate for sheriff. Others include John A. Cervenka, Democratic candidate for the board of assessors, and B. W. Snow, Republican nominee for county treasurer.

Bruderbund Is Organized.

The forerunner of the new German political movement is declared to be the recently organized German bruderbund or brotherhood. Members of that organization several days ago urged the political action committee of the United Societies to make no final indorsements for political offices until they could be heard from further. The brotherhood representatives yesterday failed to appear as they had promised.

Members of the committee stated after the meeting that it had been agreed to ignore the brotherhood.

"It's ridiculous," said one member of the United Societies, "to listen to men who try to place candidates on trial for statements they have made against the army of a nation with which we are at war. The questioning of Mr. Cermak's remarks in a Red Cross speech was certainly a nervy thing to do for men who are living under the protection of the American government.

The "German Question."

"One of his opponents characterized Mr. Cermak's utterances as 'stirring up the German question.' Great God! We've got sons and brothers and fathers in France and Belgium being killed and mutilated over the 'German question,' why shouldn't it be stirred up at home? If Cook county voters are going to defeat men who are 'stirring up the German question' it's time we knew about it.

"And Cervenka and Snow have made loyal Liberty loan and Red Cross talks, so they must be defeated. The men who are organizing this brotherhood movement say the Germans must organize for self-defense.

"In their propaganda talks these men have made especial reference to the Czecho-Slovaks as traitors to their country."

"We had the stenographic report of Mr. Cermak's speech that was objected to," A. D. Weiner, head of the political action committee, said. "It was a loyal, patriotic talk."

"There will be no further attention paid to the few disgruntled ones who are finding fault. I don't believe any loyal Americans of German descent will be fooled by these men who have been working for several months to effect an organization, which even now has no real head."

Representatives of the German brotherhood adherents stated that the German societies would withdraw from the United Societies and make their own political indorsements.

Will Ignore Brotherhood.

Mr. Cermak, who is secretary of the United Societies, last night issued a statement in which he said that the United Societies henceforth will ignore the German brotherhood.

"I consider myself 100 per cent American," he said. "My American citizenship has not been questioned and is not in doubt. Am I to be opposed because of my war activities and my work in behalf of the Czecho-Slovak movement?"

Joseph Sieben of Oak Park, who is one of the men in sympathy with the "Bruderbund" movement, said last night that the representatives of the German societies are tired of being overridden in the United Societies. Several German societies already have withdrawn, and several more will follow, he said.

G. O. P. REPLIES TO ADVERTISING FOR DEMOCRATS

Sees No Comparison Between 1864 and 1918 Conditions.

Col. Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Republican state central committee, yesterday, gave out the following statement with reference to the attempts of the Democrats to compare conditions in 1864, when Lincoln was president, with the present political situation. Col. Smith said:

"The Democratic leaders are not making any progress in their attempts to compare conditions in 1864 when Lincoln was president and the present political situation. Their campaign cry this year is 'Stand behind the President,' and are reminding the voters of the language attributed to Lincoln in the campaign of 1864 when he said 'We should not swap horses while crossing the stream.'

Southern Democrats Rebel.

"The answer to that cry is found in these facts. In 1864 the southern Democrats were in rebellion, and the northern Democrats in their national convention demanded that the war to save the Union cease as it had been a failure. The Democratic members in congress who were in the minority did everything in the world to embarass Lincoln and to defeat the cause for which the war was being waged. Naturally Lincoln didn't want to swap horses under those conditions. At this time, and during this war the Republican party, which is the minority party in congress, has never attempted to embarass the government, but has supported it in all war measures, and has saved important legislation from defeat by the Democrats.

Tells of 1898.

"The Democrats are also quoting what Col. Roosevelt said in 1898 when he urged the selection of a Republican congress in support of President McKinley. At that time the United States was engaged in the Spanish-American war and, with six honorable exceptions, every Democrat in the lower house of congress, including J. Hamilton Lewis, then congressman from the state of Washington, voted against the president and the government in the raising of money for the prosecution of the war. The Congressional Record of May 3, 1898, quotes Mr. Lewis when he tries to justify his action by saying 'I have listened too often, Mr. Speaker, to the constant cry of patriotism.'

"The country at large, as well as the nations of the world, would be astounded at this time should the voters of Illinois, a Republican state, repudiate their own party, which has so loyally stood behind the president, and many times when the Democratic party denied him help."

$94,301 Claim Against Morrison Allowed by Court

Federal Judge George A. Carpenter yesterday entered an order allowing the $94,301 claim of Charles S. Rieman against Edward W. Morrison, the eccentric "millionless millionaire." Rieman's claim, which was originally for $71,400 with 5 per cent interest, was the thing which started the aged millionaire's court troubles, which culminated in bankruptcy proceedings and later disbarment proceedings against his lawyer, James R. Ward. The claim, which was for professional services, was filed in 1910.

JURY BUNCH OF DOUBTERS; SEER WITH PURSE HELD

It is up to Federal Judge Landis to peer into the future and announce where Charles E. Hindenroch, Milwaukee avenue's "black art" master and general distributor of the "magic purse," is to spend a considerable portion of his time henceforth.

A jury sat in judgment on the seer's claims and yesterday turned out to be a bunch of unbelievers. They scoffed at his printed advertisements that the "magic purse" had been handed down to him for posterity by the Queen of Sheba's favorite master of the sciences. They didn't figure that even on Milwaukee avenue a purse, "impossible to empty," which "will always be full of shiny simoleons," and which will insure the possessor of "happiness forever" could be retailed at $3 apiece. Hence they brought in a verdict of using the mails to defraud.

Then there were the pictures, too, of "the most beautiful woman in the world" to be sold, "only to young people over 20 years of age," but over these, in modesty, the veil must be drawn. Judge Landis said he would impose sentence within a few days.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards's determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "foggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

Science Perfected This Wonderful Boiler

THE extraordinary heating efficiency of the Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler does not depend on any one single exaggerated feature. Our many years of close experience have proved that unless all parts of a boiler are scientifically constructed, great waste inevitably follows. Special features often cause waste. In Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boilers each individual part has been perfected. Then all units have been scientifically united to produce scientific combustion. Hence this boiler, by eliminating fuel waste, promotes great economy.

The Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler differs from other boilers much as the modern aeroplane differs from the old-fashioned balloon. It is a marked scientific advance, solving the hitherto baffling problem of scientific combustion. The result is worth-while economy of operation. It squeezes from each pound of coal a big quota of heat units and reduces heat loss. No boiler without scientific combustion can do its work economically.

Inferior heating means expense and waste. The time to insure heating economy for your home or building is now. An investigation of the Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler right now will put you in touch with a method of economy for either steam or hot water heating that is in keeping with the spirit of the times.

CASUALTIES OF AMERICAN ARMY OVERSEAS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 22.—Casualties of the American forces overseas issued today totaled 1,319, which included many minor casualties, brought by courier in compliance with the order of the war department that all casualties, both major and minor, be delayed and published after the next of kin had been notified. If comment is made on the increased size of the casualty lists, the public should be made to understand that the increase does not reflect current losses, but rather that the increase, in so far as minor casualties are concerned, is due to the recently adopted policy of issuing the accumulated lists of minor casualties now being reported by courier.

The list issued today was divided as follows:

Killed in action	140

Died of disease	157

"HARD SKIN" AND FOOT CALLUSES

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the toughened calluses or "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift those pained spots right off with fingers.

When you peel off corns or calluses with Freezone the skin beneath is left pink

NEXT WORLD'S SERIES TO PROVIDE HOME FOR WOUNDED IN WAR

JOHNSON SCHEME GIVES ALL COIN TO GOVERNMENT

Upkeep Cost from Fund Obtained at Annual Title Contests.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

When the next world's series is played, and by whomsoever it is played, it will be solely for the benefit of our wounded soldiers and sailors, if a thought, sponsored by President Johnson of the American league, is approved by the United States government.

Briefly, the idea is to devote the entire proceeds of the next world's contest to founding a permanent home for those Yanks and Gobs who come back from the trenches and the sea lanes so seriously crippled that they cannot be restored to business or professional pursuits; to contribute the proceeds of subsequent world's series, so far as necessary, to completing or enlarging this home, and to set aside from all future events of the kind sufficient revenue for maintenance and the assurance of all comforts to those who gave everything except their lives to make the world safe for democracy.

Government to Handle Funds.

In the establishment, equipment, and maintenance of the proposed institution, the government will be asked to assume the supervision and disbursement of all moneys according to the best and best ideas the American medical world has evolved, the function of professional baseball being merely to supply the necessary funds through the medium of its world's series.

"Proceeds" in this case will not mean a certain percentage, nor what is left after the participants in the contest have extracted their bits. It will mean absolutely all the receipts over and above the actual, necessary cost of conducting the affair, such as transportation, etc.

Players Expected to Comply.

Included in the thought is the expectation that the players, umpires, and everybody concerned in the staging of the world's series will gladly serve without pay, so as to make the post-season contest a 100 per cent benefit for the nation's helpless heroes.

This plan, if acceptable to the government when conditions permit the resumption of professional baseball, will convert a bane into a blessing. For more than a dozen years the world's series has been the bane of the two leagues. It was responsible for putting the dollar sign for honor. It converted a lot of players into grasping, greedy financiers. It was responsible for the Federal league and all the attendant evils.

Job Rather Than Pennant.

Even not the world's pennant, came to be the stake played for. And it needed only the strike of the Red Sox in the last September to make that world series the crowning disgrace of a decadent sport.

Reviving it, as President Johnson suggests, under government auspices, for a benefit for the disabled soldiers and sailors, all the old evils can be eliminated for all time, it is thought, and at the same time a national service performed. The public will then know the players will be animated only by the desire to win the world's pennant. There will be no dollars at stake for them. That alone will convert the series into the great sporting event it was intended to be.

Merely to give an idea of the possibilities of this proposition, the gross receipts of the world's series of 1912, when baseball was at its zenith, were $1,039,533, or very close to half a million dollars, at fixed prices. With reservations sold at auction, without limit on the patriotism of bidders, undoubtedly a greater sum could be realized for a purpose to which every American would be eager to subscribe.

ATHLETIC GAMES AFTER WAR ENDS

New York, Oct. 22.—International games modeled along the lines of the Olympic games, open to soldiers and sailors of the interallied nations, will be a feature of the demobilization period following the declaration of peace. These contests, which may eventually be a part of the peace celebration at the close of the world war, will be held in Paris, according to a cablegram received at the headquarters of the united war work campaign today.

Work on the plan already has been started and the program will be submitted to Gen. Pershing, as well as the commanders of the other armies and nations forming the allied forces. The games will be held in Paris.

Delmore Named Quarter on Camp Grant Football Team

A. J. Delmore, a bundle of speed from Marquette university done up in small package, has been chosen quarterback on the Camp Grant football team that will play Camp Taylor in the first big benefit game of the year at Weghman Park army day, Nov. 9. At Marquette Delmore was the captain and played quarter back for three years.

Four more prominent citizens of Chicago have been added to the committee handling the Camp Grant benefit games. They are Richmond Dean, Thomas R. Wilson, William Wrigley jr., and George E. Marcy.

Great Lakes Sailors Lose Duals with Kazoo Normals

Great Lakes, Ill., Oct. 22.—[Special.] Commander John B. Kaufman, athletic officer at the naval training station, announced tonight that the Kalamazoo Normal school had canceled tomorrow's game because of the epidemic of influenza at that place. Commander Kaufman hopes to bring Camp Custer here.

MOSTLY NEWS.

WHILE mudhen and duck hunters have been gnashing their eyebrows over the pleasant weather that has been prevailing the last two weeks, anglers have taken advantage of it and the patient ones have been rewarded with some fish. The prize fish of the week was taken by C. M. Trimper at Pistakee lake. It was a six pound small mouthed bass—not so bad for this time of the year, we'll say. Some fair sized fish have been taken from other Illinois lakes, particularly the smaller lakes. Good reports also come from the Kankakee and upper St. Joe rivers. Because of low water there is nothing doing, so to speak of, in the Fox.

Farther north, anglers brave enough to chance the weather have been getting some fair fishing, several good muskies being reported from the Eagle river country. Bob Hochtreit of Wausau, an occasional contributor to this column, got the limit on bass at Seven Island lake, in Lincoln county, Wis. He got 'em casting a plug.

In spite of the bad good weather some ducks and hens have been bagged. Our friend Reynolds got some hens and yellow legs, a mallard and a shoveler at Grass lake, which we helped demolish. Ed Moore got a bag of jacks along the Fox river. There is no shooting to speak of along the Illinois, as the weather up north has not driven the ducks down yet. When they do come they will probably come in droves.

WAR WORK FUNDS FROM ALL SPORT

New York, Oct. 22.—During the united war work campaign next month for funds to continue the various war work activities, sports will be relied upon to furnish large contributions. William W. Roper told the general sports committee today that football games will be played at the Polo grounds Nov. 9, 16, and 23, instead of one game.

Cornelius J. Sullivan, golf chairman, announced that John D. Rockefeller had donated 1,200 medals to be played for in golf competitions at clubs the country over on Saturday, Nov. 16. The trophy will be called the Victory medal and will bear a likeness of Gen. Foch, who is an ardent golf enthusiast.

W. G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel company, sent word that he would pay the expenses of a tour of the country by the Bethlehem soccer team, national champions, and the Belgians, who have been asked to come here.

Stagg's Track Squad Now Feels Call for Officers

Two more University of Chicago athletes have been claimed by the training camps. Bartke, one of the best of the cross country runners left Saturday night for Waco, Texas, where he will enter the machine gun officers' school.

Hastings Moore, the only two miler on the track team last year, will leave soon, having been accepted for aviation service.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Britishers christened them the "bounding billies" when they were first introduced, and, as far as price is concerned, they have lived up to that name. Now the bounders are about to bound again.

There was a rumor around the local golfing rialto yesterday that golf balls soon would be advanced in price. On being traced to manufacturing sources this rumor was confirmed.

More Tax, Fewer Balls.

It is generally understood that the government will increase the tax on sales from 3 to 10 per cent, while next year's production will be limited to 40 per cent of the amount produced this year.

Robert Jackson, local manager of the St. Mungo company, said he had been notified by his company to take no orders for future delivery at present prices, while George Braid of Wanamaker's said he had received notice of an advance.

$1.25 Each, Please.

It is understood the leading makes, now selling at $1, will be advanced to $1.25, and those of lesser cost will be increased accordingly.

One comforting piece of information was that golf ball manufacturers had been placed in the essential class, being rated as rubber manufacturers and placed by the war industries board in class 4.

"Keep Middle of Road."

It looks as if the golfers will have to cultivate ball conservation next season. One way to help would be to keep the rough cut as closely as the fairways, but lack of help apparently would bunker this proposition. Next season the motto of the golfer will be: "Keep in the middle of the road." Meanwhile "D—n the Kaiser!"

MURPHY TO COACH AT HARDIN TODAY

Coach Murphy of Northwestern will make his first trip of the season today to Hardin square, where he will coach the members of his football squad attending the downtown schools. The Purple mentor realizes these men are the backbone of his team, and they must be drilled thoroughly in all departments of the game. Because of the shots in the arms received on Monday the members of the squad at Evanston were given only light practice. Only fifteen members of the aggregation turned out.

Coach Murphy will not know until Friday whether the game on Saturday with the Michigan Aggies will be played. At present all athletic contests in Evanston are barred.

AT THE BILLIARD ROOMS.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Chicago Billiard league yesterday it was decided to postpone the opening of the third annual tournament until Nov. 4. Three of the previous prizings were changed, Bob Lord of Peterson's being reduced from 45 points to 44, Henry Grede of Milwaukee and Al Mannassan also were placed on the same mark.

Champion Augie Kleckhefer yesterday presented President William Blake of the Chicago Billiard league with a loving cup in recognition of his work as referee in the Kleckhefer-Maupome championship match.

Tiff Denton of Kansas City has written to Bob Cannefax offering to match Stanley La Chin against the local player, 150 to 150, for a purse of $500. Cannefax has consented to play provided John Kling, at whose room the match would be played, will put on a new cloth and new cushions.

In the Wake of the News by RING W. LARDNER

MY WEEK IN GERMANY.

BY I. SPY.

CHAPTER 3.

Owing to the shortage of cloth, Berliners are dressing in many substitute materials, of which paper seems to give the best satisfaction. News dealers, I was told, coin money by refusing to sell newspapers as such and disposing of them as garments at extremely high prices.

Germans are still sticklers for form and always appear in evening papers after six o'clock at night. Women attend formal parties attired in the society page, while at the tennis matches and races they wear the sport sheet. The mortuary columns are in great demand for funeral dress, and persons in search of employment, help or lodging, go round in the classified section. When a dramatic criticism is published, every theater-going Berliner clips it out to wear in the event of his attending that particular show. Of course no rubber for collars is now procurable in Prussia, so people cut stocks out of the financial section. On chilly evenings there is a big sale of extras.

I must relate in this connection an experience of my own. One day while walking up Unter den Lundin, I stooped over to pick up a cigarre-schnepfe [a butts] and broke my hosenträger [suspenders]. Now it happened that I had smuggled into Germany under my kneecap a copy of THE TRIBUNE. Remembering that it was in my room at the hotel, I hastened thither, clipped the Line o' Type column and adjusted it round my waist. When I resumed my walk, several persons gazed at it open-mouthed and exclaimed: "What a funny bit!"

That same night I summoned the valet, as I desired to have my colored supplement folded, and while he was in the room his eye fell on my TRIBUNE. At length he picked it up and asked if he could have Orr, McCutcheon, Smith and Lowry.

"What for?" I asked.

"I need drawers," was his reply.

Paper, however, is a failure as hosiery and footwear and everybody in Berlin goes barefoot. I was amazed, on attending a dinner at the Kaiser's, to find even Wilhelm and his guests shoeless and hoseless. Each guest, however, seemed to have made a big fuss [fuss] over each fuss [foot] and their shining toenails gave evidence of recent sessions at the pedometer's. It has also become fashionable to wear one's rings on the toes and it was rather amusing to see the owners of new engagement solitaires put their feet on the table to show off.

Pugilistic Pointers by Ray Pearson

THERE'S going to be big doings in a pugilistic way at the Great Lakes Naval Training station today. The announcement that a team of five instead of four boxers would be picked to represent Great Lakes in the inter-allied bouts in London in December has opened the way for hot competition for berths on the team. As a result there will be some great milling today when the weekly show directed by Lieut. Jack Kennedy is pulled off.

PENN WOULD PLAY FOR THE WAR FUND

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 22.—The football committee of the University of Pennsylvania today suggested to W. W. Roper of Princeton that a football game be played between Pennsylvania and either Princeton, Yale, or Harvard and the receipts be donated to the war fund committee for athletic equipment for the American army in France.

Roper had made inquiry whether Pennsylvania would agree to turn over its share of the receipts from the Pittsburgh game Nov. 16 to the committee.

The Penn authorities pointed out that a contest with either Princeton, Yale, or Harvard, to be played in Philadelphia or New York the latter part of November, would result in a much larger contribution.

COACHES POINTING TEAMS FOR BATTLES TO BE PLAYED NOV. 2

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Realizing there is only a bare possibility of playing football games scheduled Saturday, coaches of every big team in the country are pointing their elevens to the contests slated for Nov. 2, when several struggles of importance will be decided.

In preparing their teams for these games the mentors will be without knowledge of their opponents' offensive tactics because enough games have not been played for the scouts to get a definite line on the styles of play employed by the different aggregations. For this reason several forms of defense must be taught, not to mention varied and versatile attack. It will be the first time in the history of football that so many teams will clash in important games without the experience which can fit them for such struggles.

To Employ Old Tactics?

The coaches are taking it for granted that opposing teams will employ the same tactics as in former years and are coaching their elevens accordingly. In a number of cases the mentors are keeping their stars under cover as much as possible, with the result several players are certain to upset the best laid plans of some of the coaches.

Unless Illinois is permitted to play the team from the United States auxiliary naval reserve school on Saturday the Orange and Blue eleven will not have had enough experience to warrant a victory over Iowa, which will have played five games. The Hawkeyes are scheduled to meet Grinnell on Saturday and already have met the Great Lakes, Nebraska, Coe, and Cornell.

Purple May Play Aggies.

Although Coach Murphy of Northwestern has high hopes that the game between the Purple and the Michigan Aggies on Saturday will be permitted, it is doubtful if this single contest will give Northwestern enough experience to leave it in shape to meet Michigan on Nov. 2.

Tennis Club Election and Dinner Dance Gets the Flu

The new date will be announced later.

At Football Camps

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—After inflicting various handicaps on Zuppke's football eleven the Illini jinx relented today, when Bill Kopp appeared for practice. Kopp, who was selected for full back in the early games, was obliged to turn in his suit a week ago because of parental objections to his participation in the sport. He succeeded in having the edict removed.

Despite the uncertainty as to the resumption of schedules Zuppke's lads are practicing hard and hoping that they will be able to meet Iowa on Nov. 2. If the ban is not lifted by that time Illinois will have three games remaining, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Chicago, with the probability that a game will be set for either Thanksgiving day or Nov. 30.

WISCONSIN.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—In place of the regular afternoon program at the Badger camp, the team was given a real test in the form of a game with Madison High. Although the Cardinals won, 30 to 0, they displayed such a lack of the rudiments of the game as to disbarrtan not only Assistant Coach Lowman, but the backers of the team as well. "Bonehead" stunts were frequent, demonstrating the crudeness of the back field.

Mann, left tackle, is beginning to loom up in the line, being cool and steady and continually ready to break up plays.

MICHIGAN.

Ann Arbor, Mich. Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Yost, with a practically untried team, is working to win from Northwestern on Nov. 9. Only by a decisive victory over the Purple team will the disgrace of a year ago, when Northwestern gave Michigan a drubbing, be wiped from the Wolverine slate.

With but one game this year, and no prospect of another before the Northwestern game, Yost is working his men hard every night, putting them through stiff practice.

MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis, Minn. Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The Gophers today began real hard work for their second practice game of the year, Saturday at Northrop field with St. Thomas college, a strong team located in this city. A short scrimmage finished up a stiff day's work for the varsity eleven.

Dr. Williamson, a candidate for athletic czar, the opposite number of a real good tackle out of "Bab" Ross, the 320 pound Kewpie.

J. WILLARD ASKED TO AID WAR FUND

New York, Oct. 22.—Jess Willard, heavyweight champion, was requested by telegraph today to give his pugilistic services in the nation-wide campaign to raise $170,000,000 for the various welfare organizations engaged in furnishing comfort to the American forces.

The telegram, which was addressed to Willard at his home at Lawrence, Kas., does not mention the name of a prospective opponent. It simply asks him to volunteer his services as many other boxing champions are doing.

"Glad to Help"—Willard.

Quanah, Tex., Oct. 22.—"I shall be very glad to do everything in my power to make the campaign a great success," Jess Willard said tonight when shown a dispatch requesting his pugilistic services to raise funds for army welfare organizations. Willard is in Quanah looking after his oil interests.

PREP ATHLETICS OFF UNTIL "FLU" DANGER PASSES

Even Football Practice and Indoor Gym Work Come Under Ban.

BY PREP.

All high school athletics, even practice sessions, are off. This was the decision reached yesterday by Assistant Supt. of Schools Edward E. Cole after he had conferred with Commissioner of Health Robertson. The ruling affects military drilling as well as indoor gym work and football practice.

"All athletic activities must be discontinued until further notice" was the way the official edict read.

According to Mr. Cole, Dr. Robertson stated that many of the influenza-pneumonia fatalities at Great Lakes Naval Training station were due to overexercising. "We feared the results of overheating in the various sports making students more prone to take cold," he said.

Proviso vs. Deerfield.

One of the two decisive contests of this season's Suburban High School league is scheduled Saturday, when Proviso Township High and Deerfield Township heavyweights battle at Maywood, the Proviso team's home gridiron.

North Shore Develops Tricks.

At Highland Park the light but fast Deerfield team has been practicing with an eye to the Proviso game for some weeks, and is said to have tricks up its sleeve, with the elusive Morgan and Jackson to advance the ball.

Proviso lightweights, who compose one of the four teams in the minor division of the Suburban league, are without a game Saturday. Lightweight elevens wishing games should phone Coach O. V. Boone, Maywood 1068-J.

HOYNE SEEKS TO INDICT THREE SUBURB MAYORS

Sheriff Assures Evidence in Burnham, Cicero, and Burr Oak.

The mayors of Cicero, Burr Oak, and Burnham, three suburban centers of vice and gambling, are facing trouble with the state's attorney, providing Sheriff Traeger is successful in gathering requisite evidence on conditions.

State's Attorney Hoyne says he will ask for the indictment of the mayors if he can get the evidence. The sheriff says that he has many complaints and will deliver the evidence.

Fail to Enforce Laws.

The mayors who are threatened with state action are: Joseph C. Klenha, president of the village board of Cicero; "Johnny" Patten of Burnham and John Synakiewicz of Burr Oak. They are to be accused of failing to enforce the laws of their communities.

President Klenha of Cicero has been summoned to the state's attorney's office to be warned against reinstating Chief of Police Nicholas Mongrieg, who was suspended Saturday night. Klenha is reported to have declared he would not stop the village trustees from acting over his head.

"Trying to Pass Buck."

"That is merely an attempt by Klenha to pass the buck," the prosecutor said. "There seems to be considerable 'passing the buck' between Klenha and the trustees, with the result that conditions remain the same. I'm going to stop that. Klenha has the power, if he will use it, to suspend his entire police force if they fail to enforce the law.

"All the Cicero officials are now under indictment on charges of malfeasance in office. If the sheriff's evidence warrants it I will go before the grand jury for further indictments. The responsibility for the enforcement of the law in these villages is on the mayors, and they can't dodge that responsibility.

"Sheriff Traeger made the same complaints against Burr Oak and Burnham. In Burr Oak he spoke especially of the Burr Oak inn, which, I understand, is now conducted by 'Mike de Pike' Heitler."

The sheriff submitted a report by Dr. L. R. Melnikoff of Great Lakes that last Sunday drinks were being sold to crowds in the Burnham Cottage inn and the Speedway inn.

ACCIDENTAL SHOT KILLS.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquest held into the death of William Dwyer, 815 West Garfield boulevard. Dwyer was the owner of the Boulevard saloon, 5512 South Halsted street. He carried a revolver in his pocket and it is thought that the pistol dropped from his pocket and was discharged.

COMPANY ASKS DISMISSAL OF ALL GAS SUITS

Judge Told Supreme Court Decision Forces Action.

When the Supreme court ruled that the state act of 1905, which was intended to give the city the right to fix gas rate charges, was unconstitutional, all pending litigation brought by the city against the company automatically was dismissed.

This was the argument made yesterday by John S. Miller, attorney for the gas company, in the suit before Circuit Court Judge Torrison to have the company held for contempt for trying to collect the 27½ per cent increase in rates allowed by the state public utilities commission. On it he asked the court to dismiss the pending litigation. The court took the question under advisement and said a ruling on Mr. Miller's contention would be made tomorrow.

Richberg Opposes Motion.

Donald R. Richberg, special counsel for the city council in gas rate matters, opposed Mr. Miller's point. Mr. Richberg said the gas company waived the legality of the 1905 act when proceedings were started to force the company to live up to the rates contained in the 1911 ordinance.

Mr. Miller said the contempt case and the suit to collect $10,000,000 in alleged overcharges under the 1911 ordinance were nullified by the Supreme court decision.

Repeats His Charges.

After the hearing Mr. Richberg reiterated his charge that the Sutter case, on which the Supreme court ruling was made, was not a fair one on which to base a ruling on the constitutionality of the 1905 act. He again blamed the city law department for being a party to this case

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 22.—Attorneys for the estate of Mrs. Mary Lily Bingham tendered today to Scott Mayes, collector of internal revenue, a check for $5,384,084.67, which the executors have computed as the inheritance tax on Mrs. Bingham's estate. It is understood the federal government claims approximately $8,000,000 as the correct amount. The check was accepted provisionally by the collector. Mrs. Bingham, formerly Mrs. Henry M. Flagler of New York, left an estate valued at more than $70,000,000.

hile the Polish stalwarts from s "hook of the yards" are marchright up to the mouths of the kai-'s cannon "over there," those left home art batting the enemy in these rts. ed into this dynamo of loyalty to le flam walked August Weissensel, 41 South Racine avenue, naturalized erican, but "with the heart of a man." What happened was verbal-but vividly, reënacted before Fed-l Judge Landis and a jury yester-when Weissensel, a lanky German 41, with a kaiserlike mustache, was signed charged with sedition.

irst to the witness chair went the le recruiting mission head, Mrs. Bair, attired in black and wear-a mourning veil for a boy who fell the battle for democracy. With de-ed Polish accent she told her story.

Forbids Polish Tongue.

"You see," she said, "I was explain-g to a boy his duty to go over and Marczewski was sitting by nod-r approval and smoking his pipe, d in comes this man to get a shave. were talking Polish and he comes r and says, 'I'm a German. Cut that talk.' I didn't say nothing and he gets into the barber chair and wowicz's assistant starts putting her on his face and then we started king again.

'Then he turns around and thumps r chest and says, 'I've got a German rt. You know what happened to esar. Well, that's what the kaiser do.' Papa Marczewski became en-ed. He threw down his pipe, but is an old man. Then this man said, a couple of weeks the German y will be over in New York, and you will see what will happen.' couldn't stand it any longer. I didn't see in this country of rights democracy such a man saying such gs against our beloved country. I got up and I said, 'Barber, don't ave that man. I'll pay for it. We t want this man in this country y more than we want the kaiser's y in New York.' Then the barber ade him get out of the chair and he didn't take the lather off, either, d then Papa Marczewski went ping out of the shop after him h his cane."

"Papa" Tells of Talk.

Then "Papa" Marczewski—he is 79. th a bush of iron gray hair—stamped to the witness stand to take up thread of the story. In a booming ice the old Pole related his part.

"He comes in," he said, weighing ery word, "and I was talking to Mrs. ar and he says, 'Stop that language. a German,' and then he thumps his est like this," and the old man ham-red his breast.

"I looks up," he continued, "and I to myself, 'He's a strong man and old,' but I was mad, so I sez, 'Who you?' and he sez 'I'm a German. in two weeks the kaiser will bring army over on ships and land at w York,' and I say, hammering my e, 'Ship out yourself with your and stay there. We don't want in our good country,' and he kept swing about his kaiser, and I say myself 'That's a German spy—a man spy."

REVOLVERS, SEX, AND ROOMERS IN TWO TRAGEDIES

1 Dead, Another Dying as Result of Combination.

Two chapters on roomers and revolvers and sex were written into police history yesterday:

Eleanor Carlton, young and pretty, was shot and killed in her rooming house at 1140 Fulton street. John Donahue, her landlady's son, is held by the police. The police were told she was oDnahue's sweetheart.

Gustava Kyburg may die from being shot in the neck by Mrs. Ethel M. Benson, 22 years old, in whose home at 1914 North Fourth avenue, Maywood, he was a roomer. Mrs. Benson was nursing Kyburg through an attack of influenza. Kyburg beat her and her little daughter, according to Mrs. Benson. They were not sweethearts, she says.

Victim Near Death.

Kyburg is near death at the county hospital. Mrs. Benson is held by the Oak Park police. She told the police Kyburg entered her bedroom and beat her when he found her sleeping instead of being up getting him some hot water he had asked for. When she fled from him he began to beat her little girl, Lillian. Then she shot him.

John Donahue is held at the Desplaines street police station, suspected of killing Eleanor Carlton. He had been drinking heavily when arrested.

Neighbors Hear Shots.

Neighbors told the police they saw Donahue enter the home of Mrs. J. Redfern, his mother, where Eleanor Carlton was alone at the time. They heard sounds of a struggle, a shot, and soon after saw Donahue leave, they said. He denies the charge.

The Carlton woman had told neighbors that she was married and had a husband in France. She went by her maiden name, however, and police last night were investigating her story.

WIFE DROPS LID ON BEERFESTS AT HOME OF PFUHLS

George Pfuhl will hold no more parties at his home, nor will his guests drink beer and sing German songs therein. A restraining order was issued by Judge Jacob Hopkins in the Superior court yesterday at the request of Mrs. Gertrude Pfuhl, who also asked for a divorce. Mrs. Pfuhl declared that although her husband was disbarred from his law practice, he had an income of $200 a month.

Mrs. Pfuhl said she objected to her husband's boisterous friends singing "Die Wacht am Rhein" and "Ach du Lieber Augustine."

"I have eight nephews in the service," she said. "Four are in France and four in training camps here. 'Look here, Momie, I guess we've got them going now,' he said to me one day. He pointed to a news item which said the Germans had a big gun bombarding Paris. He has taken a picture of President Wilson and destroyed it and has failed to stand up when the Star Spangled Banner' was played."

Theodore A. Peck, whose wife countered with a charge that he frequently boasted of "outside" conquests of women, who "fell" for his distinguished appearance, was granted a divorce from Emma. He alleged his wife was "selfish and revengeful, and of vulgar and vicious habits."

Alimony of $120 a month was asked in a bill for divorce filed by Mrs. Lydia Lightfoot yesterday. She says that her husband, George, gambles. He is employed by the South Chicago Elevators company at Ninety-third street and Harbor avenue, and makes $250 to $400 a month.

David Wasserman gave his wife, Elmira, only $5 a week to run the house, although he earns $40 a week at the Hartman Furniture company, she charges in a divorce bill. He owns stocks and bonds and has $7,500 in a bank, she declared.

Reports Diamond Theft at Rhodes Avenue Home

Harry Groff of 3566 Rhodes avenue reported to the Cottage Grove avenue police last night that some one had entered his home and stolen diamonds valued at $3,000.

CAR ORDINANCE DOES NOT AFFECT CITY OWNERSHIP

Billboards Mislead Many on Subject of Transportation.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

"Win the war!" Therefore stand on your head in the corner.

The one statement is just as sensible as the other. Yet the first is being used by opponents of the ordinance, which is to be passed on by the people at the election on Nov. 5. Those who plaster it across billboards must have a sad idea of the intelligence of Chicago voters.

"The new ordinance makes municipal ownership impossible!" That is another statement which is being used in all the impressiveness of capital letters on billboards and elsewhere. That is another insult to the intelligence of Chicago voters. Anybody who knows anything about the facts knows that it is a misstatement.

Courts Settled Ownership.

Municipal ownership is impossible now in Chicago. The voters declared for it thirteen years ago. But until Illinois gets a new constitution it will be impossible for Chicago to buy and pay for the street car lines and elevated roads in bonds or in any other way. That has been absolutely settled by the Supreme court of the state.

People who bawl about "immediate municipal ownership" or who say the new ordinance makes municipal ownership impossible might as well say, "Stand by President Wilson and vote against the traction ordinance." In fact, one would not be surprised to see that thrilling battle cry emblazoned on the billboards before the campaign is over.

If and when Illinois gets a new constitution, municipal ownership will be just as easy, if not easier, under the new than under the old ordinance.

Provides for Taking Over.

The new ordinance expressly provides that the city may, on Jan. 1 or July 1 of any year, take over and operate all the surface, elevated, and subway lines by giving six months' notice of its intention and paying the sum agreed on in the ordinance as representing the investment in the property.

Under the present ordinance, if a new constitution should be adopted, the city would have no right whatever to take over the elevated roads

Meanwhile there is no certainty that the voters will approve the plan for making a new constitution for the state. If they do the city may go ahead and exercise its right to buy and operate the traction system at any time. If they do not the new traction ordinance provides for what will develop into a system of municipal control and operation.

Council Names Trustees.

The control and direction of the combined surface and elevated lines is placed by the new ordinance in the hands of a board of nine trustees. The first board, which is named in the ordinance, will serve until 1925. In that year the city council will name three men to succeed three of the trustees, who will then retire. The next year the city council will select three more trustees, so that in 1929 and thereafter the public, as represented in the city council, will control the appointment of a majority of the board of trustees.

These trustees are paid $5,000 a year and are not permitted to own any of the securities of the combined companies.

Furthermore, the combined companies are limited by the ordinance to a return of 6 per cent on their securities, the amount of which is determined in advance.

Earnings Benefit Public.

Any earnings over 6 per cent must be paid into a sinking fund. This sinking fund may be used either to improve the service or to pay off some of the existing bonds of the company. In the first place, the amount so spent is not added to the capital account of the company, on which it is to draw 6 per cent interest. In the second case the amount of the bonds paid off is subtracted from the capital account of the companies.

In other words, all surplus earnings over 6 per cent are and must be applied to the public benefit.

IT HAPPENS IN THE BEST REGULATED FAMILIES

CARRY FIGHT FOR CAR ORDINANCE DIRECT TO VOTER

Ward organizations formed by the citizens' committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce are to make a canvass of the entire city and carry a personal message to every voter to support the traction ordinance at the Nov. 5 election.

This was decided yesterday at a meeting of chairmen of the organizations. It was planned to have subcommittees in each ward so that every block in the city will be canvassed.

As the influenza epidemic has caused the calling off of all public gatherings for the time being, Elaine S. Smith, chairman of the ward organizations, declared that every other possible means would be taken to inform the voters of the truth regarding the traction plan. He said it was hoped by means of personal calls, literature, and telephone calls to correct the misstatements spread about the city.

The Serbian National club held a meeting yesterday at the Hotel La Salle. It approved the traction plan and appointed John Vucetich chairman of a committee to work among the Slav voters.

The fifty-one aldermen who voted for the measure are planning campaigns in their wards for votes for the ordinance.

SMOKES INTO LOT O' TROUBLE

Patrolman Jeremiah Downey of the Englewood station, under the cloud of a smoke screen and fit for battle, eased into a South Side elevated train yesterday. The guard, in recognition to the anti-flu nonsmoking order, pointed his finger at Mr. Downey's corncob and observed:

"It isn't being done, chief."

"Aw g'wan or I'll lock y'up," observed Patrolman Downey.

So Guard Frank Clifford took the patrolman's number and told it to the superintendent who told it to the downtown office who told it to the president of the road who told it to Chief Alcock who told it to the first deputy who told it to the lieutenant and when Patrolman Jeremiah Downey right merrily "pulled his box" a half hour later—

He was given a lay-off to go home and smoke and reflect.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

THE TRIBUNE of yesterday carried the second article by Frazier Hunt on the conduct of Illinois and Chicago troops in the fighting at Verdun and gave description of how Sergt. Mile Faull, Third battalion of infantry (the old Chicago Second infantry), and his men carried on beginning Oct. 6 and for five days thereafter.

W. F. Ryan, Chicago manager for the National Binding Machine company, explains that Malcolm McFaull is the right name of the sergeant; that he was master salesman of the company; that he gave up $10,000 a year to enlist with the Second infantry; and that he was at the time an Irish noncitizen with only first papers.

THEY'RE SAVAGE WHEN NO MUSIC SOOTHES THEM

Patrolman Jeremiah Collins heard music last night in Widow Noonan's saloon at 5644 South Laflin street. Since the flu came music has been barred from saloons. So Patrolman Jeremiah Collins entered and he told two men chucking nickels recklessly into the piano to desist.

They did and one walloped Patrolman Jeremiah Collins in Widow Noonan's bar, walloped him until he sat down, and saw stars to musical accompaniment. Then the other kicked Patrolman Jeremiah Collins in Widow Noonan's saloon and razzle-dazzled him and took a revolver from him.

The Widow Noonan screamed to Lieut. Michael Delaney at the Englewood station over the phone that murder was being done. Well, the pair of copper-whippers were gone when Michael Delaney found Jeremiah Collins limp and ragged on the floor of Widow Noonan's saloon.

They took him tenderly home and every policeman in that end of town spent the night scouting for the guy who ran away with Patrolman Jeremiah Collins' gun.

Clad as a Bluejacket, He Is a Flat Burglar

The police are looking for a burglar who enters and robs in the uniform of a bluejacket. James Reynolds, 1230 Hyde Park boulevard, reported yesterday that he saw the man working at the lock of the door of David Witkowski, same address. Only after the man was gone was it discovered that he had sawed a panel in the door. He left without entering.

HERE'S HOME FOR WOMAN WHO'LL MOTHER THIS BOY

Here's an opportunity for a woman of mature years, of home loving instincts, who loves children, to do at once a good turn for a motherless little chap of 7. At the same time the woman can obtain for herself a good and permanent home and lighten a load of care and sorrow which has weighed down the household of John Schweiser, 1977 Carroll avenue, since Katherine, his wife died last Wednesday. Schweiser is a skilled mechanic. He is employed in an airplane propeller factory and earns high wages—$50 a week. But let him tell his own story.

"I was married for sixteen years," he said. "My wife was an invalid for nearly twelve years, and our greatest joy was our boy, Willie, one of the brightest, best little fellows who ever lived. Katie died last Wednesday, and since then I don't know how to take care of my boy.

"I have been advised to send him to a boarding school. I am able to do that, but I want him myself. He is all I have in the world. I want him for himself and for the reminder he is of my dear dead wife. And I want a housekeeper—a mature woman, no trifler—to take care of my home. I can't let the little fellow roam the streets out of school hours."

FIND MRS. ROACH HAS 1 SUIT TOO MANY IN COURTS

The attempts of Mrs. Loretta Roach, art student, model and movie actress, to get a separate maintenance from John Millard Roach Jr., grandson and heir of the traction magnate, John M. Roach, resulted in a legal mixup yesterday.

Although her suit against Roach is pending in the Circuit court she filed another through Attorney Leo Weil. When Mrs. Lenora Z. Meder, who had charge of the first action, heard of this she made some snappy comments. Well, upon hearing of Mrs. Meder's remarks declared that Mrs. Roach did not inform him of the first suit.

"She told me that she had talked to Attorney Albert Fink," he said, "and that he had informed her she had no case. I told her that she had a claim against her husband and suggested that she see Attorney Philip Sultan. She came back later and asked me to file the suit. I knew she had conferred with Mrs. Meder, but didn't know they had filed a suit. I shall withdraw mine immediately."

HOMES

Offers Pour In from Those Who Want to Take Little Sanford Proctor.

LETTERS and telegrams continued to pour into THE TRIBUNE office yesterday offering a home to Sanford Proctor, the 6 year old boy who is ill with pneumonia at the St. Luke's hospital. His mother, Mrs. Alice Proctor, died Sunday at the Mercy hospital after requesting THE TRIBUNE to find a good home for Sanford. She was buried yesterday.

While dozens of persons were asking for the boy, he continued to improve so rapidly that officials of the hospital declared he probably would be out within a week.

"If the question has not been definitely settled, I would appreciate an opportunity to prove satisfactorily our ability to provide the proper sort of home for the boy," wrote a woman from downstate. "We have no children and are amply able to care for and educate the youngster."

Another communicant was a "gold star" mother, apparently.

"I will give him a home and love and care for him as my own," she wrote. "We have plenty of air and sunshine and will be able to nurse him back to health. We would like to take him in memory of one who died in the battle of Vimy. Can give the best of references."

A rather pathetic letter from a childless woman read:

"Please, could I adopt him? His little face appealed to me as exactly the kind of child I want so bad. My husband and I are young and have no children and have always wanted to adopt a boy and girl."

"I just read the story about the Proctor boy," was another woman's request. "I would gladly give him a home with me. My only son is now in France."

Needn't 'Put 'Em On' Yet; Cold Wave Sidetracked

Glad tidings! The weather man, Prof. Cox, got all set for frigidity tomorrow, but last night a big part of the "cyclonic depression," which means coming cold weather, skidded off and veered eastward toward Hudson bay. For this reason the weather-wise say that it won't be as cold as freezing tomorrow, which the weather men predicted yesterday. Yet it will be cooler all the way to Texas.

HOSPITALS BLOCK CARE OF "INFLU" CASES, IS CHARGE

Fail to Clear Their Wards —Now Facing Loss of Licenses.

Orders were telephoned directly from Chief of Police Alcock's office yesterday to the families of a dozen victims of the influenza-pneumonia epidemic, forbidding church funeral services which had been arranged.

Although such services were prohibited by orders issued last Saturday, several of the death notices published in the papers yesterday announced what appeared to be public ceremonies in churches and chapels.

They were noticed in the chief's office, and Lieut. John Naughton telephoned each family that their plans were in violation of the health regulations laid down by state and city authorities and that the funerals must be confined to home or open air cemetery services, with only ten persons present in addition to the necessary attendants.

Hospitals Face Inquiry.

Another drastic action that may become necessary in the near future was discussed at a meeting of the Illinois influenza-pneumonia commission. It was reported that some hospitals had found it "impossible" to accept epidemic cases for treatment. As a result one or more hospitals may face the revocation of their licenses in a short time.

The powers of the health authorities in an emergency such as the present are absolute and they have urged that all surgical cases except desperate ones be kept out of hospitals for the present and that pneumonia patients be given the preference over chronic cases which do not require immediate hospitalization.

In spite of this, it was reported, one institution is confining its work almost exclusively to ordinary surgical cases and others have the greater part of their beds occupied by chronic cases. Beds, and a great many of them, as well as nurses, are needed for the victims of the epidemic.

Number of Cases Jumps.

Though the number of new cases reported during the day in Chicago jumped up again, as had been predicted, it fell short of the high record days of last week. There were 2,244 cases of influenza and pneumonia reported to the health department and the high mark was 2,385.

It was said that some of the 2,244 were "left overs" from Monday, so that the day's real total was below that figure. In addition the number of deaths did not go up, as had been feared. There were 343 during the day from epidemic causes.

"That shows that we have reached the worst stage of the epidemic," said Dr. A. Augustus O'Neill, chairman of the emergency commission, "and if people will continue to take care of themselves as they have been doing, our outlook is slightly improved.

"But every person who is affected must remember that he must go to bed and remain there until he is completely cured—not merely until he feels better, but for several days after all symptoms of the disease have disappeared and his temperature has returned to normal."

Calls for Vaccine Many.

There were scores of calls for supplies of the Rosenow preventive vaccine at the health department which could not be filled. Chairman O'Neill wired the Mayo brothers at Rochester, Minn., asking if an additional supply could not be forwarded to tide Chicago over until its own production of large quantities begins on Friday.

The problem of obtaining the curative serum used successfully in the Chelsea Naval hospital—which is a different product from the preventive vaccine—again occupied the attention of the emergency commission. It set plans in motion whereby attempts will be made to have bluejackets from the Great Lakes and soldiers from Camp Grant, who have passed through the infection, offer their blood for the making of the serum.

The same subject was discussed at a conference in Health Commissioner Robertson's office, attended by representatives of about forty laboratories, including those of the large hospitals. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen explained the technique of preparing the curative serum.

BOY CONFESSES TO MURDER OF MAN FOR $15

Ray Taylor, 19 years old, of 1198 North Le Claire avenue, confessed to the Cragin police last night that he had murdered Victor Allman, 73 years old, a night watchman for the Chicago Grain and Salvage company at 1546 North Le Claire avenue. He crushed his skull with a buggy shaft, he said, in order to rob him of $15.

Taylor did not confess until confronted with fingerprints taken from Allman's blood stained watch and footprint impressions. The murder was committed last Saturday night in the rear of the plant, where Taylor lay in wait until Allman passed by on his hourly rounds.

Frank Hannon, watchman in a nearby plant, discovered Allman's body under a pile of baby buggies and rubbish early Sunday morning and notified the Cragin police.

Blind Widow Is Found Dead, a Victim of Gas

BY CORINNE LOWE.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—Gen. Bead is attacking on all fronts this autumn. Beads, beads, beads—never were so many of 'em employed. One of the latest fancies is to have your hat beaded to match the frock. For instance, a gray Georgette frock elaborately beaded will be ably supported by a gray velvet toque also beaded. In the accompanying model the beads employed are navy blue on a round yoke and on an odd shaped plastron of navy Georgette. These pieces occur on a background of navy velvet, the draping of which meets the beaded fringe of the plastron. The frills at neck and sleeves are white crepe.

ABOUT MUSIC

The Chicago Madrigal club's prize of $100 goes this year to Miss Frances McCollin, a Philadelphian, for her setting as a madrigal of "The Nights o' Spring," verses by Miss Bertha Ochsner, a Chicagoan. The new madrigal will be in the club's second program of the season, March 12.

The Agate Club of Chicago, made up of those who look after advertising for the magazines, announces a concert on Nov. 10, in the Illinois theater, for the Off the Street Club. Margery Maxwell, Amy Emerson Neill, Francesco Daddi, and Edgar Nelson, all familiar performers, are named to give the program.

Josef Rosenblatt, the orthodox cantor who refused an offer to take part in the Chicago Opera's revival of "The Jewess," is booked for a recital next month in Orchestra hall. He is not unknown here, for he sang to a capacity crowd of his co-religionists last season in the Auditorium. He is since become a factor in recital, from all accounts, and in recent New York City appearances has shared programs with celebrities in the field.

Farre Finds Here His Greatest Praise

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Three rather interesting things happened yesterday at the Art Institute. It is not often that men who have exhibited here return with nothing but praise on their lips. Yet Lieut. Henri Farré, the celebrated French aviation painter who showed at the institute last August, assures us that nowhere has his exhibit had the success which it met with in Chicago. He said, too, that Lieut. Fleshaire, the young flying ace, is in San Francisco now and is planning to fly from there to New York.

Leaving Lieut. Farré and going into the gallery where are hung [illegible] pictures, it was of interest to hear again a recital of that little country's struggles told by Sargt. Ruth Farnam, an American woman who has been commissioned in the Serbian army and has actually fought with it.

From the Serbian exhibit to the exhibition of applied arts is only a step, and there one met with another painter of note, this one a Chicago man—Frederick M. Grant. He has been made a chief petty officer at Great Lakes and divides his time between hasty sketching and hastier training.

Because of the influenza epidemic the night school of the Art institute will be discontinued until further notice.

THE SUCCESSFUL HOME GARDEN

BY J. F. H. HEIDE.

No. 231.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—(1) Will you please tell what is the trouble with apple trees, of which I inclose an affected twig? Branches and twigs begin to die at the ends withering the leaves, and turning them a dark brown. The disease works back on the whole limb and sometimes takes the whole tree. It started on pear trees. (2) What is the value of chicken manure as a fertilizer? (3) Should it be mixed with slaked lime? —Nameless.

A.—(1) Fireblight, most serious in pears. In winter and early spring irregular sunken areas, like cankers, may be found in the bark of the trunk and limbs, usually at the juncture of branches. It is in the edges of these discolored areas the disease is carried over winter. Cut them all out, well into the clean bark, and immediately paint each cut with a 5 per cent lysol solution; also disinfect the cutting tool in it. Cut off all affected twigs and branches well below the diseased part and disinfect the wound and tool after each cut. When a tree has been so treated paint the wounds with coal tar or creosote and immediately burn all prunings. Look over the wild hawthorns, pears, and crabapples of the vinicity and destroy them if found diseased. Stop all cultivation among the trees and use no fertilizers till the disease is eradicated, especially nothing as quick acting as chicken dung, for the disease is always more serious in rapidly growing trees, being usually first noticed at blossoming time. (2) When dry (as it should be when applied) it contains 2.13 per cent nitrogen, 2.02 per cent phosporic acid, and 0.994 per cent potash. For comparison mixed farm manures average 0.5 per cent nitrogen, 0.25 per cent phosporic acid, and 0.5 per cent potash. (3) Better use one to two pounds acid phosphate to twenty pounds chicken dung, to balance the excess nitrogen, prevent its loss, and prevent fermentation if wet.

Q.—I intend starting a flower bed along the fence this fall in an open yard without shade. (1) Kindly tell me of some plants like tulips and crocuses to interplant between peonies. (2) How should the soil be prepared? A. C.

A.—(1) CROCUS LILY; prefers peaty loam; plant a blue variety, the top one and one-half to two inches below the surface; it blooms in early April. NARCISSUS; prefers a light soil; plant narcissus incomparabilis, Sir Watkin, a yellow variety, six to eight inches below the surface; it blooms in late April and early May. Tulips; prefer a medium loam; plant Darwin varieties, the tops of bulbs four inches below the surface; they bloom in late May and early June. PEONY; prefers a heavy, rich loam; use strong clumps with six to eight eyes or more; plant with the eyes an inch below the surface. The best varieties are Felix Crousse, crimson; Delicatissima, rose pink; Festiva Maxima, white with blood markings; Officinalis Rubra Plena, an early blood red; Peach Blow, white and pink, with blood markings. They bloom in June. YELLOW DAY LILY; prefers a medium loam; plant heavy roots of Hemerocallis Thunbergii, the tops an inch below the surface; they do not spread; bloom in July. LILY; prefers rich sandy loam; plant Lilium speciosum rubrum Melpomence, a magnificent white with pale red markings, the tops of bulbs eight inches below the surface; they bloom at the end of July and through August. (2) A good mean for all these plants is a rich sandy loam. Prepare that now by spreading well rotted horse manure at the rate of about 350 pounds per square rod and adding as much sand as required. Incorporate these with the soil by spading in your heavy soil, not less than twelve inches deep. Plant at once.

Outraged dignity and race pride flamed in Hughie's chubby face and his reply was icily brief: "No, ma'am, we're Scotch!" H. T.

Bobbie had a close up view of an aeroplane. The next day, with some boxes and papers, he fashioned one of his own in the fron yard. His mother, delighted with the child's ingenuity, went out to examine it. She asked him a number of questions about its construction, which he answered fairly well, but finally, becoming exasperated, he exclaimed, "O, shes aren't a'posed to know anything about airships!" Walter and Esther had been invited by a neighbor to lunch. Walter's cup had hand painted roses on it. When Esther was given a white one with only a gold rim around it she looked up with tears in her eyes and asked, "Don't I get a company cup, too?" R. P.

Jimmie went to spend the day with a friend. Upon his arrival home he was told he had a baby sister. He looked up smiling and said, "I wonder if she knows she has a big brother." J. B. F.

Step on the Brake When a Boy Salutes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

WAS IT YOU?

Last Sunday two bluejackets stood at a street crossing on Sheridan road waiting for a lift. Salute after salute brought them nothing but a less hopeful salute for the next car along. But after twenty cars had sped discouragingly past them there came a man with a son in the service and you may be jolly well sure he invited them to take a lift.

Maybe it wouldn't be fair to claim that the spirit of genuine patriotism burns flickeringly low in the hearts of those who would pass up these waiting uniformed boys! But one suspects the war has touched them only 3,000 miles away! A man or a woman with a boy in the service wouldn't do it!

Thoughtlessness isn't a legitimate excuse these days. It's everybody's business to be thoughtful of the boys in uniform. The argument is so obvious that there remains no argument. And what is a lift or a few miles out of the way to help these young chaps save the small salaries they earn to what they are willing to do for you and for me and for the motor owner?

At the Soldiers and Sailors' club last Sunday two automobiles out of the city-ful were offered to give rides to the boys who hung about in hundreds, exclaiming in hopeful boyish enthusiasm! "Gee, I wish there was some place to go; no movies, no shows! If some one doesn't come along with a car we might as well beat it back to the station!" The station meaning back to the Great Lakes!

Yesterday afternoon they told me at the Soldiers and Sailors' club that one seven passenger car would have meant happiness to that many boys. But not forthcoming, the boys had either to sit swathed in the loneliness and depression that envelops so completely the stranger in a strange city or go out into perilous byways and perchance be forced into a companionship from which you would want your son or brother saved.

Will you enlist your car for an hour or two or a half day or a day if that is convenient? You'll find appreciation that will make your heart glow. Try it. Telephone the Soldiers and Sailors' club, 207 West Washington street; Main 3223.

Clothing Collected to Keep Pupils Warm

For children who would otherwise be forced either to stay at home or go to school ragged and cold, the School Children's Aid society is making its annual collection of money and clothing for distribution on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of Thanksgiving week. The money collected from children in the more prosperous districts is being sent to Supt. Mortenson, who in turn sends it to the society.

The Haven school, 1472 Wabash avenue, has been made headquarters for distribution of clothing and shoes. Requisitions are sent to the Haven school by principals of schools where charity is needed and from this headquarters the board of education's wagons make their deliveries. Needed articles of clothing are given the children in private conference with the principal or sent quietly to the homes to keep the identity of a recipient of charity a secret from his playmates.

"We feel that it is a very worthy charity," said Supt. Mortenson yesterday, "and one which should be contributed to largely by the parents of children who are able to do so. Without this aid many children who are able to attend school would be obliged to stay home.

A Cake for a Hundred.

"Desserts Which the Food Administration Eats" was the heading of a recent release from the Washington food administration office. Under this heading were given the recipes of four desserts used in the cafeteria in the headquarters of the United States food administration, where 6,000 meals were served and only fifty pounds of sugar used in serving them.

The recipes in this release are for 100 servings each of a cake, baked Indian pudding, a maple tapioca, and a sugarless rice compote with a peach sauce. The recipes were sent out with the idea of helping those who have to prepare big luncheons or suppers for churches or women's clubs. Here is the recipe for the cake:

"Three pounds of fat, two and one-fourth pounds of sugar, three-fourths quart or two and one-fourth pounds of light sirup, one and one-fourth ounces of soda, one and one-half ounces of salt, twenty eggs, one and one-half quarts of milk [sour milk is evidently intended], two and one-half ounces of cream tartar, three pounds of corn flour, three pounds of wheat flour, and one tablespoon of vanilla. Cream thoroughly the fat and sugar. Add the salt and soda. Add alternately the sirup and the eggs, creaming after each addition. Add milk and vanilla. Add flours sifted with the cream tartar. Bake in a moderately hot oven or at about 360 degrees F.

"This cake may be varied by adding any one of the following: One and one-half pounds of nut meats, three pounds of raisins or other fruit, one and a half pounds of cocoanut, or three-fourths pound of chocolate. If the chocolate is used, increase the milk to two quarts."

The maple tapioca recipe for 100 people contains two and one-half gallons of milk, two pounds of minute tapioca, one and one-half quarts or four and one-half pounds of maple sirup, two and a half tablespoons of salt, one and a half pounds of nut meats.

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH "DANDERINE"

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents; apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire, soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Adv.

HAVE YOU A SWEETHEART,

Son or Brother in training camps in the American Army or Navy? If so, mail him a package of ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE, the antiseptic, healing powder to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath. The American, British and French troops use Allen's Foot-Ease, because it takes the Friction from the Shoe and freshens the feet. It is the greatest comforter for tired, aching, tender, swollen feet, and gives relief to corns and bunions.

The Plattsburg Camp Manual advises men in training to shake Foot-Ease in their shoes each morning. Ask your dealer to-day for a box of Allen's Foot-Ease, and for a 2c. stamp he will mail it for you. What remembrance could be so acceptable?

Women 'Aces' of the Liberty Loan Slip Away for Vacations

Several of the women who helped Chicago go over the top—or hopping over, as a recently returned officer says the Yanks call a successful attack—in the fourth Liberty loan are taking well earned vacations this week.

Miss Jacob Baur of 115 Bellevue place, who is one of the most tireless and most able workers among the women, is at French Lick Springs for a few days' stay. Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg of 339 Deming place and Mrs. Frank M. Fulton, who took active parts, also are at French Lick Springs.

Mrs. George Higginson Jr. of 1322 Astor street, who was chairman of the committee in charge of department store booths, is at her residence in Winnetka, where she will remain until about the middle of next week. Mrs. Ellsworth Fairbank of 1244 North State parkway is leaving this week for Washington.

Mrs. Augustus S. Peabody, chairman of the woman's directing committee of Chicago war gardens, left on Monday for French Lick Springs for a ten days' rest.

Mrs. William McCormick Blair arrived last week to spend the winter with her mother, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen of 1430 Astor street. Mr. Blair has entered the officers' training camp at Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Blair spent last winter and summer in Washington, where he was connected with the Four-Minute Men organization. Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gary of Hubbard Woods have taken the Blaine residence at 1416 Astor street for the winter and will move in about Nov. 1.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who has been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deering, in Evanston, since her return from Groton, Mass., where she spent the summer with her sister, Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson, is planning to move into her new residence at 1919 North State parkway about Nov. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill Broome of 117 East Chestnut street, who are visiting the latter's mother, Mrs. John A. Spoor, in Pittsfield, Mass., have postponed their homecoming until next week. Mr. Spoor returned to Chicago recently and Mrs. Spoor will come home in about a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gerrish Beale of 40 East Burton place are stopping at a week in New York City on their way home from Bar Harbor, Me., where they spent the summer. Mrs. Malcolm Carothers of 44 Banks street, Mrs. Beale's mother, who spent the latter part of the summer with the Beales, returned last week.

Mrs. Loring W. Coleman, who has been visiting Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman of 111 Rush street, left yesterday for Boston, where she will spend the winter with her mother, Mrs. Snelling.

Mrs. Howard H. Spaulding Jr., who is spending the fall at her country place on Long Island, expects to come to Chicago during the opera season.

WOMEN in WARTIME

BY LUCY CALHOUN.

Dr. Marguerite S. Cockett, who has just returned from France and who was one of the first of the Y. M. C. A. canteen workers with the American troops, will be in Chicago tomorrow afternoon and will address a committee of Y. M. C. A. workers at 4 o'clock in a small room of the Art institute. Dr. Cockett is a member of the Massachusetts Medical society and has practiced medicine in Boston. Early in the progress of the war she went to Europe, and was sent with the British forces to Saloniki. Later she went to Serbia, and she has driven an ambulance with the Twentieth corps of the French army on the Amiens-Peronne front.

Work for "Over Forty."

The woman's committee workroom in the Venetian building has found novel work for the women of 40 and over. Nine women are busy there now sewing gas masks, which are used by girl workers in munition factories. Some of the women have proved most deft with their fingers, despite their age, and employment has been found for a number who work with paste pots and sheers making paper bags and place cards for the Thanksgiving dinner table. These women find their greatest pleasure, however, in doing the mending for soldiers, and a number of khaki jackets and woolen socks owe their neat darns to the patient fingers of the gray haired women, most of whom wear service pins with more than one star.

Demonstrates Meat Cuts.

J. Russell, a person who knows all about porterhouse steak and round steak and tenderloins of beef, will demonstrate different cuts of meat to the audience at the Food Conservation station, 28 South Wabash avenue, on Friday at 2 p. m. The health department has not interfered with the lectures here, as the food bureau is looked upon as a war emergency.

Cancel Food Demonstration.

There will be no food demonstration today at the Sixth ward headquarters of the woman's committee, 918 East Fifty-fifth street, owing to the influenza epidemic.

Now Need Tinfoil.

Everything from the wheels of baby carriages to six bushels of home grown wheat was brought in yesterday to the new headquarters of the Red Cross salvage bureau at 127 North State street, where Mrs. Samuel T. Chase and her corps of workers were busy all day. A drive is being made just now for tinfoil for the Red Cross in connection with the salvage bureau, and it was announced yesterday that a cube for tubes (cold cream tubes, tooth paste tubes, and other emptied ones) would be erected immediately on the lake front near Jackson boulevard. Passers-by are requested to deposit any tinfoil tubes or scraps in the box. It will be sold for the benefit of soldiers' and sailors' families.

Women Plan Stamp Drive.

Plans for the "Over the Top" drive, which will be held from Thanksgiving until the end of December, were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the women war savings postal directors in the war savings committee headquarters, 417 Conway building. Each of the women workers who direct the various war savings drives in the postal districts were presented with the new war savings emblems that have been devised for members of the committee by Miss Amy Marr, director general of the postal districts in Chicago.

Nurses Must Enroll.

Again the call for nurses goes out from the woman's committee, Council of National Defense. A second letter has been sent to all county chairmen stating the urgent necessity of more women enrolling in this work if Illinois' quota of 3,000 is to be reached. To date only a third of this number have responded.

Knitted Articles Limited.

Red Cross chapter workers throughout the country have been asked to discontinue the direct distribution to drafted men of knitted articles made from Red Cross material. The limited supply of yarn and the necessity for preventing duplication are responsible for the request. Representatives of the Red Cross attached to the military relief departments at all camps and cantonments will distribute the knitted articles among the soldiers from now on.

CLUB NOTES

The following resolutions have been adopted by the executive committee of the Illinois Woman's Legislative congress, Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley, chairman:

Whereas, The present Illinois constitution was written nearly fifty years ago, and

Whereas, While it met the needs of the state then, it now acts as a handicap to its progress, and

Whereas, As the whole world has learned the lesson of preparedness not only in war but also along the lines of civic, social, industrial, and economic advancement, and

Whereas, Our state will be shackled and held back in the great onward progress of the world unless Illinois has a modern basic law, and

Whereas, Our constitution retards as much as it protects and it can be put in such shape that it will protect without retarding.

Therefore be it resolved, That we indorse a constitutional convention as the only means through which the basic law of Illinois can be modernized to meet the need of present day requirements.

The UNITED STATES FOOD ADMINISTRATION SAYS

You may use Wheat Flour but You must buy Substitutes also

A certain wealthy woman considers herself patriotic.

She works for the Red Cross; she contributes liberally to it and other war work organizations.

When she buys wheat flour she also buys the required amount of substitutes.

But—she uses wheat flour without substitutes.

IS she patriotic?

Does a woman like that really help just because she can afford to waste?

Don't you be like that woman. And don't you let any other woman use wheat flour without substitutes.

Don't just buy corn meal, corn flour, rolled oats, barley flour and other wheat substitutes with wheat flour because you must.

Buy them and use them because you want to—because you are a true patriot.

CORN GAINS IN MARKET WITH SMALL RANGE

Bulge and Breaks Followed by Last Hour Rally.

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Action of the grain markets was erratic and the range smaller than of late. Pit conditions counted for more than anything else. The close was well toward the best prices after a bulge and a break with a rally in the last hour. Net gains on corn were 3⅛ to 3¾c and on oats 1 to 1⅝c in Chicago.

Southwestern corn markets were stronger, with gains of 1@2½c, December in Kansas City leading. Oats there were up 1@2c on the active futures. In Minneapolis oats gained 1½c and rye futures were ¼c lower to ¼c higher. Winnipeg oats were 2½@ higher and a maximum of 89½c was put on October by the exchange there.

Corn Prices Change Rapidly.

Corn fluctuated rapidly within a range of 3¼@3⅞c. The trade construed the German note as unfavorable for peace, and there was rather general short covering in consequence. The bulges, however, brought out increased selling pressure, while breaks were taken advantage of to make purchases. Bulk of the business was of a local character.

Toward the last there was evening up by some of the pit element, which made an advance to the high point of the day, with the close within ¼@½c of the best figure. November closed at $1.33¾, and December at $1.30¾ to $1.30. October was not mentioned. At the top prices were up 5@6c from the low of the previous day.

News other than of a political nature was ignored. The government renewed its bid of $1.30 for old or new No. 4 track New York, but no sales were reported. Domestic shipping demand was fair, with sales 65,000 bu. Sample values were unchanged to 3c higher, with receipts 154 cars. Forecast was for cold weather following rains over part of the belt.

Government Buyer of Oats.

Strength in corn and removal of hedges on sales of 200,000 bu cash oats to the government, in addition to 115,000 bu domestic made a fair advance, which was maintained at the last. October closed at 69¼c, November at 68c, and December at 67¾c.

Country offerings to arrive and consignment notices were small, but sample values were unchanged to ½c lower, with receipts 99 cars. Premiums were somewhat lower, with trans-Mississippi No. 3 whites mainly November price and Illinois proportional billing ½c over.

Rye Prices Unchanged.

Rye was in smaller supply and fair demand at unchanged prices. No. 2 selling at $1.61@1.62, inside figure for poor billing. Futures advanced 1½c. No government purchases announced. Receipts, 6 cars. Milwaukee and Minneapolis were unchanged. The northwest had 85 cars.

Barley sold at unchanged prices, offerings being smaller and elevator interests good buyers. The government bought 3 cars at $1.61. Spot sales were at 85c@$1.00. Receipts, 40 cars. Milwaukee was unchanged and Minneapolis to higher. The southwest had 114 cars.

Flax seed at Duluth closed 9½@10c higher; October, $3.50; December, $3.42. Winnipeg, 12½@14c higher; October, $3.33½; December, $3.33½. The three markets had 113 cars.

Good Support to Short Ribs.

Packers were credited with buying November short ribs. Shorts were also buyers and with offerings not large part of the day prices advanced but failed to hold the extreme at the last, there being gains of 35@47½c, the latter on January. The surplus was taken off the market by the early buying. Lard was up 15@22½c at the last with a fair trade. The first deliveries on October lard this month were made after the close, when 500,000 lbs were out. Pork was up $1.50 for January, while November gained 80c. Trading in all January product is broadening, as there are no restrictions and there is a readjustment under way between hogs and product which is expected to benefit the trade in general. Hog values were most irregular and cut considerable figure in the trade. Packing in the west last week, as given in the Daily Drovers' Journal, was 600,000 hogs, against 521,000 the previous week and 563,000 last year. For the season to date the increase in product is equal to 480,000,000 lbs. Prices follow:

HAY AND STRAW

An active demand for the local and shipping trade was in evidence, but buyers did not show a desire to pay the best prices any heretofore. This was especially the case with the poorer grades of No. 2 grassy mixed, while standard No. 2 and No. 3 timothy was well cleaned up. Receipts were 91 cars timothy, No. 1 was $23.00 to $24.00; standard, $21.00 to $22.00; No. 2 light clover mixed, $20.00 to $21.00; No. 2 timothy and No. 1 clover mixed $21.00 to $20.00; and No. 2 timothy, $4.00 to $20.00. Threshed, $14.00 to $19.00.

Prairie was weak and $1.00 lower, with larger offerings and a weak tone. Choice southwestern was $27.00 to $31.00, and northwestern $25.00 to $26.00, the latter for choice. Nebraska, Illinois and Wisconsin feeding, $10.00 to $17.00. Receipts, 24 cars, including 2 Kansas, 7 Iowa, 3 Dakota and 10 cars Illinois. Straw receipts, 1 car rye and 1 car oat. The latter was $8.50 to $10.00, and rye $10.50 to $11.50 per ton.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

There are two sets of traders in the corn market, one strongly bullish and the other emphatically bearish. Those who are in favor of maintaining prices around the present level to somewhat higher believe that the war will last some time. The lower price advocates are selling in expectation of peace reports coming at any time, and they want to be prepared. This latter class were buyers of bids last night and are, as some put it, selling the farmers' corn for them, expecting that the growers will become scared at peace reports which come in every few days and sell freely and eventually depress prices.

It was said that the government bought cash oats at a number of points in the west and southwest yesterday, taking liberal quantities for the various camps. No export business was reported, and houses who usually have bids were without any yesterday. One exporter said he did not have a wire all day. The country is not anxious to sell oats at present, and there is a moderately bullish feeling in some quarters. Some of the traders were good buyers of offers at the last.

While the weather has been fine for curing the corn crop in shocks and on the stalk and the crop is in unusually good condition, there has been no apparent desire on the part of the farmers to rush their new corn to market, being content with selling the old. The new is of good quality and will keep. Some of the receivers are not looking for a liberal run of new corn until the middle of November. When the northwest has a good crop of corn, they have in past years sold freely late in November and during December, and it will be no surprise to see them lead the selling this year should weather be favorable.

There are 2,360,000 more persons to be fed in France and Belgium, in addition to the number recently estimated by the food administration, who will have to be fed. It estimates that 9,750,000 persons will have to be fed when the Germans are pushed back to beyond the Meuse. It estimates that there will have to be 17,550,000 tons of food shipped from the United States this season, against 11,820,000 tons last.

Packing in the west last week as compiled by the Daily Drovers' Journal was 600,000 hogs, against 592,000 the previous week and 502,000 last year. The Daily Trade Bulletin estimates that the increase in the manufacture of hog product this season to date is equal to 480,000,000 lbs over last year.

"Evening up of commitments is about all that can be expected in the November deliveries, and a readjustment in the January to nearer the hog values will make a better trading level for January pork, lard, and ribs," says W. L. Gregson. "A broader market should be the result."

"The 1918 crop of corn has matured more naturally than that of any recent year," says H. I. Baldwin of Decatur, Ill. "It has slowly and gradually cured these warm, breezy October days. A good many farmers will commence shucking and blasting their corn during the coming week, but all would now prefer a good hard freeze to put on the finishing touches to the crop before placing it into the cribs. We look for a good average crop in quantity and quality."

Grain shipments to Detroit via the Wabash will hereafter be handled on the permit system.

It is proposed to equalize commission rates on to arrive grain, which are ¾ of 1 per cent, and make them 1 per cent, or the same as charged straight consignments. Board of Trade directors adopted amendments to the rule to provide for this yesterday. It will be posted at once for ballot.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Quality of the wheat receipts at Chicago is not as good as recently, and some cars are hard to dispose of to advantage. Choice continues to sell at a fair premium over the basic figure. Arrivals were 163 cars. The three southwestern markets had 644 cars, against 208 cars a week ago and 153 cars last year.

Cash corn sold fairly, with prices here unchanged to 3c higher, the latter being secured for a few cars. Kansas City was unchanged to 2c higher. Minneapolis 5c lower, and Duluth unchanged to 3c lower. No. 5 yellow in the latter market sold at $1.30 and No. 6 yellow at $1.25.

Demand for cash oats was slow and prices unchanged to ½c lower. Kansas City was unchanged. Peoria ½c lower, and Milwaukee ¾c lower. Cash grain prices in leading markets follow:

COTTON TRADE NEWS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A sharp break was caused in the cotton market today by an unfavorable view of the German note, reports of large ginning returns, and Liverpool selling.

It is estimated that Liverpool has sold 300,000 to 400,000 bales on straddle account during the last few weeks. This has been absorbed by trade buying and Japanese accumulation.

Private returns showed a ginning of 7,060,000 bales to Oct. 18, compared with 5,573,606 last year and 7,303,183 two years ago. On the average to Oct. 18 for the last four year about 53.4 per cent of the crop has been ginned. This percentage applied to the returns mentioned today would indicate a crop in excess of the recent government estimate.

There was talk that half a million tons of Dutch shipping would be released by the evacuation of the Belgian coast.

No exports today. Exports so far this season, 612,126 bales. Port receipts, 36,021 bales. U. S. port stocks, 1,159,311 bales. Futures:

FALLING OFF IN CATTLE RECEIPTS SENDS UP PRICES

Excessive Offerings Lead to Another Break in Hog Market.

More moderate receipts of cattle than far this week at all markets helped local sellers considerably and prices for the bulk showed 25c advance for the two days, with many lots up 50c. Two days' supply of 166,000 showed 45,000 decrease, compared with a week ago, and quality fell off, with weight a lacking quantity.

Receipts of cattle at the seven western markets for the year to date turned the 10,000,000 mark, standing around 1,500,000 larger than corresponding period last year. This increase in a great measure was due to the excessive marketing of light stock and kept the spread in prices unusually wide.

Hog Prices Break Again.

Excessive offerings forced another fresh break of 10@25d in hog prices and over a third of the 40,000 on sale were carried over. Load lots of 400 lb packers sold as low as $14.50, with Swift's drove of 253 lb mixed butchers costing $16.56. The extreme top was $17.75.

A year ago this month the government fixed a minimum average of about $15.50 for hogs for the winter season, and at a meeting in Washington today of the packers, hog raisers, and various representatives of agricultural bodies with the food administration, the November basis will be discussed. With around 30,000,000 more hogs in the country than a year ago, present prices are around $1.00 higher than a year ago.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $16.36, against $16.55 Monday, $17.95 a week ago, $15.40 a year ago, low day in October, $10.14 two years ago, and $7.28 three years ago.

Receipts for today are estimated at 15,000 cattle, 23,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep, against 17,524 cattle, 23,323 hogs, and 23,030 sheep corresponding Wednesday a year ago.

GAS DECISION SHOULD ASSIST UTILITY STOCKS

If the Illinois Supreme court decision in the Peoples Gas litigation means what the legal departments of utilities corporations construe it to mean there should follow a change of investment opinion with reference to Chicago securities, and the decision shows a constructive measure warranting confidence in stabilized earnings such as has not previously obtained. Some reflection of this changed view is found in the inquiry for and advance in Peoples Gas securities and those of the street railroads. The general public, however, has yet to consider the new trend of affairs.

Want Politics Eliminated.

The Association of Commerce, State street merchants, and investment interests have united in an effort to have the traction ordinance fully explained, with the expectation of a favorable referendum vote. The idea behind these associations is that if the street railroad question can be finally settled, and if the determination of utilities' fares and rates can be fixed by one body—the state public utilities commission—there will have been removed from local political campaigns the recurrent use of gas and street cars for the election of mayors and aldermen.

Costs City Money.

While this use has been made of business questions, capital outside Chicago has been enabled to demand a larger return for money loaned here. The bonds and stocks of the street railroads, the gas company, and the Commonwealth Edison are around their lowest levels. From whatever cause, the gas company's earnings have been reduced until the concern has been unable to finance its proposed new $12,000,000 plant. This company will immediately profit by the supreme court decision. It is expected by the corporation that the increase in gas rates granted by the utilities commission will be, sustained, and will result, it is estimated, in an increase of something over $1,000,000 annually in net profits.

Seek Commercial Paper.

There is some evidence of an easier condition among the New York banks with reference to commercial paper, and they are reported to be bidding less than 4 per cent. This is a departure. For months none of the large cities has been quoted in the market for paper. In Chicago there is only large bank that has bought, and its line has been a moderate one. A number of the large institutions are borrowers at the Federal reserve bank, and employ their surplus in paying of their notes at that institution.

TALK OF THE STREET

Standard Petroleum finally had its promised down turn and made an almost consistent lower record throughout yesterday's session, closing at 155, a drop of 6 points within a few days and 17 since Monday's close. The decline was regarded as an ordinary consequence of a quick rise. It did not disturb the position of the general list.

On the buying side the railroad stocks were the features and Illinois Central came into prominence by rising above par and closing at 104½. Pennsylvania enjoyed large eastern buying and the shares touched 49, although the close was fractionally lower.

While United States Steel common did little in the way of price change, commission house opinion was generally bullish. Bethlehem B stock is a little puzzling to the market. C. K. Schwab was the first to profit by the war and observers are unwilling to believe that he has not looked ahead for the welfare of his corporation after the war.

The oil group generally was irregular and inclined to be lower, except on the curb, where one or two low priced stocks showed good buying. The listed issues suffered from profit taking.

There was a good market for bonds on the exchange. One of the leading bond dealers was quoted as saying it is no longer a question of obtaining orders, but of execution. Every day he said it was getting harder to execute buying orders in bonds at a reasonable range from previously made quotations.
